In writing an ad about that furnished room you have to rent say, in a convincing way, just what you'd say if someone asked you to tell him what it was like, "and all about it." Last winter was a very severe one, but we bear no grudge against it now.

FLEECED THE CHOCTAWS.

Scott Admits Interest. Chairman Burke cross-examined Scott.

The witness denied that he had sent letters signed with McCurtain's name to R. C. Adams, a Washington attorney, endorsing the contracts.

Scott said that he personally paid for telegrams sent to Washington and that he was not afterward reimbursed.

"Then you were interested in McMurray not only to the extent that you were willing to pay 10 per cent commission, but you were willing also to resign a position paying you $1800 annually and willing to spend money for him, were you?" Burke asked.

"Yes," Scott replied.

"You had an interest in a general way—that is, in seeing the Indian affairs settled?"

Again the witness answered in the affirmative.

Scott formerly was treasurer of the Choctaws, but gave up this position, as well as that of secretary to Chief Curtin because he clashed with the chief over McMurray.

Held Up Warrants. Congressman Campbell asked if he thought there was any harm in being interested in the McMurray contracts.

"No," the witness replied.

"They withheld your explanation of your connection with McMurray?" Campbell continued.

"I have no contract with McMurray and am not interested with McMurray," said the witness.

Congressman Miller then examined Scott and drew from him the admission that while he was treasurer for the Choctaws he withheld government warrants from those with whom he was unfriendly, while he paid the other Choctaws immediately. He also testified that the discounted government warrants on a 10 per cent basis, adding that he thought such practices legitimate.

Scott admitted that he had collected over 1000 tax contracts for McMurray. According to previous testimony, McMurray paid Scott $1 for each contract delivered.

EPIDEMIC OF COLDS RAGING

Good Old-Fashioned Sneezing the Vogue—City Health Officer Puts Blame on Dust—Moral Is to Clean Up and Keep the City Clean.

"Kerchew! How are you this morning?"

"Wahoo!" "You! Kerchew!" "Rahoo!"

"Abhh-hoo-e-e! There, that's better."

No, this is not a new college yell. Neither is it an attempt to talk Chihook in words of one syllable. It is a sample of the usual morning salutation since the epidemic of colds hit Medford.

The man who cannot boast a real good sneezing cold is considered de trop. It has become an epidemic as a society fad. Even the buds of fashion rank according to their ability to snort the petals from a bouquet of American Beauty roses.

Even Puss the cat, has been placed on a meat diet because she has contracted the habit of sneezing the milk out of her saucer.

Many an ardent swain whose habit was to call up his inamorata by telephone has taken to writing tender missives because sneezing and electric currents do not blend well with honeyed words.

Dr. Shearer, city health officer, was asked for an explanation of the epidemic of colds.

"I can only trace it to irritation occasioned by dust, and the attendant spread of infection through this agency," said Dr. Shearer. "It is to be expected each summer."

Hotel Arrivals. At the Nash—Fred barish and wife Palisade; Mrs. S. C. Caldwell, Roseland; C. F. Byrne, Henry Hall, H. K. Black, Portland; Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Davis Marshfield; F. A. MINNEAPOLIS MAN BUYS TWO OF PERRY'S TRACTS. W. E. Wells of Minneapolis has purchased tracts 5 and 6 of the Perry subdivision on the Jacksonville road, consisting of 20 acres, 16 of which are in apples ad pears, for $20,000. The sale was made by McArthur & Alexander.

Mr. Wells' attention was attracted to the Rogue River valley through the Medford Commercial club pamphlet, which he declares the best community literature issued in the west. He was a former fellow-townsmen of Mr. McArthur.

HURLBURT LOSES HOME BY FIRE

Merchant's Residence at Junction City Destroyed—Many Priceless Records and Relics Lost—Defective Wiring Said to Be Cause.

C. F. Hurlburt, of C. F. Hurlburt & Co., who recently purchased the stock of the Baker-Hutchason Co., received news Thursday night that his home and its contents at Junction City, Lane county, had been destroyed by fire.

"All I know," said Mr. Hurlburt, "is the information conveyed in the telegram I received—that the house and contents were destroyed and that the fire was due to defective wiring. The building and contents were insured, but if all was burned there are relics and keepsakes gone which can never be replaced. From both my wife's and my own family there were records and old jewelry which were worthless from a monetary point of view, but priceless to us."

The fire occurred about 9:30 in the evening, during the absence of Mrs. Hurlburt, and the house was almost destroyed before the flames were discovered.

See Pictures; Go to Jail. LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 11.—Those who go to Arcadia Thursday evening to see the first public exhibition of the Jeffries-Johnson moving pictures in California take chances of going to jail, according to District Attorney Fredericks. The city board of trustees of Arcadia granted a license to the proprietor of a local hotel to show the pictures. Fredericks says the trustees had no right to grant the license.

DEATH OF MRS. BARTON, SISTER OF MR. BEVERIDGE

Mrs. Lou Barton, sister of Engineer W. T. Beveridge, died at Portland Thursday night from nervous breakdown, aged 49. Her son was killed in Marysville a year ago from a shock by an electric wire. Since the earthquake in San Francisco, through which she suffered severely, Mrs. Barton has not been well. Two years ago her husband died, and the death of her son following prostrated her so that she never recovered. The news was contained in a dispatch received by Mr. Beveridge Friday.
