HOLIDAY IS BY ALL OBSERVED

Anniversary of the Birth of the Nation's First President is Observed Here in Quiet Manner—No Festivities Mark Passing of Natal Day.

Washington's birthday passed quietly in Medford, no special entertainments or events having been prepared in celebration of the anniversary of the birth of the nation's first chief executive.

The banks paid their tribute to his memory by remaining closed throughout the day and a number of the business houses observed the day in a similar manner.

The city schools, where addresses and the reading of seasonable poems and extracts from the life of Washington were read to the pupils yesterday afternoon, were also closed today and with the exception of a skating party held by the students
