The Saloon Kills Business

W. R. Stubbs, governor of Kansas, speaking as responsible head of the state of Kansas, at Chicago, March 27th, 1910, defended prohibition from every standpoint of the state's best interests. He is the republican governor of the state and in his address he refutes every argument of the man who has sold out to liquor. He throws down every argument of the whiskey bunch which parades under the name of Greater Oregon Home Rule association. Here is in part what Governor Stubbs says:

"Prohibition has worked wonders in the private credit of the state. Grocers and butchers tell me that men who were 'dead beats' under the drain of the saloons have become debtors of reliability and standing, and had accounts as a rarity.

"I assert that the charge of higher public expenses, on account of prohibition is particularly untrue. A bulletin issued by the census department makes a really wonderful revelation in favor of prohibition. It shows that the general and special service expenses in Wichita are $8.21 per capita, in Springfield, Ill., $11.88 and in Chicago $15.66. The same bulletin shows the cost of the police department at Wichita to be 58 cents per capita, at Springfield $1.26 and at Chicago $2.64. From another authoritative source I get it that the cost of the police and militia establishment in Kansas is only $402,000 annually while it is $4,790,000 in Illinois—12 times heavier with only about four times greater population.

"The brewers are wasting their time—and their money too—in speeches and documents trying to arouse public sentiment with reference to pauperism in Kansas. Fifty-seven of the 105 counties of the state have no inmates at their poor farms. Cook county alone, with all its palatial saloons and vibrating breweries has a little over five times as many paupers than we have in the entire state of Kansas. The good state of Illinois has just 100 per cent more paupers than Kansas, according to population. And I venture to say that Illinois would have still more were it not for the temperance progress she has made during the past few years. I have heard a great many mean things said against prohibition but I have never before heard the charge that it causes pauperism.

"I assert that prohibition is the best friend of education and that wherever temperance is observed the school shows its highest and best development. We have in our permanent school fund the sum of $10,000,000 drawing interest. With this we buy the municipal bonds of our own state, deeming them the best security. The annual interest on these bonds is enough to pay the present entire state debt. We have recently established normal courses in 100 of the 105 counties. During the last nine years the enrollment of the state university has risen from 1,150 to 2,063; the normal from 1,630 to 2,860 and the agricultural college from 870 to 2,192. Besides that, 9,000 young men and women are attending denominational institutions and 4,548 attending business colleges. In all 21,000 young men and women are attending colleges within the state. The value of public school property has advanced from $10,000,000 to $16,000,000. As a part of our educational system we have nearly 700 newspapers and magazines and I am told that 98 per cent of them will not publish the advertisements of a brewery or a liquor house. During the first twenty years of prohibition illiteracy was reduced 49 per cent. It is 40 per cent lower than Illinois and the next census reports will give the state first place in education. The youth of Kansas has his eye fixed far above the horizon of the saloon.

I assert that the death rate in Kansas is lower than that of any other state or nation on earth and that our condition in this respect is due largely to our temperance policy. The annual death rate in the state is only 7 1-2 to every 1,000 inhabitants. This is so low that the government of the United States still refuses to believe in its accuracy, although it has been thoroughly investigated and verified. I have a letter from the secretary of our board of health which will show you how prohibition is prolonging life and building up vigorous health conditions in Kansas. It will show you that with every advance made in temperance original cases of tuberculosis decrease materially. Dr. Crumline tells me that ten years of our present conditions and careful enforcement of sanitary regulations will eliminate entirely native cases of consumption.

"I challenge defenders of the saloon to show twenty-five cities in any commonwealth of the union where the percent of home owners is greater and the per cent of renters smaller, where commercial and financial business is more prosperous and where residence and business property alike are in better demand, where real estate values have increased more rapidly, where greater progress has been made in public improvements, where men, women and children are better educated, better mannered, better clothed and better fed than in the largest twenty-five largest cities in Kansas. If they cannot do this their argument in defense of the saloon from an economic standpoint must forever be discredited in the minds of thinking men. Their house is built upon the sand."
