and the passengers at that moment attempted to aid Reimer and were beaten into insensibility with revolvers. The bandits then robbed the unconscious men. When West and one of the passengers regained their senses they were ordered by the robbers to start the car at full speed for town. As the car shot ahead the robbers leaped off. No trace of the robbers has been found.

the regular leaders plainly that everything indicates that the next house may be democratic and that it will be necessary to force through legislation at top speed. Mr. Taft refuses to discuss Roosevelt's western trip. He says, in effect, that it is none of his affair. His associates are manifestly disturbed and privately complain that "Roosevelt talks too much as though he were still president." They assert that there was no good reason for the western trip unless it was undertaken to start a T. R. boom for 1912. The politicians at Taft headquarters are unmistakably disgruntled by the 55 reporters who accompanied Roosevelt, while only 25 accompanied President Taft on his famous "swinging around the circle."

the touch of a button may make the entire legislative machinery dance to their music. "Mr. Hawley says he will "be with the organization" of the next house. Evidently, he, he has an understanding with the standpatters as to how the next House is to be organized. He says no "understood" before he left Washington that Cannon was to be dropped. Will Mr. Hawley vote for Victor Murdock or some other insurgent for Speaker, or will he vote for Payne, Dalzell or some other leader in the ranks of Standpatters, who want to rivale the tariff up-hill with Standard Oil, the Rubber trust and United States Steel corporation interests, in the foreground. Will he vote with the progressives or with the Cannon crowd. "And there are other issues, I am in favor of direct nomination of candidates for office, and Mr. Hawley opposes it. He is the creature of the assembly. I believe in direct election of United States Senators, and Mr. Hawley does not. He refused to go on record on this subject when the Grange put the question to him in 1908. This was when Ormsby McHarg was trying to force Oregon legislators into a caucus to compel them to break their pledges to vote for the people's choice for Senator. Direct legislation, nominations, and election of U. S. Senators all carry the government closer to the people. "Cannonism" would hold the people at arms length while the political boss controls conventions, assemblies and legislatures. Congressman Ellis, of the second district, accepted his opponent's challenge, and a discussion was held at Freeport, Oregon. Mr. Ellis immediately thereafter called off the series of debates planned because of "important business." "Mr. Hawley, more cautious than his colleague, will not consent to public discussion. The question of the relative ability of men to debate and argue is not caused by these challenges, nor by their acceptance or refusal. The question of principle is raised. Standpattism cannot stand before the onslaught of progressive ideas. Mr. Hawley's safety in this campaign depends upon silence and extreme care. The silence must not be awakened. California woke and standpattism was overthrown, Washington is feverishly active and the insurgent's triumph is at hand. "There is vitality in the issues raised by the Insurgents. They appeal to the people. They send me to the polls without organization, for there is vitality in the Insurgent's plea. Not only will Congressman Hawley not debate, but he will refuse to deliver addresses. Some troublesome auditor would be sure to ask him how much was added to the cost of men's boys' and youths' clothing in the State or Oregon alone by the recent so-called revision of the tariff, and he would be compelled to hear the answer forced upon him, "eight hundred thousand dollars a year." He might have to face the truth that he voted for a tariff bill that raised the duty in the interest of the rubber trust in which Senator Aldrich, was a direct beneficiary. He will be confronted with the fact that the United States steel corporation stock went up thirty per cent in the world's market at once and laborer's wages in the steel mills did not advance a hair's breadth. He would be compelled to admit that the great mass of consumers in this country were forgotten, until the Insurgents forced an amendment to the railroad rate law, extending the powers of the Interstate Commerce Commission in the regulation of rates. "Abraham Lincoln waged a war to free the black men. The contest now on is to disenthrall the white man and lift him to a place of prime importance in the government. As surely as the former ended in victory, so will the latter end in triumph. "The people of Oregon are alive and they will see to it, I am sure, that a Congressman who represents the highest and best impulses of the Republican party and the awakened conscience of the American people is elected to represent them in Congress. Mr. Hawley, while possessing good ability and high character, is a standpatter, and does not fill the bill. The virility of the principles for which I bodies them, and without these principles the strongest man would be a weakling. The people of the First Congress face the living issues. The day has gone by when a man can run for Congress under cover. "Cannonism" is the great issue, and it will be overthrown. President Roosevelt has just now taken his position at the head of the forces now marshaled for its overthrow. The next Congress will be progressive, and the end is near. Oregon will line up with her sister states, California and Washington, for she is progressive.

GOT UP EARLY.

When the Barnum and Bailey Greatest Show on Earth is packed away for the night and speeding over the rails to its next point of exhibition, it lives in a rolling home over a mile in length. This wonderful train is divided in five sections. It is a congress of nations on wheels, a Noah's Ark of animals and a world's fair of a thousand charms. When the show lies spread out for a day's business it covers 14 acres of ground. Over it waves a sea of canvas, spotted with ten thousand flags and banners. The spirit of P. T. Barnum, the greatest showman who ever lived, still animates its faultless policy. The wonderful system of James A. Bailey, that has made the handling of the gigantic proposition possible, is still in evidence, urging it on from year to year to better and grander achievements.

27 Cars Reported Before. 3 Shipped Yesterday

30-- Carloads of pears shipped from the Burrell orchard so far this season, and more to come.

Results are what count. The Burrell orchard has been turning out train loads of fruit for the past ten years. Hundreds of acres of the best varieties of both pears and apples, just coming into full bearing, are being cut into blocks in size to suit, and offered for sale.

No Part reserved

Even the old bearing orchard will be cut into small blocks and sold at a price that will enable it to yield returns of from 25 per cent to 35c per cent per annum. There are hundreds of acres in orchard as good as the Burrell, but certainly none any better. The Burrell orchard is only two miles south of Medford, 100 feet higher elevation than the city, has perfect drainage, all of it properly tilled, only 1320 feet from Voorhies sidetrack where fruit is all loaded and where the motor car stops every trip. If you want something in the top-notch class, come and see this orchard. We want good, strong people. Prices are high enough and the terms are half cash, balance in 1, 2 and 3 years, at 6 per cent.
