I'D LIKE TO GO.

It seems to me I'd like to go

Where bells don't ring, nor whistles blow,

Nor clocks don't strike nor gongs don't sound,

And I'd have stillness all around—

Not real stillness, but just the trees' low whisperings, or the hum of bees,

Or brooks' faint bubbling over the stones

In strange, softly tangled tones.

Or maybe a cricket or katydid,

Or the songs of birds in the hedges hid,

Or just some such sweet sounds as these

To fill a tired heart with ease.

It 'twere not for sight and sound and smell

I'd like the city pretty well;

But when it comes to getting rest,

I like the country lots the best.

Sometimes it seems to me I must

Just quit the city's din and dust

And get out where the sky is blue,

And say, now, how does it seem to you?

—Eugene Field.

SHORT SERMONS.

Love enlarges the limits of life.

You can know truth by its foresight.

The secret of right living is right living in secret.

We miss most of our blessings by refusing burdens.

Nothing deceives its owner better than pious conceit.

Life soon denies all pleasure to those who deny themselves none.

The man who likes people can be led like any really good thing.

It takes a lot of love to hold our children from the snare of luxury.

Some folks get to the front by hanging onto those ahead.

EASTERN COLONISTS CLAMOR FOR SILENCE

COLORADO SPRINGS, July 30.—The esthetic tastes of the members of the fashionable eastern colony who are sojourning here have been sadly jarred by the choo-choo of the mogul locomotives which haul trains up the heavy grades here, and have set up a mighty howl for silence. They propose to have the noise stopped in order that their nerves may not be shattered, and are preparing a campaign which will carry the issue to the offices of the Gould and Hill systems in New York if the nuisance is not abated.

FURNITURE MAN HELD FOR SELLING WHISKY

EUGENE, Or., July 30.—Charles Eberth, proprietor of a furniture factory in Eugene, was arrested by a deputy sheriff yesterday charged with violating the local option law. He is under bonds of $500 to appear for trial. He conducts a salesroom down town and it is alleged that it was there that he sold whiskey to railroad laborers. Alex Gray of Springfield, was yesterday fined $300 by Judge Bryson, having been found guilty by a jury of selling beer. He was not given a jail sentence, as several others were during the past few days for the reason that this is his first offense and reputation in the past was good.

KANSANS LOOK BAD TO POLICE IN DENVER

DENVER, July 30.—After being arrested three times within an hour, S. and R. Hoster, brothers, from Murdock, Kan., were not entirely pleased with their first visit to Denver yesterday, and resolved to eliminate this place from any further itineraries. The boys were on their way to Steamboat Springs. After leaving the Union depot here they were accosted by a policeman who looked with suspicion upon the hand grips each was carrying. After a search, the officer decided they were not safe-blazers, as he had suspected, and let them go. A few blocks further on the act was repeated by a plain-clothes man. A third time another policeman stopped the brothers and searched them. This time the brothers resolved to leave town at once, never to return.

BOY IS SENT FISHING INSTEAD OF TO PRISON

NEW YORK, July 30.—Bobbie Quinlan, 10 years old, stood trembling before Judge Robert Carey in the children's court in the Hudson county courthouse in Jersey City yesterday, charged with the theft of two lead sinkers. His eyes were swollen and red from weeping, for his little companions had told him he would be sent away for a long term and would have to break stone. His fears, however, went skyward when Judge Carey adjourned court, and, taking the youngster by the hand, led him over to a small shop, just opposite the courthouse, where fishing tackle is sold.

"I want you to give this boy," said the judge, "the best fishing outfit you have in the establishment. Charge it to me."

ALBANY, Or., July 30.—Deciding that a city can legally pass an ordinance preventing sale of near-beer, Judge William Galloway today dismissed the writ of review in the case of Charles Kroschel against the city of Albany and affirmed the judgment of the city recorder fining Kroschel for selling near-beer.

DYNASTY'S DOWNFALL.

papal nuncio, Monsignor Vico, at Madrid, was expected. The king's primate is believed to have been chosen to bear the vatican's ultimatum to his majesty and final severance of all relations between the Catholic church and Spain.

