GRUNSKY OPENS PORTLAND OFFICE

Medford Expert in Irrigation Assigned to Conduct Investigations in Districts West of Cascade Range for Department of Agriculture.

PORTLAND Aug. 21.—The United States department of agriculture has recently assigned one of its experts in irrigation, H. W. Grunsky of Medford, Or., to conduct a series of investigations in one or more of the many promising agricultural districts east of the Cascade range.

The irrigation investigation office has gradually extended its field of operations from small beginnings, 15 or 20 years ago, until now it has a corps of trained engineers invading each of the states west of the Mississippi river as well as many of those east.

Of all the offices and branches of the department of agriculture there is perhaps none more directly helpful to the condition of the individual farmers and the districts in which it operates than this office. Connected with the office are Engineers Don H. Bark, in Idaho; Frank Adams, in California and A. P. Stover, in the Willamette valley, western Oregon.

Mr. Grunsky has opened an office at 530 Beek building, and is anxious to get in touch with all interested farmers.

"My first duty," said Mr. Grunsky, "will be to decide just where to operate, and what lines of investigation will be most helpful. We do not care to throw ourselves into the arms of disinterested parties; but will go where, other things being equal, we receive the best welcome. The funds at our disposal are limited and we need the co-operation of wide-awake farmers who are willing to meet us half way in experimentation. Some of the most probable lines of inquiry open are: The amount of water to be applied for the best economic returns; time and number of applications; effect of water on soils and effect of irrigation on different crops with respect to a particular locality."
