

THE LAND OF OPPORTUNITY

WHERE A MAN OF MODERATE MEANS MAY BUILD FOR HIMSELF A REVENUE PRODUCING HOME THAT WILL PAY FOR ITSELF IN THREE YEARS.

Los Molinos Irrigated Lands

A 20-acre tract of this rich land, with the abundant water supply, will make you independent.

CONSIDER THESE ESSENTIALS

A Charming California Valley.
An abundant never failing water supply.
Dark Loamy Soil, 15 to 30 feet in depth.
Perfect drainage.
Climatic conditions ideal.
Cheap transportation by water, rail and electric line.
Cash markets and highest prices for everything produced.

Good schools.

Diversity of crops. Every kind of fruit you can mention, citrus as well as deciduous; two crops of most all kinds of garden truck and berries can be grown here.

AND ALFALFA—This is its natural home. Cut six times per year and yields from 10 to 12 tons per acre.

Consumption Surpasses Production

Markets are certainly not lacking for farm products in these days if all the statistics published are accurate. Mr. Hill says that cattle on American farms are 4,000,000 less than three years ago, and hogs 7,000,000 less for the same period. Everything the farm yields is in the highest demand, with consumption surpassing the production. This is the favoring conditions which should take our people back to the farm. Our people will find the greatest source of profit that has ever been opened to any agricultural class in the world.

These lands, including a deeded perpetual water right, sell at $150.00 per acre, one-fifth down and balance in four equal annual payments. I make several trips each month to show these lands and will be pleased to have you join our next party. The expense is small and we will be gone only a few days. If after investigation you find that a single misrepresentation has been made, I will willingly refund your expenses.

IT IS IMPOSSIBLE TO FIND A REGION WHERE THE RETURNS ARE MORE GENEROUS.

Call at the office and let me explain the project in detail, or write for free booklet and literature.

To Change Size of Paper Bills

Will It Make the Elusive Yellow and Green Backs Any Harder to Get?—Reform is Planned With Currency.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—For more than a year the Treasury department has contemplated a systematization of the designs of the United States notes and gold and silver certificates and a reduction in the size of the paper currency. No less than 9 miscellaneous portraits and historic designs appear upon the issues now current. These serve no useful purpose in the identifying the denomination of notes with the designs they bear nor have they been selected according to any scheme of historical balance. As an example of existing confusion, the present dollar certificate now bears the portrait of both Lincoln and Grant. The plan is to reduce these 19 miscellaneous designs to nine, selecting the portraits with some reference to importance and position to their subjects in American history and using the same portrait on the same denomination throughout. The face would be placed in the center of the note and would at a glance help the bearer in determining the value of the certificate.

For example, the dollar note, which is the most common circulated, might bear the portrait of Washington, as the emancipation of the country, the founder of its government; the $2 note, that of another famous American, and so on for all the separate denominations.

Such reclassification is believed to be the more advisable, as it will enable cashiers of banks and other expert money handlers the more readily to detect counterfeiters, experience having clearly shown that it is impossible for the most expert engraver to reproduce the exact face-smile of a portrait, even if the face has been engraved by himself.

The class to which the note belongs, whether gold or silver certificates or United States notes, may readily be determined by varying the color in which the seal on the right side of the note and the denomination number on the left are printed. The printing of these will continue to be done by a separate process hence the distinction suggested involves no extra expense. The name of the class will be repeated as many times on the face and the back of the note as at present.

The department might feel warranted in proceeding to change the designs of the notes without awaiting the suggestions of banking institutions but a somewhat different proposition is presented in the plan to reduce the size of the note to 6 by 2 1/2 inches. The department recognizes that public convenience is more or less involved in the system to which most of the cash drawers and pocketbooks of the country is adapted hence it is disposed to welcome criticism and suggestions from bankers and business men before attempting any radical change.

Under authority of Secretary MacVeagh a special committee of treasury officials have been at work for months upon the details involved in the change of the designs and the suggested reduction of the size of the paper currency.

The committee has canvassed with candor the advantage of and the objections to the plan. Discussing the details of popular interest involved, Secretary MacVeagh makes the following statement:

"I am hopeful that the public will consider favorable, as the Treasury department is inclined to favorably, the economies and other advantages which would result ultimately from the use of a somewhat smaller paper currency. The present size of paper currency is 3.04 inches wide by 7.28 inches long, and it has been suggested that our notes be reduced to 2 1/2 inches wide by 6 inches long, the same size as the Philippine currency which has proven unqualified success—and a size which, when it is not brought into direct connection with the present note, would not to most people, present a noticeable change. From the treasury point of view, the proposed reduction would result in a saving to the government in a year $612,603. This economy would be gained from several sources. For example, we would print five notes where we print four now, and the increased production of 25 per cent more notes with the same labor as at present, carried through all the various processes of wetting, examining, drying, counting, numbering, sealing, separating, etc., would save more than $200,000 a year. The saving in the cost of paper would be almost $90,000, and the decrease in the cost of plate printing would amount to almost $270,000. These with a possible reduction of the force in the redemption division of the treasury's office, due to the smaller number of notes redeemed because of the longer life of the smaller note, represents the chief items in this estimate of $612,600.

"The temporary reduction of force so far as it concerns the personnel of the Treasury department, may be disregarded, I think, for we have already instituted, in adopting other new processes, the policy of filling vacancies from the inside instead of the outside. The disturbance of our forces would be very slight and all employees dropped would be taken care of quickly, if not at the start. It must be borne in mind that the business of the government is growing all the time and that hundreds of vacancies occurred in the Treasury department last year, and we can usually avoid personal hardships in the case of employees who
