

POPULATION OF SPOKANE IS 104,402 IN 1910

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 10.—The population of Spokane, as announced by the census bureau, is 104,402, as against 36,848 in 1900. This is an increase of 183.3 per cent in ten years. Hillyard, J. J. Hill's railroad town, and Fort Geo. Wright, a few miles out from Spokane, having an aggregate population of 5000, were not included in this count. In checking the enumeration quite a few names were dropped because of the work of over-enthusiastic enumerators in the rooming houses and hotel districts. This makes Spokane the 46th city in size in the United States, as against the 100th ten years ago.
