FINED $20 FOR TOTING A GUN

Mexican With Powerful Automatic is Rounded Up by Police—Judge Canon Annexes $20 and the Revolver—Gives Him Lecture.

"Don't you carry another gun while you are in this city. The next man I find with one I am going to send to estate's prison and the next one after that I am going to hang."

With these words Judge Canon put the fear of the hereafter in the heart of Joe Spevus, a Mexican, arrested Thursday night for carrying a gun, and to make the lesson more effective he annexed $20. Judge Canon said several other things to the Mexican and it is extremely doubtful whether he will ever carry another gun in Medford.

A Joan of Arc Leads Forces in State of Morelos in Battle in Which Federalists Are Repulsed With Loss—Revolt Spreading.

YAUTEPEC, State of Morelos, Mexico, Aug. 18.—As a result of a battle between rebels and federalists in which 19 Zapatistas and many federalists were killed, the entire state of Morelos, except the city of Cuernavaca, today is up in arms against the government.

The first battle of the new revolution occurred between a force of Zapatistas men under command of Jose Morales and an advance guard of federalists under General Blanquet. Margarita Nero, the Mexican Joan of Arc, came from Cuautla with a force of 300 to assist the rebels, but after a fierce engagement in which she was slightly wounded in the arm, she was obliged to fall back to the barricades of the city, where the combined forces succeeded in turning the federalists back.

COLVIG BACK WITH LEAGUE IN HIS HAND

Oregon's Booster Host Will Meet at Medford in June—Judge Tells How He Did It—Says It was Easy—Belittles His Efforts.

HANDED A HOT ONE TO YOUNG LA GRANDE ORATOR

D. O. Lively of Livestock Fame, Also Routed by Judge When Latter Gets Riled at Assertion.

"I told them to come to Medford and they will be here in June. That's all there is to it."

In this manner did Judge William M. Colvig, booster-in-chief of the Rogue River valley dispose of his fight at the meeting of the Oregon Development league at Astoria, to have the next session of the league held at Medford. He says he did not have much trouble securing it but had to shut up a few representatives from other towns before the vote was taken.

"One young fellow from La Grande" states the judge, "took occasion to remark upon the beauty of the women in his section. I put a crimp in him by telling him that we did not send men to Washington in order to find a pretty girl to write letters to. La Grande did. That ended him."

"D. O. Lively also took occasion to take a fall out of Rogue River apples saying that more attention should be paid to hogs. He stated that the raising of hogs would lead to a more diversified farming and that this meant a regaining of paradise. When I followed him I told him that man lost his paradise through an apple and would have to regain it through the apple, and furthermore that the Rogue River valley raised the kind of apples found only in paradise. Then I pointed out the fact that the Lord forbade man to eat of the flesh of the swine when he was driven from his paradise. That ended him."

"In fact a bunch of fellows took great delight in stirring me up. Several times remarks about Medford and the Rogue River valley got me on my feet and as I had the dope on them and they knew it it was not hard to rout them."

"We must now get in and welcome the Oregon Development league in splendid shape next June and let them know how it feels to be entertained by a live bunch. Astoria did very well but we will show them a thing or two about the southern end of the state that will surprise them. Other sections are more or less jealous of Medford and the Rogue River valley and say that we are over estimating ourselves. We'll show them what we have here and put an end to that sort of thing."

"I believe that the meeting just closed will bear much good fruit. Many matters of importance to the state at large were discussed. On the whole it was a very successful gathering of the state's leading boosters."

Nye of Minnesota, who earlier had declared that he would favor overruling the veto, said from the floor of the house that, in view of the president's arguments, he had decided to vote against the bill. Cooper of Wisconsin followed and announced that he would support the veto. WASHINGTON, D.
