

LATHAM QUILTS FLYING GAME

Says He Will Never Again Fly in an Aeroplane Until the Game is Safer—Quits on Account of His Mother's Wishes.

PARIS, May 4.—"If I am alive today it is because I have had good luck. I never will ride an aeroplane again—at least not until they are vastly more strongly constructed than they are now."

Hubert Latham, returned from America and a trip around the world, flying in China, the Philippines and elsewhere, made this statement here today to the United Press. The reason for his decision comes from the fact that it is his mother's wish. Personally he fears nothing—least of all, death.

"Without bragging," Latham said, "I believe I can fly an aeroplane as well as any of them, but I had many accidents on my trip. I completely destroyed many aeroplanes. I made $150,000 and had it not been for my accidents it would have been a bigger sum than that.

Your American flying men are the best in the world. Within two or three years America will leave Europe away behind in aeroplaning. The next Gordon Bennett cup may be interesting—and possibly the one after that. But from then on I don't expect anyone on this side of the water to get a look in on the race. The cup will go to America and stay there. American aviators claim six months before going into the air. A man is given license to fly here in three weeks. American aviators are daredevils in the air, but they know their machines."

90 BEDS IN NEW SISTERS HOSPITAL

Building Will Be Handsome in Architecture and Will Be Credit in Every Way to City—Conroy Addresses City Dads.

The Sisters' hospital, which is to be built in Medford, will be one of the finest outside of Portland, according to Dr. Conroy, in an address to the city council Wednesday afternoon. The structure will cost between $90,000 and $125,000 to erect and equip and will contain about 90 beds. A number of beds will be installed for the use of those unable to pay full rates and while not entirely charitable, the cost will be very little.

MAN'S UNCERTAIN HEART TO BLAME

So Claims Beautiful Parisian Student Arrested for Obtaining Secret Mobilization Plans From an Officer "To Test His Honor."

COLOGNE, Germany, April 4.—Arrested as a spy and charged with obtaining the secret mobilization plans of the German army from an officer, Mme. Thirion, a beautiful Parisian student, today offered the unusual and romantic defense that she asked for the plans to test the honor of the officer who was suing for her hand. It is not believed that such a defense will hold. Much sympathy, however, has been created for her due to her declaration: Man's uncertain heart is responsible for the grave predicament in which she has found herself.