While the king and his ministers are facing revolt and possible overthrow, word was received today at Madrid that the Riff tribesmen in Morocco, encouraged by the disturbed conditions in the kingdom, have renewed their activities. Rif- fiat Muezzins are preaching a holy war and the first clash between the tribesmen and the Spaniards yesterday resulted in the killing of 30 Spanish soldiers.

Alfonso's firmness in the great crisis has surprised and aroused the loyalists and they predict that it will win the king the support of members of disaffected Spaniards. It is conceded, however, that the king took his stand in absolute self-defense as a refusal now to support the policy of Canalejas would mean the resignation of the ministry and the possible downfall of the monarchy.

Don Jaime, encamped with 10,000 exiles near the Spanish border, today issued a formal appeal to all Spaniards to join his banner when he marches into Spain.

"I expect to take the place devolving upon me by birth, and I look to the people to rally with me against the enemies of real liberty," his proclamation says.

KING'S POWER OVERRATED.

Dispatches From Madrid Strictly Censored; Curtains Conditions.

PARIS, July 30.—In view of the strained relations between Spain and the vatican, as indicated in dispatches from Rome and Madrid, the general feeling here, while inclined to be anti-clerical, is that the power of the young king has been overrated in the Madrid messages.

Nearly every dispatch coming from a Spanish city is strictly censored; the fulsome praise accorded governmental personages is almost as sickening as it is ridiculous. Even after careful pruning of the overrating of the official prowess, enough of the dispatches remain to show that they are intended as curtains to hide from

RAPID PROGRESS MADE.

WITH a half million dollar water system completed, with a million dollars' worth of paving under way, with another million dollars' worth of building under construction, Medford is making good her promise of becoming the metropolis of southern Oregon.

The year is but half gone, yet it has seen the city grow as never before. When the full twelve months shall have rolled away, the appearance will be entirely altered. The village and its landmarks will have passed forever away and the most metropolitan small city in the world have taken its place.

It has been a great year for development, both in city and country. Fifteen thousand acres of additional commercial orchards have been planted, bringing the total orchard area up to 65,000.

The Hill lines are building from Medford east over the Cascades, and from the Columbia south through central Oregon to a connection with the Medford line, with a depot in the heart of the city, giving Medford a second transcontinental line, and making it the railroad center, and hence the distributing center of southern Oregon and northern California. Already the construction of branch houses has begun by the jobbing interests and a short time will see every large jobbing concern establishing a branch here.

The Southern Pacific business in Medford is increasing faster than in any other city in Oregon. It is now larger, both in passenger and freight, than in any other city in the state, barring only Portland. The past week has seen the stationing of a switch engine here and another increase in the local force, a $50,000 passenger depot, the most commodious yet erected in Oregon, is nearing completion—and needed for the business.

Postoffice receipts, averaging 35 per cent gain each month over the previous month a year ago, and bank deposits averaging nearly 50 per cent higher than last year's, are an index to the growth of Medford. The erection of two modern six-story hotels, now under construction, of two large department stores, of numerous business blocks, some of them four stories in height, of a $50,000 natatorium and amusement palace, and hundreds of dwellings, all indicate the expansion of the city—yet there is not a vacant store, office or cottage in the community.

Medford's growth is but an index of the growth of the Rogue River valley. All of the towns are increasing in population and buildings, yet the development of the towns does not keep pace with the development of the country. The projected interurban electric line will cement all of these communities into one large one, as the country is rapidly becoming one large orchard, with a house on every small tract.

With the opening up of the timber belt, with the development of the mines, with the utilization of resources, as is now going on at Tolo, where tile and brick works, lumber mills and granite quarries are operating in full blast, and at Gold Hill, with its lime kilns, the future of Medford and of the valley was never brighter than it is this final day of July, in the year 1910.

REQUEST FOR POSTAL BANK

Assistant Postmaster Woodford has been advised by the secretary of the board of postal bank commissioners that the request that Medford be granted a postal savings bank has been taken under consideration by the commission and that they would advise local authorities as soon as a decision has been reached in the matter.
