

GATES DECLINES TO DISCUSS 'ANDY'

Because the Laird of Skibo Is an Old Man John W. Gates Will Not Engage in a Controversy With Him Regarding Interview.

LONDON, June 17.—"The Laird of Skibo" is an old man and I do not care to become involved in any controversy with him, said John W. Gates, steel magnate, in answer to a statement by Andrew Carnegie characterizing Gates as a "broken down gambler."

Gates arrived here today and read with interest the statement given out by Carnegie yesterday at Edinburgh. Carnegie's statement was called forth by assertions made by Gates before the congressional committee investigating the steel trust in Washington.

"I don't want to put dirty words in my mouth," Carnegie said. "This man Gates is a broken down gambler. I have nothing to do with him. When I return to America I will take the stand. I do not know why they want me. Merely for sensation, I presume; but when I have finished the public may judge whether I or this man Gates has told the truth."

Carnegie asserted that he had sold to Morgan merely because he wanted to get out of the business and Morgan made him an offer which was satisfactory. He said he did not own a single share of steel trust stock and had never been in the office of the trust."

"If Carnegie were a man of my strength and my age, I might answer his attack," was the further comment Gates made on the statement.
