REVOLUTIONARIES' VICTORY COMPLETE

KING MANUEL HAS FLED FROM SHORES OF HIS KINGDOM

LISBON, Oct. 6.—"The royal family has fled from Portugal," was the announcement today of Senor Don Alfonso Costa, provisional minister of justice.

The statement disposed of the story that King Manuel was at Mafra, north of Lisbon, rallying his forces.

Costa asserted that the provisionals are receiving many messages from adherents in the provinces pledging support.

King Manuel escaped safely. This was in accordance with the revolutionary program.

Preferred to Exile Manuel.

The republicans decided that it was preferable to exile Manuel rather than kill him. The leaders know where the deposed king is and have purposely spread conflicting rumors in order to prevent his capture and place them in the embarrassing position of deciding Manuel's fate.

The provisional government is firmly repressing disorders. The only fear expressed is that England may intervene in behalf of the royalists.

A force of circumstances rather than any detailed plans precipitated the coup d'etat of last Tuesday. The plans for revolutionary action had been laid long ago, but the time was not deemed ripe.

Love Affair Started Revolution.

Don Manuel's intrigue with Mile. Gaby des Lisa, however, started the revolution. Then followed the assassination of Deputy Bombarda. Finally last Saturday the revolutionists learned that the Portuguese fleet, assembled in Lisbon harbor, was to be scattered to distant stations, owing to the republican sentiment among the officers and men.

The revolutionists decided to act quickly. Following the death of Bombarda, who was killed by an officer at the instigation, it is believed, of clericals, a mob threw a priest into the Tague river.

The police charged the mob and a regiment of infantry which happened to be passing charged upon the police. Both sides shot to kill. The fleet in the harbor, thinking that the revolution had begun, became alive with mutiny. Royalist friends were overpowered in their quarters aboard the vessels, republican flags were run up and the guns of the warships trained upon the citadel.

Trained sailors were sent ashore by the boatload to join with mutinous troops in attacking the police.

Police, Outnumbered, Flee.

The police, soon outnumbered, broke and ran, the mob pursuing them shooting and cutting down the laggards. The sounds of conflict precipitated a storm throughout Lisbon and republicans everywhere rushed into the streets carrying rifles and grenades which they had concealed in their houses for weeks.

Within half an hour Lisbon was in an uproar, the republicans had rallied behind their leaders and presented a united front to the royalists, who were equally active in massing their forces.

Within the palace the royal family in terror sought the bastions. The fleet, in the hands of the republicans, began shelling the palace. The palace commander signaled to the harbor fortifications to open fire on the fleet. Suddenly the royal ensigns on the forts fluttered down and the green and red flags rose in their places. The guns of the forts were also trained upon the castle.

Royal Family to the Cellar.

Shells from the warships began falling in the vicinity of the palace. The royal family were hurriedly escorted to the cellars out of harm's way, while the lyddite bombs hurtled and exploded above them.

The fighting continued intermittently Wednesday and throughout the night there was a continuous fire. The roar increased toward morning as the revolutionists stormed the palace. Its capture was seen to be only a matter of time, and it is rumored that as soon as this became apparent, the commandant, General Georgias, shot himself.

With all the excitement the republicans succeeded admirably in retaining order throughout the city. Looters were shot down on sight. The provisional government obtained complete control of the telegraph late Wednesday and no news from the provinces is given out.

Eusbio Leo, provisional civil governor of Lisbon, began the organization of a police force today and will relieve the republican troops of civil duty.

Relieving Troops of Duty.

President Braga, Minister of Justice Costa, Minister of Foreign Affairs Bernardino Machado were in conference today, and it is believed they discussed the possibility of intervention by Great Britain. The republicans are elated that the French minister to Portugal called to pay his respects today. They eagerly seek recognition by France and the United States as the republic of Portugal.

The minister of finance, Brazillio Teillas, today conferred with leading Lisbon bankers regarding the monetary situation, urging them to do everything possible to protect Portuguese securities.

