SEEK A DIVORCE BUT MAKES UP

What was thought to be a breach beyond repair was satisfactorily mended by the circuit judge. After being married for 15 years, a prominent family decided to air their troubles before the court. Their trouble dated back to about five years, when the fond wife made demands of the husband for household articles which the husband deemed wholly unnecessary and because he had once refused he was obnoxious to the wife brought out the fact that while she had and could continue to do without such articles but when her neighbors one by one had installed these articles and that her family was just as good as any of them and they were financially able to own such articles she meant to have them or quit his bed and board. Thus decided she took herself home to mother and after a few months of single easiness the husband brought suit for divorce. After a series of questions from the judge the husband agreed to have a talk with his wife and try to patch up the matter. She finally agreed that if he would go to Medford, to Garnett-Corey's Hardware store buy a Toledo range, a 1900 washer, enough Shewin Williams paint to paint their house, that she would let him buy a Fuller Johnson Pump Engine, a bath tub and would take up life with him and be perfectly happy, so the judge informed Mr. Husband that as nearly every one he knew possessed such articles he considered her demands very light. They are happy now at home.

Morrel, go thou and do likewise and avoid such notoriety.
