

GARFIELD WILL WIN SAYS WEIL

Western Water Law Attorney Certify That Garfield Views Will Be Adopted at National Conservation Congress, to Meet in St. Paul.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 27.—Pointing out the distinction between the respective conservation theories of Gifford Pinchot, R. A. Ballinger and J. R. Garfield, and the effect they will have upon the approaching conservation congress at St. Paul, Samuel C. Weil, attorney and leading American authority on western water law, today in a statement commenting upon the probable results of the congress said that with Ballinger "declining to entertain even the thought of federal interference," and Pinchot "unhampered by any anxiety about governmental law," Weil foresees an emphatic adoption of Garfield's views at next week's congress in St. Paul.

Weil expresses the opinion that Governor Hughes' public service commission system will be recommended to the congress as the system most applicable in the prevention of monopoly of water power sites in the west. This is the view taken by former Secretary Garfield. It gives the state control over any attempted monopoly and the nation the guardianship of the disposal of natural resources, so that the control of the state over such attempted monopolies may be actual and not merely nominal.

This object will be obtained by the creation of state conservation commissions in each of the states where there is public land. These bodies will have the power to regulate any monopoly having to do with the acquisition or development of water power, thus keeping within reasonable grounds the activities of large corporations.

"These rights, said Weil referring to the rights of the United States over its lands within the bounds of the several states, "are only the rights of a land owner, after all, and include no right, as a matter of law, to share over public service, the governmental powers which rest in the people of the states themselves, over the corporations which serve them."

"The legislatures in most of the western states declare that the distribution of water to the public is subject to the regulation and control of the state and the principle is the same regarding the distribution of power."

"Before the senate committee on lands last February Garfield urged co-operation between state and nation, each within its proper sphere, the sphere of the state being the control of any monopoly; that of the nation being to guard the disposal of resources on public lands so that the control of the state over any monopoly may be assured in practice. At one extreme of this is Mr. Ballinger, who believes it is a matter of right with the states, declining to entertain even a thought of federal interference, while at the other extreme is Mr. Pinchot, unhampered by any anxiety about governmental law and an ardent federalist. The way things stand at present it seems

FEDERATION IN FIGHTING TRIM

So Says Samuel Gompers, President, in Annual Review of Labor World—Unions Are Ready for Big Struggles.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—President Samuel Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, prepared today his annual Labor day review of the Labor day edition of the Federationist, the organ of the federation, in which he says:

"The federation never was in better fighting trim. The big international unions were never better provided with munitions for big struggles. I believe that I can read in the composite voice of the pupil, press and platform the fact that the sentiment of the people has turned toward the necessity for the recognition of unionism."

Referring to the contempt cases pending in the federal court against Gompers, Morrison and Mitchell, President Gompers says:

"Whoever sees that, in this matter, the rights of men are being menaced by the undue extension of the rights claimed for property and that the courts are justly limited in powers by the constitution, will also speedily see that the case is no mere petty matter of defiance of the courts by labor agitators, but concerns the future of every citizen in rights vital under the laws of the republic."

MEDFORD SUPPORTERS OF PORTLAND JUBILANT

With Healey batted out of the box in the second inning, it looks to local fans like Portland had found a way to meet the slim one's slants. For the second time this week the Beavers have met Henley's speedy ones with their weightiest war clubs and the result has been disastrous for the tall lad from the south.
