EXPERT CAUTIONS CARELESS CAMPER

Associate Forester Cecil Tells How Many Fires Are Started, and Also Tells How They May Easily Be Prevented.

(By George H. Cecil, United States associate forester.)

Few of the thousands of campers who annually make excursions to the forests on pleasure trips realize what great damage results from a little carelessness on their part. It is known that at least 25 per cent of the forest fires which have occurred in Oregon in the last two years started from abandoned camp fires or were caused in some other way by campers. A camp fire, though it may be ever so small, if left with but a spark of life, may smoulder for days and then, when fanned by the wind, break out and oftentimes spread over thousands of acres of timber land.

Listen, campers! Think a minute! The forest fire means an enormous loss to the timber grower, to the community and to yourselves as well. Large forest fires drive out the game and in some instances even kill the fish in the streams, besides converting the area burned over into a desolate, God-forsaken country, unsuitable for recreation of any kind. When you go into the woods for a camping trip, the forest is your home, and you should treat it as such. Furthermore, it is a borrowed home and should be cared for even more carefully than your own property. You would not think of leaving a fire in or near your home that might possibly break out and destroy your house, as well as the houses of your neighbors. Is it not, therefore, your duty to take the same precaution to protect the forests, which are one of the greatest resources of the northwest?

Some campers are careful; others make a haphazard attempt to put out their fires, while still others travel heedlessly on and leave their camp fires to go out if they are so disposed, or to smoulder and later be the source of a great conflagration. Some of you may ask just what is the proper precaution. Here are some hints:

First—With a shovel, ax or stick remove all the grass, leaves, needles and other debris from a spot six or more feet in diameter and build a small fire in the center. Be sure you have dug down to the mineral soil, as only mineral soil can be depended upon not to conduct fire.

Second—Do not build a fire against a rotten log or stump, for the fire works into the decayed wood and it is then impossible to determine whether it is extinguished or not.

Third—Do not leave a fire until you are absolutely sure it is out.

Fourth—Do not throw away burning matches, cigars or cigarettes.

Fifth—If you see a fire, even though it be a small ground fire, put it out, and if the fire is so large that you are unable to fight it alone, report it at once to some forest ranger, or fire warden, who will take the proper action. A grass fire can often be beaten out with a wet sack, blanket or green boughs. Dirt or sand, whether wet or dry, is also effective. Going a short distance in advance of the fire and raking a path a foot or more wide is often effective. Water, of course, is effective if it is obtainable near by.

MRS. CUDAHY IS GIVEN DIVORCE; NOW IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Aug. 24.—Mrs. Edna Cudahy, who was yesterday granted a divorce from "Jack" Cudahy at Kansas City, arrived here today with her four children to give them, according to an order of the court, into the custody of Michael Cudahy, the millionaire packer.

Mrs. Cudahy and the children were met at the railroad station by Mr. and Mrs. Michael Cudahy and taken to their suite at the Blackstone hotel.

Mrs. Cudahy refused to discuss her marital troubles, but intimated that she might later accept one of the many theatrical offers that have been made to her.

MAN HAS SEVERE EXPERIENCE WITH FIRE

MISSOULA, Mont., Aug. 24.—To lie suffocating in a coyote hole with nostrils buried in ooze, while forest fires raged nearby, ignited by the fuses that exploded 12 tons of dynamite, was the experience of Russell Jones, bridge foreman of the Puget Sound railway, who spent a nerve-racking night in the Loop district fire zone.

"The flames swept up the mountain with frightful rapidity," said Jones in relating his experience. "I could see nothing but a 100-foot wall of fire. The flames traveled faster than an express train, and burning brands were sent high in the air for miles. Deer, coyotes, quail and other game were running frantically through the brush ahead of the flames which were accompanied by a terrifying roar. I found a ravine in which was a little muddy water and tried to bury myself in the ooze.

"I thought I was a goner sure when 12 tons of dynamite that we had buried exploded. Later I found that the fire had burned to within ten feet of where I lay and then veered off."

POPE DENOUNCES EXTREME FASHIONS

LONDON, Aug. 24.—According to a news agency dispatch from Rome, Pope Pius X has put himself in the light of strongly opposing present feminine fashions, calling them "really scandalous attire."

The dispatch says the pope has requested all bishops to publish pastoral letters expressing disapproval of the prevailing extreme modes.

SAYS HE HAS $300,000 IN SIGHT, BUT POOR NOW

PITTSBURG, Pa., Aug. 24.—Too poor to pay for lodgings, but claiming to be an heir to an estate valued at $300,000, with a ranch in California and property in Los Angeles, San Diego and Las Caden Park, Carl Fechner of Sheboygan, Wis., spent the night in a police station here.

Fechner has engaged attorneys to fight for his share of the estate, which he claims was left by his sister, Laura White, who was found dead at Lawrenceville last January.

HURRICANE STRIKES COLORADO RIVER

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., Aug. 24.—The clearing away of the debris shows that the hurricane which struck in the vicinity of Hall's ranch on the Colorado river, late yesterday was one of the most severe within the knowledge of old residents. Trees many feet in circumference were blown down, windows smashed, barns unroofed and other damage done.

At Hall's ranch chickens, turkeys and other barnyard fowl were hurled through the air like bits of paper.

GAYNOR TO LEAVE HOSPITAL NEXT WEEK

OH, JOY! THE HOBBLE SKIRT IS A HAS-BEEN

HOBOKEN, N. J., Aug. 24.—Mayor William J. Gynor probably will leave St. Mary's hospital Monday. His family is yet undecided whether to take the New York executive to the Adirondack mountains to recuperate or to the Gaynor farm on Long Island.

PARIS, Aug. 24.—The "hobble" skirt, a recent Parisian creation, is soon to give way to the "tube" skirt, a new confection in the wearing apparel line. The famed dressmakers of Paris who designed the hobble, likewise claim the doubtful honor of being the creators of this latest development in style.

Asked to explain just what a tube skirt is, one of the dressmakers said it was a hobble skirt without the hobble. In other words, the skirt is narrow, and not bound in at the base. The tube came into being as a result of the doubtful welcome the American women gave the hobble.

Hints to the Wise

Your "real estate education" will be improved—even if it's very good already—by reading the real estate ads in this paper today. You may form mental impressions of the sort of people hunting work in this city today by reading their want ads. YOUR NEXT POSITION may advertised today. The next furnished room you'll live in is probably advertised in another column. Look for it among the want ads—if it's something that ought to have been advertised. Write for interviews to those work-hunters whose ads impress you most favorably. To know instantly whether an ad is really important to you is a fine sort of business ability.
