"All the world will help a hustler, and you know 'tis true; Make a noise like a hustle and the world will help you."

—From the Lyrics of the Contest Editor.

A great number of popular young women who are putting in leisure days in securing subscriptions and gathering voting coupons from the Mail Tribune are going to be satisfied with nothing less than the great five-passenger Buick touring car which is the grand prize. The contest is an easy and quick way of securing a valuable car, something to yield pleasure and delight for a lifetime and to be enjoyed by every member of the family.

The young woman who wins and an automobile or piano this way wins it by her own efforts, her own activity, popularity and ambition.

Every mail brings in votes to the contest manager, and the doors of the office are kept constantly swinging by voters who go in and out casting ballots for their favorite candidates in the race. The contest is certainly gaining ground day by day and no one can anticipate what height this good-natured tug of war will attain. Certain people of Medford and adjacent territory are directly interested in the outcome of the contest and before another week has elapsed the other 50 per cent will be into the contest as deeply as the candidates and their friends are today.

The lowest candidate in any of the two districts, who has not done a thing up to this time, could start now and make a try for the grand prize five-passenger Buick auto and her case would be far from hopeless if she had friends and energy. She could land at once in first place with the votes that less than six year old yearly subscriptions would get her.

In all districts there is a golden opportunity for any candidate to win a valuable prize. The conditions in these districts are such that any candidate no matter how low she may be in the list at present, could land on the foremost position with the votes she would receive from less than six yearly subscriptions.

Here is material to think about. Just figure it out for yourself on any basis in compliance with the voting schedule and see if it is not worth while getting into the game. A little figuring may do a whole lot of good. Here is an unthought-of chance for candidates who are down in the list.

Here is the opportunity to make your list of acquaintances valuable to yourself. But one requirement is made of you, and that is: Get busy.

By looking over the standing of the contestants in the different districts it will be noticed that great changes have taken place since yesterday. Especially is this true in the district outside of the city, and other surprises are in store for the districts later.

This may not occur to you, but even if one aspirant does get a few thousand votes in the lead of her competitors in a certain district it must not be taken for granted that the race is won, and perhaps the young ladies who are apparently reposing in quiet near the bottom will be the ones to creep unawares and carry off the prize. Such things have been done and many a race has been lost by overconfidence. Don't let rumors influence you one way or the other. It is often the case that a candidate or her friends will hear that such a one has secured a few years' subscriptions. These rumors usually are false, as the secrets of this office are not aired to inquirers, and the reports are therefore started in hopes that the other young ladies of this district will become discouraged and stop their efforts. Such rumors should only be the goal to better things.

Open Events.

For the benefit of those who are not able to get to this office during business hours, the Contest Department will be open every evening until 9 o'clock.

The Greater Oregon Home Rule Association OR The Political Central Committee of the Brewers, Distillers and Saloons.

All good citizens stand for a great-er Oregon. To a patriot it seems ridiculous that a few should form an association to stand for a greater Oregon, and make as their present supreme object the settling forever of the saloons upon the state in defiance of the wish of a majority of her citizens. H. C. McAllister is the general manager of the Greater Oregon Home Rule association and in his letter sent to those who are to secure new members, he says: "It will probably be necessary for you to explain to each prospective member what we stand for; therefore, don't forget that our efforts at the present time are all directed towards the successful passage of initiative bill number 325, giving each town and city in the state exclusive power to regulate or prohibit the liquor traffic as it sees fit within the municipality."

If this should carry it will make it impossible for the farmer to have a vote on a saloon's existence. It disfranchises the farmer in regard to an institution that in its production of crime burdens him with taxes, and threatens the very life of his boy and girl. An institution that strikes at a farmer's pocketbook and a farmer's home is an institution at which the farmer has a right to have a chance to strike back. The "Greater Oregon Home Rule association asks the farmer to disfranchise himself on this vital question by giving each town exclusive power over the saloon irrespective of county or state.

Our forefathers went to war with England because England insisted on the exclusive right to tax Americans without giving them a vote in the imposing of the tax. The Greater Oregon Home Rule association asks a greater tyranny than that upon the farmer by disfranchising him from having a voice on the existence of a saloon in his town; for a saloon not only makes taxes for the farmer to pay but also strikes a destructive blow at his home. The "Greater Oregon Home Rule association" is a brewers', distillers' and saloon association under a fair name. The whiskey business went into council together to deceive the people, and devised this association.

To further accomplish this they decided that the word should be sent out that no one engaged in the liquor traffic could become a member. This was to blindfold the people to the real purpose of the association.

H. C. McAllister was employed as general manager of the "Greater Oregon Home Rule association" and is traveling the state in the interest of brewers, distillers and saloons to secure this exclusive whiskey power to towns and cities.

To prove this read the membership card which says that this is "particularly" what they are after; and in his letter he says, "Our efforts at the present time are all directed towards the successful passage of this measure." Not only does the Greater Oregon Home Rule association in the pamphlet of issues sent to all voters by the secretary of state make the argument for the exclusive whiskey power to be given to towns, but it also makes the argument against the prohibition amendment and the prohibition law. It has not a word to say on any other issue. It is not good evidence showing that the "Greater Oregon Home Rule association is a whiskey association? That the Home Rule button with numbers 325, 343, and 345 is a whiskey button? And that the measure giving exclusive whiskey power to towns is a whiskey measure? Last Saturday the Morning Oregonian had this on the editorial page under "Intemperance and Its Causes": We are not trying to defend the American saloon. In its present condition it is indefensible. The Oregonian has always opposed prohibition, but its opposition is greatly weakened when it admits that the saloon is indefensible as it is today. This is all that we claim and we ask the people to hold the right to banish the saloon in their own hands. It is too dangerous an institution to delegate the power over it to the towns only. Vote for the prohibition amendment and the prohibition law, and put the saloon out of Oregon. The Oregonian says that the cause of drink is poverty. Let us see: In Jackson county lives an honest, industrious wood chopper. Last winter he saved $253. One day this last spring he came to Medford to get his money all together and to put it out at interest. With the $253 in his pocket he went into the saloons in Medford, and when he came out he had not one cent of his hard and honestly earned money. This is a true story. What was the cause of his poverty? Today he is working, well fed and a happy man away from the saloons, laying up more money for the saloons to rob him of if we do not close them up by voting them out of the state. They are indefensible. The whiskey association (The Greater

- WHO IS GUILTY?
1. The man himself for taking the first drink?
 2. The saloonkeeper for selling him liquor?
 3. The legislative bodies who make the laws authorizing the sale of liquor?
 4. He who votes for the man who makes such laws?
 5. He who lets his building or property for saloon purposes; aiding or abetting this business in any way?
 6. Those who sit quietly by and fail to use their vote, voice, pen, money, time and influence against the liquor business?

THE ESSENTIALS of an Orchard Platting Proposition for a Home or an Investment are

Good Soil, Good Location And a Price WHICH GIVES THE OTHER FELLOWS AN OPPORTUNITY TO MAKE A PROFIT

We have a 200-acre tract between Talent and Ashland, located on the main road, with about 75 acres planted to pears with peach fillers. Stock and machinery go with the place. The price per acre is about half what others are asking for similar tracts, and we can make very easy terms. If you want a platting proposition you should not overlook this. It is priced low for a quick turn. If interested let us show you this property.