To this fact is attributed the light loss sustained by the republicans. Handicapped by the long range guns of the besiegers, the defenders were unable to fight at close quarters and therefore could not use their side arms.

New Flag Thrown to Breeze.

At 9 o'clock the republican flag flew from a new flagstaff on a dismantled section of the palace, the old staff having been shot away.

The news of the fall of the palace caused great joy among the populace, who gathered in the plaza Don Pedro, sang the Portuguese Marseillaise, cheered the republic and the downfall of the king.

It was at first supposed that the royal family had been captured when the palace fell, but it was announced at noon that they had escaped and it is impossible at this writing to ascertain how they managed to evade the republicans.

The most likely version is that the king, disguised as a policeman, was conveyed through a subterranean passage of the palace to safety, and that the queen mother and the dowager queen, Maria Pia, disguised as peasants, were hurried to some foreign legation and later removed to safety.

Estimates of the casualties are still inaccurate. Unofficial estimates are that not less than 50 nor more than 75 were killed, and probably 500 or 600 wounded.

DEFEAT IN NOVEMBER IS FEARED

Republican State Central Committee Hysterically Mending Fences—Declare for Statement One and Direct Primary Law, Covering Assembly.

PORTLAND, Or., Oct. 6.—The declaration of the republican state central committee for the direct primary law and statement No. 1 at its meeting in Portland yesterday afternoon is believed to indicate that the regulars fear defeat in the November elections and are mending fences.

This view of the situation is being taken by the politicians who declare that there was no need of the committee declaring its stand at all, C. W. Nottingham was selected as chairman of the committee.

Frank Boliman of Multnomah county placed the committee in an embarrassing position when he introduced a resolution disclaiming against the holding of state assemblies for the purpose of endorsing candidates. This is one of the issues of the campaign and the assembly idea is being held up by the so-called machine candidates.

The committee, however, succeeded in sidestepping the Boliman resolution by referring it to a special committee which reported that it considered any declaration of party not within the power of the central committee.

A few minutes later the committee declared itself strongly for strict enforcement of the direct primary law and statement No. 1, despite the fact that it had a few moments before asserted that its powers were merely administrative.

Laying Out Depot Grounds.

George W. Boschke, assistant manager of the O. R. & N., accompanied by C. A. Chase, a landscape artist, are laying out the grounds about the new Southern Pacific depot today. The building is to be dedicated October 15.

HEARST SCORNE BY HIS OWN CHILD

Independence League Disregards His Instructions and Refuses to Endorse Republican Ticket—Hearst Due Home Tonight.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Disregarding the wireless message from William R. Hearst suggesting that the Independence league endorse the republican ticket in New York, the league, at their convention here today, repudiated the republicans and proceeded to nominate a ticket of their own. J. J. Hopper was named for governor and Hearst for lieutenant-governor. Hearst will be permitted to fill the remaining places. The vote repudiated the republican ticket 214 to 94.

Hearst will arrive tonight or tomorrow on the steamer Manueta. It is possible that he will be able to force the endorsement of the republican ticket as he had planned.

According to the wishes he expressed in the messages to the convention leaders, Hearst desired the full republican ticket endorsed with the exception of lieutenant-governor, for which place he was to receive the nomination.

MEDFORD DAY AT FAIR TOMORROW.

MISTRESS OF KING GLORIES IN HER ACTIONS

Mile. Gaby Des Lys, Whose Relations With Manuel Brought on Revolution in Portugal, Grants Interview Telling of Her Love

(Copyright, 1910, by the United Press Association.)

VIENNA, Oct. 6.—Mile. Gaby des Lys, in an interview granted the United Press today, glorified her relations with Don Manuel, deposed king of Portugal. The young woman who set the heart of the boyish king aflame is appearing as a dancer at the Apollo theater here. Last night the theater was packed to the doors with persons desiring to see the French woman who wore a sumptuous diamond necklace given her by Manuel.

