

WIFE AND CHILDREN MUST DIE UNLESS OUTLAW SURRENDESS

Machine Gun Will Be Used to Riddle Cabin in Which Murderer Has Sought Refuge Unless He Gives Himself Up.

WINTER, Wis., Oct. 4.—Armed deputies today surrounded the cabin of John Deitz and demanded his surrender. Unless he comes out, the officers have determined to fire volley after volley at the cabin, regardless of the fact that the wife and three children of Deitz are within. The officers are planning to bring up a machine gun to shatter the little cabin. Deitz, the deputies claim, is an outlaw.

The cabin is situated near Cameron Dam, and the determination of the authorities to storm it and capture Deitz followed his boast that he would go to Winter and kill every man who took part in an ambushade which resulted in the fatal wounding of Myra Deitz, 23, and the wounding and capturing of one of her brothers. Another brother escaped. Myra Deitz is dying today in the Ashland hospital.

Deitz has had trouble with a lumber company. The company claimed the homestead on which Deitz lives. He refused to move and said he would repel any attempt to force him to vacate.

The lumber company sought the aid of the law and the deputies were sent to his cabin. One after another of the deputies went to Deitz' cabin and talked to him, and came away again. None of them had the courage to serve the warrant.

Then it was decided to use strategy and an ambushade was planned, which resulted in the capture of one of Deitz's sons and the fatal wounding of his daughter. Deitz swore vengeance.

When it was learned that he had threatened to go to Winter and kill the men who had taken part in the wounding of his daughter, the authorities decided to act first. Deputies were sworn in and went to Cameron Dam, where Deitz' surrender will be demanded.

The sheriff will ask Governor Davidson for a machine gun to shell the cottage.

The ministers of the city are behind the move and they have also gone on record strongly favoring the "dry" parade, scheduled for October 22 in Portland.

POLICE HOT ON TRAIL

Giant on the theory that part of its cargo found its way to Los Angeles and was used in the destruction of the Times plant and the attempted dynamiting of the homes of General Otis and F. J. Zeehandelaar. It is a tenable theory that this shipment, or part of it, may have been sent from Alviso to Los Angeles by wagon or automobile.

Several See Launch.
The launch was seen by several persons at Alviso. It proceeded slowly to a wharf near the Lower Bay Canning company, and tied up. The launch disembarked and went ashore. Near midnight Will Clappitt, a duck hunter living near the wharf, heard the men return in an automobile. The cargo, whatever it may have been, was loaded into the machine by the three men, each of whom appeared to be carrying parts of the load.

After several trips between the launch and the automobile the machine was driven away. Clappitt heard no other sound, although when he arose at daybreak the launch was gone.

Think Boat Beached.
Only an experienced navigator, one familiar with the treacherous channels of the Alviso slough, could have guided the launch at night, according to boatmen, and their opinion is that the launch is beached somewhere in the lower bay.

The statements of Clappitt are borne out in part by those of other men near Alviso. A United Press staff correspondent, accompanied by an experienced lower bay man, began a systematic search of the waters of the Alviso slough in a power boat. Alviso lies at the southern extremity of the lower bay. It is connected with San Jose by one of the best roads in the county and from San Jose to Los Angeles is the clear even roadway of the El Camino Real.

Loaded September 22.
The dynamite was loaded on the launch Peerless on the morning of September 22. The launch left ostensibly for "up the river," and probably continued on its way northward until darkness fell, when it may have returned and proceeded southward. Nearly every detail of the description of the two launches tally.

The men at Alviso had heard only the most meager details of the dynamiting of the Los Angeles plant. They had no suspicion of the dynamite cargo taken on board of a peculiarly shaped launch. The men who saw the strange visitor are Martin Jensen, a watchman of the South Bay Yacht club near Alviso; John Hill, a watchman on the Ortleigh dredge near Alviso; Neal Taylor, engineer at the Bayside cannery, and Will Clappitt.

no chance be taken that any portion of a human body be overlooked.

No additional bodies were discovered during the night. It is not believed that more will be found until the mass of twisted girders and steel beams which lie across the section of the basement into which the composing room fell can be removed.

The work of clearing the debris is extremely dangerous. Several times during the night groups of the workers were forced to scurry to safety when a mass of wreckage, loosened by the mining beneath it, crashed into the pit.

Depository Named.
Mayor Alexander has named the First National bank as a depository for the reward funds. The money offered by the citizens for the apprehension of the perpetrators of the crime will be placed there subject to the mayor's demand.

Officials of the gas and electric companies reported today to the police that they have received letters warning them that their plants will be dynamited. The officials profess to believe that the letters were sent by one of their employes to see what effect they would produce. In spite of this, 25 officers of the merchants' patrol were detailed today to guard both plants.

The police today maintained their policy of refusing to talk of their efforts to run down the criminals. After a conference between Chief Galloway and Captain of Detectives Flammer, the latter left the building with two of his men and hurried away in an automobile, apparently equipped for a trip over country roads.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 4.—Postmaster W. H. Harrison admitted today that he had received letters of an alarming nature since the dynamiting of the Times building last Saturday morning. As a result a guard has been thrown about the postoffice and every person who enters the building must pass several watchful plain-clothes men.

"The letters I received," Harrison said, "were not what you might call anarchistic. I don't even think they were threatening, but we are taking no chances."

STOCK MARKET STRONG

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—The stock market was spirited and irregular today at the opening and throughout the day it continued uncertain. Some stocks fell, others rose, but none changed prices materially, the most notable change being Northern Pacific, which dropped 3/4, and Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie, which advanced 5/8. Late realizing sales had their effect on the market. Reading and Chesapeake & Ohio sagged a point. The market closed firm.
