HIGH SCHOOL TO COOK WITH GAS

Superintendent of Schools Collins Closes Contract With Rogue River Valley Gas Co., Whereby Gas Will Be Used in Domestic Science.

Superintendent of schools Collins closed a deal with new business manager McCullough of the Rogue River Valley Gas Co., whereby gas will be placed in the domestic science room and chemical laboratory of the high school.

Mr. Collins states that in placing gas for fuel purposes in the school he feels Medford can now rightfully claim the distinction of having the most modern and up to date school system in the state.

The work of installing the gas ranges and other appliances will be under the supervision of Miss McDermott who is in charge of the domestic science department of the school.

Miss McDermott will follow the plan of the Pittsburg, Pa., high schools domestic science department, which is said to be the finest installation of its kind in the country.

GREEKS HIRED; LABOR IS SORE

Local Labor Leaders are Investigating Charge That Greek Workmen are Given Preference Over Americans on Local Small Jobs in City.

Charging that local contractors are employing Greeks in preference to Americans for work on various unskilled jobs throughout the city, local labor leaders today are discussing the matter and taking steps to file a remonstrance with the contractors who are said to be using Greeks. Large contractors are not blamed but cement layers and small excavating jobbers are made the point of much adverse criticism.

The matter came to a point Thursday when an American applied for work on a certain job in the city and was told that there was nothing doing. Before he had left the spot however it is said that the foreman put three Greek laborers at work. The matter was called to the attention of certain labor leaders in the city who are investigating the affair.

BROOKS AGAIN IN CITY JAIL

Man Who Thought He Murdered Belle Ellis Was Sent to Asylum and Discharged to Be Taken Back Again—Brooks Says He is Not Crazy.

E. S. Brooks who first broke into the limelight in Medford some months ago when he "confessed" to the murder of Belle Ellis whose body was found alongside the Southern Pacific railroad tracks and was later committed to the state asylum for the insane in at Salem only to be discharged as "cured" is again in the hands of officers. He is at present lodged in the city jail awaiting the arrival of attendants from the asylum who will take him back to the institution. As he was let out on parole by the asylum authorities it will not be necessary to recommit him.

Brooks, who has been in Medford since the asylum authorities allowed him to go, has been under surveillance of the local officers for sometime. He has been "off" several times of late and it was deemed necessary to arrest him on Thursday night after he prowled around the city for hours finally falling unconscious.

Brooks declared that he is not crazy but says that he cannot "control his mind." He has been suffering from insomnia and this is thought to be responsible for his present condition.
