SEETHING MASS OF HUMANITY JAMS LONDON

Two Thousand Ambulances, Hundreds of Physicians and Nurses Have Been Engaged for the Casualties Which Are Considered Inevitable.

WORST CONFUSION IN YEARS PREVAILS IN LARGEST CITY

In the Crush of Millions Many Will Be Hurt and Authorities Make Ready.

LONDON, June 21.—In anticipation of the climax tomorrow of coronation week, 2000 ambulances, hundreds of physicians and nurses and all emergency hospitals have been engaged to care for the casualties which are considered inevitable. Already business has been virtually suspended because of the congestion in the streets. Around the railroads stations a massing of vehicles surged today, and the largest city in the world is facing the worst confusion it has known since the celebration of the relief of Ladysmith.

Accidents Certain.
The gigantic preparations made to care for positive victims of tomorrow's coronation pageant indicate that the authorities believe numerous accidents, in the crush of millions expected to try to find places along the line of march, are certain. It was further believed that the authorities are none too certain that the many accidents that have gone up as it were lining almost the entire course with hideous skeletons of bare boards, have been built substantially, and should one of them collapse while the procession is passing and while the throng of spectators stand huddled in their shadow, a terrible catastrophe might occur. Another source of danger dreaded by the police is a possible fire in one of the flimsy structures. Should fire break out in one of the buildings against whose sides some of these stands have been fixed, it is admitted that the police and the troops who are helping guard the city would be almost powerless to prevent an appalling calamity.

Guarding Royalty.
Precautions today were redoubled to guard the entire line of March and to watch the visiting royalties. Special representatives of Scotland Yard made a minute inspection of stands and houses along the streets through which the gorgeous coronation processions will pass. This inspection was made in semi-secrecy to insure the protection of the life of the king and prevent any accident to the royal guests. At the same time forces in the East End, where the recent battle with anarchists was fought were increased and those suspected of any connection with secret or terrorist societies were placed under surveillance.

The coronation robes, jewels and regalia were carried today from Buckingham palace to Westminster abbey. They are there under the special care of the king's liegwards who constantly stand guard over them.

May Go Hungry.
The unexpected congestion of traffic which it was believed could be handled by the London police, no matter how vast the throngs pouring into the city, threatens to cause serious inconvenience in the great rectangle, two and a half miles across and three and a half miles from east to west which will be closed to traffic for two days. In this rectangle, which is in the heart of London's business center, are situated some of the magnificent hotels at which the guests of the coronation are staying. Besides the hotels, the section includes a part of fashionable London, many of whose homes are filled with guests for the celebrations of the week. Most of the hotelkeepers, club-stewards and owners of the homes endeavored to prepare for the two days' cessation of traffic by securing plentiful supplies to last until the ban was lifted. Conditions yesterday, which were bad, and today, which are far worse, played havoc

BRITISH SUBJECT IS EXECUTED

Mexicans May Get In Trouble With England If Reports From Alamo Are Correct—No Regular Trial Was Given.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., June 21.—Reports came from Ensenada today that Patrick Glennon, a British subject, was executed by the Mexicans at Alamo, Lower California, two weeks ago. The belief is expressed here that the British government will act as soon as official reports on the matter are received.

It is reported that Glennon, who has been at Alamo for some time, having mining interests there, was killed at the same time as John D. Carroll and Dr. Foster, two Americans, were executed.

It is not believed here that any regular trial was held at Ensenada. Acting Consul Sawday reported the execution of Carroll and Foster to Washington, and is now on his way to the capital.

SANDRY GIVEN THIS DISTRICT

Will Appoint His Deputies and Be Responsible for Enforcement of the Game Law in Jackson, Josephine, Douglas and Curry.

HAS MADE SPLENDID RECORD IN THE PAST

Will Be Paid a Salary of $1800 a Year and His Expenses by the State.

Sam L. Sandry of Woodville, who has made an enviable record as deputy fish warden in charge of this district, has been appointed chief deputy game and fish warden for Curry, Douglas, Jackson and Josephine counties by the state game and fish commissioner. Mr. Sandry will appoint his own deputies who will be responsible directly to him, and who will hold office at his pleasure. Mr. Sandry will receive a salary of $1800 a year and his expenses. Each deputy will be paid $100 a month and out of this will pay his own expenses.

Mr. Sandry states that each county will have about three deputies working under his direction. He has as yet made only two appointments, L. Platt in Douglas, and Eugene Wright in Josephine. In Jackson county he has not yet named a deputy but is looking over the field with a view of doing so soon. He has received a large number of applications and now has them under consideration.

Mr. Sandry has proven himself to be a splendid warden and his promotion was well merited. He has "cleaned up" conditions on Rogue river and can be counted upon to enforce the law. He is also serving as deputy sheriff under Wilbur Jones.

"I am going to see that the fish and game laws are enforced in this district," stated Mr. Sandry this morning, "and all who violate the law and I can prove it will be prosecuted. I shall play no favorites but will treat all equally.

"I am going to make my appointments tentative at first and try a man before he is given a place permanently. In short, they will have to 'deliver the goods.'"

Twirler In Unique Record.
TERRE HAUTE, Ind., June 21.—Arthur Nehf, the young freshman southpaw pitcher at Rose Polytechnic institute, in the season just closed, made a record which is believed to be unique not only in college baseball anywhere, but in the ranks of professional slabs. He was in nine games, pitching 70 innings, allowing only 17 hits and 18 runs, and struck out 101 batters. He was at bat himself 47 times and of the 22 hits which gave him a batting percentage of .468, four were home runs made by his team. The club won 10 of 15 games.