"Yes, I was Don Manuel's mistress," said she. "I know no disgrace in being a king's mistress, but I consider it an everlasting disgrace to advertise that relationship, glorified as it was, which even court conventionality could not throttle. She Kept Quiet."

"I did not make any capital of my relations with Manuel. I kept quiet and reserved. Recently a variety theater in Paris offered me a huge salary to appear billed as Manuel's mistress, but I refused. The same theater produced a sketch in which I and the king were the chief figures, but there was nothing blamable in that."

"I never asked the papers to call me the 'unwedded queen of Portugal.' I first met the king 15 months ago in Paris, where he was dining. He had been introduced to me after a performance and it was love at first sight."

BRIGHT AND AIRY WAS CINDERELLA

"A Stubborn Cinderella," at the opera house last night, was one of those bright, airy musical comedies that still maintain their popularity with the average theatergoer. The capering of pretty chorus girls to the "lascivious pleasings of a lute" has a charm to soothe the tired nerves of an ordinary business man, and that is perhaps why the heavier problem plays make slower headway. The man with business likes to relax after the strenuous "chase of the nimble nipple."

The leading comedy parts played by Dan Moyses, Lawrence Bringham and Mr. Albertson, were well done and furnished merriment all through the play. The heft of the comedy work fell to the lot of Lawrence Bringham, who assumed the roll of the sculptor. He is a fine-looking young man and plays his part very artistically. Miss Hazel Kirke is a very pretty little lady with a good voice. She acted the part of Lady Leslie in a fascinating manner. Lillian Goldsmith is a cute little sourette, who danced and sang her way into the hearts of the audience early in the evening.

Medford always turns out a crowd of house to everything, good or bad, but we are glad to say that Mr. Hazelrigg furnishes us with a class of attractions that are equal in every respect to the best that Portland and San Francisco get.

SEARCH FOR DYNAMITERS NARROWING

Another Gasoline Launch Figures in Case—Merchants and Manufacturers Have "Protection" Fund of $35,000—Work in the Ruins is Continuing.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 6.—Detectives of the Los Angeles police force were detailed today to search the various Southern California harbors for traces of the gasoline schooner Kate, which has been drawn into the police theory regarding the Times disaster.

The officials believe that the dynamite taken from the Giant Powder company September 23 may have been transferred to the Kate and brought to Los Angeles.

The Kate lay for several days near Visitation, on San Francisco Bay, and according to Captain Burns of the state launch Governor Gillett, the launch Pastime, believed to have been disguised as the Peerless, was seen making several trips to Visitation September 24. The Kate cleared from San Francisco September 25 for the Galapagos islands. She has not been reported since.

Detectives today are investigating at San Pedro, Redondo and Point Loma. The authorities of Long Beach, Alamitos Bay and Balboa also have been asked to assist.

Officers were sent hurriedly to Long Beach late last night upon the receipt of a message from the police stating that a man had been arrested on the municipal pier as he attempted to board a gasoline launch that slipped into the harbor in the direction of San Pedro under cover of darkness. The man was released after being questioned. The launch disappeared from the wharf when the man was seized by the police.

Secretary Zeehandelaar of the Merchants and Manufacturers' association announced today that but 15,000 of the $50,000 reward voted by the association will be used for that purpose. The remaining 35,000 will be used as a "defense fund." He did not state the exact use to which the money will be put.

HUNDREDS FROM ASHLAND TO FAIR

Fourth Annual District Fair is Now on and Splendid Time is Being Had—Tomorrow is Medford Day at the Big Show.

Over 1000 Ashland people passed through Medford this morning on their way to Grants Pass to attend the fourth annual district fair of southern Oregon, which is now on. It is the greatest exhibition of the products of southern Oregon ever held. The weather promises to be all that could be asked for and large crowds are expected all through the fair and even on the first day of the fair the crowd was far above what was expected.

