

MEDFORD MAIL TRIBUNE

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER PUBLISHED DAILY EXCEPT SATURDAY BY THE MEDFORD PRINTING CO. A consolidation of the Medford Mail, established 1859; the Southern Oregonian, established 1892; the Democratic Times, established 1872; the Ashland Tribune, established 1896; and the Medford Tribune, established 1894.

CREDIT WHERE CREDIT IS DUE.

CONGRESSMAN HAWLEY has had issued a circular letter, sent every voter of the district, entitled "Credit Where Credit Is Due." It is intended as a reply to the Medford Mail Tribune, but in no sense is a reply.

Mr. Hawley states that he has received the commendation of Presidents Roosevelt and Taft for "casting his vote for legislation enacted during the present congress."

Mr. Roosevelt has never approved Mr. Hawley's course in voting blindly for Cannon and the "system" during the present congress. Mr. Hawley publishes a newspaper interview with Roosevelt two and a half years old, in which his course in the preceding congress was commended—but that was before Cannonism became an issue, before the days of insurgency, before the revision upwards of the tariff.

Mr. Hawley states that "Senator Cummins recently made a public utterance in which he commended the tariff act, stating that he would rather have it a thousand times than to allow such policies as advocated by the Mail Tribune to prevail."

Senator Cummins spent the entire winter fighting the Payne-Aldrich tariff and the railroad bill and has unmercifully denounced the tariff, times without number, and those who voted for it, like Mr. Hawley. Senator Cummins is probably not aware of the existence of the Mail Tribune.

Mr. Hawley says he secured an appropriation of $350,000 for the construction of a dredge for Coos Bay and over $880,000 for rivers and harbors of the First district. The appropriations in question were secured in the senate by Oregon senators, part of them after they had been turned down in the house. Mr. Hawley unblushingly takes credit for the work of the entire Oregon delegation.

Mr. Hawley says he secured a session of the federal court in Medford. He had nothing to do with it. It was secured by Senator Fulton, without Hawley's knowledge.

Mr. Hawley says he secured better mail service throughout the county. For nearly two years we have been striving to secure rural routes approved by the department, but haven't seen them yet. Medford never secured free delivery until Senator Chamberlain went after it.

Mr. Hawley says he has done much for Crater Lake national park. Mr. Hawley has done absolutely nothing for it. Oregon senators secured an appropriation for a survey, after it had been defeated, without Hawley's protest, in the house.

Mr. Hawley says he has provided weather service for the orchardists. For two years we have sought a weather bureau, without success. The weather service we have we are indebted to Professor O'Gara for and his personal relations with the department.

Mr. Hawley says he defeated the La Fean apple box bill. To defeat the bill the Rogue River valley and other fruit districts had to send lobbyists to Washington at their own expense.

Mr. Hawley, in return for fighting progressive policies and championing Speaker Cannon, was paid with a slice out of the "pork barrel" giving Medford a federal building, for which we are duly thankful—but the people of Medford are paying many times for it in increased tariff duties and higher cost of living thrust upon them by Mr. Hawley.

If Mr. Hawley believes in giving credit where credit is due, why isn't he manly enough to give it where it belongs, instead of pilfering it from those entitled to it in his inimitable, egotistical manner?

As Senator LaFollette states, Mr. Hawley has ever been a faithful servant of the system. As such he cannot serve two masters—for the servant of the system is not the servant of the people.

THE CROAK OF THE RHINOCEROS BIRD.

THAT journalistic rhinoceros bird of the interests, the Portland Oregonian, that flaps its wing and utters hoarse croaks when anything opposed to corporation rule approaches, and in return is permitted to feed upon the ticks and fleas that adorn the system, is croaking its warnings on initiative bills.

People of Oregon have long ago learned to view with suspicion anything championed by the Oregonian. Experience has taught them that everything that means the enrichment or protection of special interests is favored, and everything tending toward rule by the people or bettering their condition, is vigorously and viciously assailed.

As a rule, it is good public policy to vote against those candidates and measures supported by the Oregonian and vote for those candidates and measures it opposes. Any exception but proves the rule.

On nearly all of the initiative bills the Oregonian advises a vote of no. Only one or two of real merit are approved, such as the good roads bonding act, and the eastern Oregon asylum bill. Some which tend for the upbuilding of machine politics, such as a constitutional convention to abolish the initiative and referendum, and the gerrymandering of legislative districts, are approved. All the rest are vetoed, except a few, in which the Oregonian has not the courage of its convictions, and fears a loss of subscriptions. On these no recommendation is submitted, and in this class are the normal school bills. The Oregonian led the fight on the normals, helped kill them, and yet dare not continue its opposition to higher education further.

Of course the bill prohibiting commercial fishing in the Rogue is disapproved on the grounds: "A local question on the merits of which it is impossible for the ordinary voter to inform himself." Yet the Oregonian is fully informed and knows that this is an effort of the people to curb the special interests that are exterminating the fish in the river.

The Oregonian would not be true to its character of rhinoceros bird if it did not croak for monopoly against the people on this measure.

CLEVER WOMEN

Always Keep Their Hair Fascinating and Free From Dandruff.

It puts radiance and luster into that dull, lifeless hair that many women possess and does it in a few days.

On March 25, 1910, Lulu D. Fix of Rappahannock, Va., wrote: "Parisian Sage is a wonderful hair restorer; it stopped my hair from falling out and stopped my scalp from itching. It also cured the dandruff." Parisian Sage is sold by Charles Strang for 50 cents a large bottle.

SIDNEY STORY SPEAKS MONDAY.

Sidney Story, for 15 years park commissioner of New Orleans, ex-member of New Orleans Municipal Assembly, father of reform measures which have absolutely solved civic problems in his native city, and one of the foremost speakers in Disraeli, will deliver an address in this city at the opera house on Monday evening, November 7th, his topic being "Municipal License Law the Only Cure for the Evils of Intemperance." Mr. Story's address on this subject, delivered several times, has gained him the plaudits of tens of thousands of his listeners.

Mr. Story will discuss facts concerning prohibition and its failure to prohibit. He will suggest initiative bill No. 228, which gives every city and town the exclusive power to license, regulate, control, or prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors within municipal limits, and which also embodies the present local option law. His address will deal principally with the new operative in Philadelphia, which has made the latter city the best governed in the country from this standpoint. YOTE 325 X YES. (Paid advertisement, Oregon News Rule Association.)

NOTICE.

Rogue River Agricultural association will meet at their hall tomorrow afternoon 2 p. m. Professor O'Gara will speak on the subject, "Control Plant Disease." HARRY H. TUTTLE, Secretary.
