

GIANT PAYING CITY A VISIT

Man of Gigantic Stature Pays Medford Brief Visit—Shoes Worry Him for They Are Built Especially for His Use.

Six feet eight inches tall, weighing 285 pounds and carrying no surplus weight amidehips or elsewhere, Charles Newell of Kentucky, who is a transient visitor in Medford, has been admirably equipped by nature, physically at least, to play the part of Ureus in Quo Vadis. He would even do for the heavy villain in a presentation of Jack the Giant-Killer. From the soles of his No. 15 shoes to the crown of his massive curly head he is the picture of rugged manly strength.

"I got my growth when I was about eighteen," said Newell. "When I was a kid I used to think that I could feel myself grow. I was scarcely ever well while I was growing—used to have headaches and trouble with my stomachs most all the time. I'm 34 now and haven't had a sick day in years."

Least the reader become suspicious that this story is about to metamorphose into a patent medicine recommendation, the limelight will at once be turned on Newell's shoes, which have a general resemblance to twin whaleback steamers. The greatest difficulty that the owner encounters in his wanderings crowd this world of care, and he admits that he has covered some country since he said farewell to the old Kentucky home, in providing proper equipment for his pedal extremities. He states that he has never been able to buy or get a pair of shoes made outside of the large cities, although he is able to keep the balance of his body reasonably well covered by taking fat men's sizes. Right now he is worried about his shoes, and he must soon make a pilgrimage to either Portland or San Francisco, he doesn't care which, to get another pair. He must have his gargantuan tribbles measured, after which the shoemaker must send to the manufacturer and have a special last constructed on which to shape the several yards of cowhide that it takes to make him a pair of shoes. The pair that he wearing at present, which almost convince one that there may have been some truth after all in the nursery rhyme about the old woman of large family who lived in a shoe, are fast approaching the aere and yellow stage. He figures that it will cost him about $60 to get a new pair, counting railroad fare to a place where they can be made and board while the shoemaker is making them.

"Owing to my size," said Newell, "I am unable to ride on the railroad without paying my fare. I am so big that I show up too plain if I ride on top, and I can't crawl into the holes that most of the boys can, so I work a week or two at a place and then buy a ticket as far as I can, and keep repeating the performance until I get where I want to go. I like Medford, and would figure on staying here some time if I thought I could get a pair of shoes here. But I guess it's me for Portland or Frisco mighty soon." And he looked ruefully down at his aging shoes, which, he says, no bootblack has ever tackled for less than two mits apiece.

MRS. LOMBARD IS GIVEN BUT $5

In Providing for Her Children Mrs. Tongue, States That Mrs. Lombard, Well Known Here, Has Enough of This World's Goods.

Mrs. A. E. Reames of Medford is named as one of the heirs under the will of her grand mother, the late Rebecca Tongue, mother of the late Representative Tongue, Oregon's First District, which was filed in probate this week at Hillsboro. Mrs. Tongue bequeathed the 169 acre farm near North Plains, to E. R. Tongue and T. H. Tongue, Jr., who are named as executors of the instrument. To Mrs. Mary Tongue Lombard, wife of Gay Lombard who is a candidate for mayor in Portland, sister of Mrs. Reames, who spent the summer visiting her in Medford she gives $5 in cash, qualifying the bequest with the statement that she loved the granddaughter equally with the others, but believed she had plenty of "this world's goods," without aid from the grandmother. The balance of the estate, after expenses are paid, goes share and share alike to Mrs. Edith Reames, Medford; Miss Bertha Tongue, Hillsboro; Mrs. Elizabeth Freeman, Portland, and Mrs. H. M. Munger, of Portland.

The estate is worth perhaps $30,000 and the farm is estimated to be worth $20,000. One provision of the will is a request placed upon the grandsons, that they provide for the life of James Somerville, who has worked on the grandmother's estate for many years, and who is in feeble health, and that at his death he be given a decent burial.

If Parisian Sage, the hair grower that Chas. Strang guarantees, will not cause hair to grow where the hair is thinning out, nothing on this earth will.

Secretly Married

CAPTAIN AND MRS. CARROLL B. FOSTER.

NEW YORK, May 2.—Miss Ola Wilson, the pretty 18-year-old daughter of John P. Wilson, a wealthy produce merchant of No. 116 Dock street, Philadelphia, and Captain Carroll Baldwin Foster, a Virginia pilot, who lives in Norfolk, Va., departed together from Atlantic City on Tuesday, came to this city, were married and are passing the first few days of their honeymoon at the Prince George hotel.

Mrs. Foster confessed that there was no real reason for a clandestine marriage, but that the romance had appealed to her, and she and Captain Foster had decided to do away with the vexatious delay which the members of the family would probably insist on if they knew she wanted to be married.

ALL WRONG.

The Mistake is Made by Many Medford Citizens.

Don't mistake the cause of backache. To be cured you must know the cause. It is wrong to imagine relief is cure. Backache is kidney ache. You must cure the kidneys. A resident of this vicinity shows you how.

Mrs. William Charley, Grape street, Medford, Oregon, says: "The public statement I gave in praise of Doan's Kidney Pills in 1907 still holds good. I occasionally take this remedy and find that it keeps my kidneys in proper working order. A fall was the cause of kidney complaint in my case. The kidney secretions were unnatural and sometimes I had such acute pains in my back that I could hardly bend over. I did not sleep well and despite the use of plasters, liniments and remedies of various kinds, I continued to suffer. While in that condition, Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my attention and procuring a box at Haskins' Drug Store, I commenced taking them. In about two weeks I felt better and the contents of four boxes made me well; I have recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to many other people."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

WASHINGTON, Bay 3.—Brisk rivalry has arisen between Prineville, Madras, Bend and other places for the proposed new land office for central Oregon. Members of the Oregon delegation in congress desire further information of the wishes of the people of that region as to where the office should be located and what part of the state should be included in the new district if it is created.