In the Calvert and Paddock buildings is the display of products, and such a display was never seen before. There are apples, peaches, plums, pears, and in fact everything in the fruit line and they are displayed in the most artistic way. There are all kinds of farm products, melons, peanuts, ginseng, and—well, it is impossible to tell what is in this building, it must be seen to be appreciated.

SPAIN ON VERGE OF GREAT CIVIL WAR; MONARCHY TOTTERS

BARCELONA, Oct. 6.—Constant clashes between police and republicans are occurring today. The situation is rapidly getting beyond control and as a last resort Madrid has been asked to send reinforcements.

Similar conditions prevail in other cities. The republicans have hoisted their flags everywhere and the police are busily engaged in tearing them down. Enthusiasm over the success of the Portuguese revolutionists is very great.

Troops Ordered Out.

MADRID (via Mendaye, France), Oct. 6.—The flower of the Spanish army has been ordered to the Portuguese frontier.

Madrid is seething with excitement over the news from Portugal and the republicans assert that it foreshadows an attempt on the part of King Alfonso's minister to aid Don Manuel against the republicans of Portugal.

Republicans here predict that if this attempted civil war in Spain will be precipitated. On the other hand, Alfonso fears that the success of the republican armies in Portugal will mean the overthrow of his power, and it is asserted that he has been counseled by his ministers to fight to the last ditch.

Alfonso Will Fight.

That Alfonso will pursue this course is not doubted and it is therefore understood that he will assist Manuel with strong Spanish force in order to frighten the Spanish republicans into inactivity.

The republicans are overjoyed at the success of their Portuguese brethren. A radical club where the Marseillaise was sung was raided last night by the police and a small riot followed. Afterward the radicals gathered in the streets, cheering the success of the revolutionists.

Formidable military preparations have been made throughout Spain for a great uprising of the revolutionists, supported by the clerical faction that is bitterly opposed to the king and his cabinet.

Trouble Sure to Break.

Plans for a great demonstration by the anti-royalists have been discovered by the government spies and should they be carried out there is bound to be the utmost difficulty in handling the trouble makers.

There is no concealment of the fact that the demonstrations are to be of an anti-dynastic character, and, to make matters worse, counter demonstrations are planned by anti-clericals and a clash of the factions would provide opportunity for the precipitation of a revolution.

Word comes from Barcelona that the republicans have become extremely restive and there is a growing suspicion among the clericals there that King Alfonso plans to indefinitely postpone the settlement of affairs between the church and the state.

The law does not require the cortes to sit more than one day in a year.

The impression prevails that after the cortes has transacted the business of the king adjournment will be taken before the church question can be brought up. The cortes convenes today, but owing to the disturbed conditions in the capital, it is probable the convening will again be postponed.

LOOKS LIKE VICTORY TO ILLINOIS WOMEN

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—Mrs. Katherine McCulloch, executive superintendent of the Illinois Equal Suffrage association, declared today that prospects for the passage of equal suffrage legislation in the Illinois house and senate looks brighter than at any time previous.

According to Mrs. McCulloch nine republican and five democratic nominees for the state senate and 22 republicans and 18 democratic nominees for the state house have made favorable replies to appeals sent out by the association for support of the enfranchisement movement. Of 25 holdover senators, Mrs. McCulloch asserted that 11 are for equal suffrage.

BODIES OF TWO SAILORS RECOVERED

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Two bodies of sailors from the battleship New Hampshire drowned when the whale-boat in which they were returning to their ship overturned Saturday night were recovered from the Hudson river today. Through tags on their uniforms they were identified as R. Karl, fireman, and J. White, seaman.

PLAGUE SHIP IS DETAINED IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Rudolph Sellitch, a coal passer on the steamer Von Moltke, which arrived in port today, was stricken with cholera and the liner is detained in quarantine as a result.
