AUTO RACE TO EVERYTHING IS

Monday Morning-Will Be One of Principal Features of First Day's Celebration.

One mighty tern the engine of an and consider that the average automobile contains two thousand parts and over and even though some of these parts that have their actual letic club and is doing road work in work do go wrong, the driver may still continue and even though he be running at a disadvantage he still has the same determination to win as at the time of starting.

Professional drivers have to train and futhermore must be mechanics to the extent of understanding their car, its construction and the refain MANY SWIMMERS car, its construction and the refain started as testers in the factories and there is yet an instance to be recorded where any of the American racing drivers have not severed six months or more in this capacity.

Every man in tomorrow's races is a driver and a mechanic, Furthermore every driver knows his car possibly better than any one within miles of here. Every man in this race is in to win. Think of it. The prize will not pay his tire bill, neither will it poy for the time and labor and he and his mechanics have spent in putting this car in shape to show it's best. The question is asked them what will he gain. He will gain the satisfaction of showing the public that an automobile race can be run without killing or injuring everyone that enters and that skillful driving and a cool head can be maintained even though he may be travelling at a speedy clip.

It's not likely that any records will be broken, but everyone expects a good race and a fast one,

The course is 5 miles long and to complete the class race a car will have to make ten laps over the course and twelve laps in the "free for all"-The course is almost equally divided between pavement and county road and this will show to a great extent the endurance of the car and driver.

Taking everything into consideration this race should prove almost as interesting locally as the 500 mile; , ace recently held at the Indianapolis motor speerway. It's time that we've had races here before but it's doubtless that races with the field and classes of cars as are entered for tomorrow have ever taken place in

The free for all has 'em all guessing. Many think that 20 horse power Ford hasn't got a chance with the big Simplex that has 96 horsepower to cut loose. Forget it. Every entry in these races have ample horsepower and are geared high enough to carry them over the course and still stay on the road without throwing the throttle wide open. This is a drivers race and the man with the collest head is the winner. The same applies to the class race barring tire trouble and accidents. All drivers have generally shown to be pretty tevel headed and there is not a wild man among 'em, so when you make your bets consider the driver as the cars.

The course will be in good condition and while it is not expected that any of the cars will attempt to climb telegraph poles or plough up front lawns the public are requested to be away from all the turns and off the curbs. The committee is evideavoring to exercise every effort to prowide for the safety of all concerned and this can only be accomplished with the co-operation of the pub-
