

ENTERTAINMENT AT ST. MARY'S GOOD

Miss Josephine Root Carries off Honors in "Patricia" a Drama Depicting Court in Ancient Rome—All are Splendid.

The musical and dramatic program given Thursday evening by the senior pupils of St. Mary's academy was one of unusual interest and merit. The appreciation of the large and attentive audience was repeatedly manifested by the prolonged bursts of applause that followed each successive number.

The piano selections by Misses Maud Newbury and Winifred Flanagan were exceedingly well rendered and the duets wherein four pianos and eight girls combined to produce rarely harmonious selections or the really classic order won for the young music loving listeners.

Drama Patricia. The drama entitled "Patricia" depicted the life of a Christian maiden in the imperial court of mediaeval Rome, and was in fact a portrayal of the chief events in the martyrdom of St. Cecilia and other beautiful young virgins who willingly sacrificed their spotless lives in the cause of Christianity.

Patricia was charmingly interpreted by Miss Josephine Root, whose exquisitely sweet voice and natural histrionic ability put the part in class with the best professional work. The pure, appealing personality of the young maiden was so faithfully sustained throughout the performance that one felt afresh the reality of those terrible yet glorious times wherein so many innocents perished rather than deny their God.

Parts Well Played. Miss Myrtle McKee as Phivia, the Greek slave girl, executed her extremely difficult role with wonderful facility and grace. It is rare indeed to find a young girl possessed of such great ability as Miss McKee displayed in portraying her part.

Miss Althea Kingsbury as Augusta, empress of Rome, was very good. The role was quite suited to her both in personal appearance and a certain forcefulness which well became the first lady of Rome.

Miss Catherine Deuel made a charming Octavia, the emperor's daughter, and delivered her part with a sweet simplicity quite in keeping with the character.

Other Pleasing Features. Little Janice Dodge, as Melissa, the blind dancing girl, as deserving of special mention, for it was no slight accomplishment for so tiny an actress to keep her eyes so carefully and naturally closed. A surprising amount of feeling was also expressed in her few lines as well as in her conduct all during the performance.

There were many other pleasing features which could be mentioned, but we may sum the matter up as a splendid example of school work, where a large number of girls effected a harmonious entertainment, much to the credit of their skillful and painstaking instructors. The spectacular effects were remarkably pretty, careful and artistic management being especially observable in them. The exhibition of work done since the Christmas vacation by the pupils of St. Mary's academy which drew many visitors during the latter part of the week was highly commendable both as to quantity and quality.

Crayon Drawings. The crayon drawings of the juniors made an imposing array, and were chiefly remarkable for their natural and graceful lines due to having been drawn from life, which is the only possible means of acquiring freedom and grace in sketching.

The oils and pastels of the senior pupils were remarkably good, one of a mountain vista and another of a snow scene attracting particular attention.

The handsome Crater Lake pictures, which were also displayed, though not the work of the pupils, are distinctly to the credit of the institution, being the work of the sister who teaches the art students.

Embroidery Exhibit. One room was devoted exclusively to the embroidery exhibit which was very fine indeed. Table linen, towels and pillow cases, all of the finest damask and linens, were exquisitely monogrammed and embroidered in a variety of designs, many of very elaborate patterns which were carefully and beautifully executed. Lovely sets of lingerie were especially admired, some of the nimble-fingered owners of these being no more than 15 years of age.

There were also many handsome cushions and table runners in the colored linens with vari-colored embroidery. The younger children were represented by a brave showing of neat checked gingham aprons which had been industriously cross-stitched for presentation to proud "mamas."

The whole display spoke volume.

CATTLE LOAN FIRM ORGANIZED PORTLAND

PORTLAND, Ore., June 3.—What is considered the most important move in livestock circles since the location by the Swift interests of a big stockyards and packing plant at Portland is the organization of the Portland Cattle Loan Company, which has just been effected. This concern proposes to give financial aid to farmers and stockmen who feed livestock for the Portland market.

It will have a fund of $1,000,000 to loan, enabling farmers to buy cattle for fattening, and will no doubt add largely to the number of livestock brought to this market.

"This company will enable men with hay and grain to buy cattle for feeding purposes," said D. O. Lively, vice president and manager of the Union Stockyards Company. "The great movement of thin cattle from Idaho and Oregon to South Dakota and Utah should be checked. The great sums of money now being sent to the Missouri River country for cattle will stay in the Columbia river basin."

The benefits to come from this new concern will not be limited to any one state but will be distributed throughout the Pacific Northwest and will doubtless give a great stimulus to the livestock industry.