With his bride Craig is visiting here. During the night the jokers entered the house and confiscated all the man's outer clothing in it. Then they left a note telling Craig he could have his garments provided he wore the barrel which was left at his bedside.

Craig made the journey to the designated spot shortly after sunrise.

GIRL STANDS FIRMLY BY SEE

"He Is My Light," Cries Girl In Defiance When Placed Upon the Witness Stand at Trial of Chicago's Cult Inventor.

MILDRED AND MONA HAVE QUARREL OVER THEIR LORD

Miss Bridges' Memory Proves to Be Very Convenient—Parries All Questions.

CHICAGO, Ill., June 21.—"They may crucify me on the cross of public opinion, place upon my head a crown of condemnation, thrust my sides with spears of malice, but they cannot force from me a single word hurting Mr. See. He is my light."

This was the statement made by Mildred Bridges, high priestess in the "absolute life" cult of Evelyn Arthur See, before she resumed the stand today to testify in the case the state has brought against him on a statutory charge in which the girl is mentioned.

Before the trial was resumed Stephen Bridges, the girl's father, again pleaded with her to desert the founder of the "junior commonwealth," but Mildred could not be induced to change her attitude.

Leaders Quarrel.
That there has been a quarrel between the two "lights" of the cult was apparent today when Mildred snubbed Mona Rees. After the first part of her testimony last night, Mona accused Mildred of having testified in a way damaging to See's case. Today Mildred refused to return Mona's greeting. As she took her place in the witness chair, Mildred smiled at See.

Answering Judge Honore's question, Mildred admitted that she believed See's teachings and that she herself occasionally writes "truths" for use in the "book of truth." Her memory today was very convenient. She could recall nothing damaging when asked questions regarding the "religious rites" practiced at the "junior commonwealth." She admitted that she had a copy of the "book of absolute life," but could not recall reading the passage "Mildred is the light of my house, the house of the Lord, and she shall not depart therefrom."

Parries Questions.
She cleverly parried all questions regarding her relations with See, but admitted that the subject was discussed at the "junior commonwealth." She declared that she and Mona spent their evenings there reading, writing and playing games.

Assistant State's Attorney Burnham cut in on her testimony to ask sarcastically: "Where did you get the light to see the truth that you were reporting?"

"From the source that others get it—from God," the girl answered.

The Bridges girl's testimony is given in the capacity of a witness for the court.

Mildred Trapped.
After repeated contradictions made in her effort to shield See, Mildred was trapped into making damaging admissions, and losing her confident air, sat crestfallen and confused during the rest of the testimony. She denied at first that she had ever called See her husband or addressed him endearingly. She admitted, however, that she, Mona Rees and See had written each other letters while they were living in the "commonwealth."

A letter was then taken from the mass of documents which had been removed from the safe in See's apartments, and Mildred identified it as her own writing. While it was being read to the jury the pretty girl wilted.

"I Do Love You."
"I feel that now I have entered the true spirit of wifehood," the letter said. "I feel that we are on a truer basis than ever before. From this day I will pick up my life and enter the spirit of wifehood and be a true wife. Evelyn, I do love you, and I am trying my best to be what my purpose is. May I fulfill my personal life and may I also fulfill your life. No matter where you may be, always remember that there is a little girl at home loving you—"

$2000 ORE IS UNCOVERED IN STERLING MINE

Three Foot Ledge Carrying Values as High as $2000 a Ton Found—Town Thrown Into Considerable Excitement by Report of Strike.

300 POUNDS OF ORE BROUGHT TO THE CITY

Mine Is Owned by Local Men—Much Development Work Has Been Done On Property.

Bringing several quartz nuggets of almost pure gold, "Italian Dick," a well known prospector of this district, came into town this morning, and proceeded to sell the nuggets.

He had with him over $100 worth of gold. "Italian Dick" refuses to say where he found the gold other than to say it was about three-quarters of a mile this side of the Sterling mine. He said he found it in a clay seam and that there is more of it there.

His appearance with the nuggets, and his selling of them, created considerable excitement.

Ore showing a value of $2000 a ton was uncovered Tuesday afternoon on the property of the Sterling Gold Quartz Mining & Milling company on the Jacksonville divide about nine miles southwest of this city.

The strike was made in tunnel No. 3, which cuts a 20-foot vein of ore giving an average assay value of $27.20 a ton, at a depth of 250 feet. In running a drift in the vein to cut the contact where the diorite enters the slate and junctions with a 20-foot vein showing in tunnel No. 1, a three-foot streak of calcite quartz was cut showing free gold, sulphide and tellurium assaying over $2000 a ton.

Medford was thrown into a state of excitement by the arrival of the news Tuesday afternoon. R. L. Ray, engineer and general manager of the company immediately after the find telephoned to the company's officials in this city telling them to take all stock off the market. This was done at once and great was the suspense until Mr. Ray arrived in the city.

Mr. Ray brought in with him about 300 pounds of ore in which gold can be seen with the naked eye. The ore was on exhibition today in front of the office of H. H. Lorimer, secretary of the company. A large crowd soon collected, exhibiting much interest in the specimens shown.

Reports from the mine have been most encouraging lately. Much confidence has been expressed in its future by local business men. The (Continued on Page 4.)
