OLYMPIA GETS PROMISE:
HOW ABOUT MEDFORD?
OLYMPIA, Wash., Dec. 28.—W. T. Cavanaugh, postmaster of Olympia, who has just returned from Washington, D. C., announces that before the summer is over work will be started on the new postoffice in this city. Olympia is the only state capital in the United States that has no federal building, and Mr. Cavanaugh says that the authorities conceded that the postoffice, surveyor-general, forestry branch and federal land office in Olympia should have a home of their own.
