"Dear Sir: Ten thousand people of Medford extend cordial greeting to the delegates of the National Bankers' association, and their families, passing through this city on their return from Los Angeles to their distant homes.

Ex-Mayor David S. Rose of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, one of the greatest orators the country has produced in recent years, will speak in this city at the Opera House on Sunday Evening,

October 16th, 1910.

"The Fallacies of Prohibition"

Mr. Rose was elected mayor of Milwaukee five successive times, has been prominently mentioned in connection with the vice-presidency and is known the country over as one of its foremost speakers. He presents an argument that every prohibitionist and church member should hear.

"The pleasure of welcome is marred only by the disappointment of being unable to offer the hand of friendship and good will in person, and to show to the representative wealth of this great nation, the creative work and energy of the highest class of American citizenship in transforming from a small village of 1,700, a modern up to date hive of activity of 10,000 in less than six years.

"We are still small, but we have our seven-league boots on. Our bank deposits are in the ratio of $300,000 for every man, woman and child, and increasing 10 per cent per month.

"Our scenery is great and glorious, but our reasonable rainfall is greater in its commercial value, and its powerful influence is again transforming into golden twenties the largest fruit crop in the history of our resourceful valley. We are shipping 750 cars of choice apples and pears in 1910, and the contents of each of the 400,000 boxes are fit for the tables of bankers and kings.

"We again bid you welcome and farewell.
