Scene From Henry Miller In "The Havoc" Here Sept. 1

Henry Miller's appearance in "The Havoc" at the Medford opera house on Friday, September 1, will have a double importance. Mr. Miller will be the first attraction of the winter theatrical season in this city, and in his present vehicle he is said to create one of the greatest, most powerful and forceful characters ever portrayed by him. In the role of Richard Craig, the injured husband of H. S. Sheldon's three-act drama, Mr. Miller is given full opportunity for the display of his genuine histrionic talents, and not for many years has he appeared in a character that so completely furnishes him the chance to prove his sterling worth as a creator of stage figures. In each of the three acts of the play there is at least one big dramatic scene, and particularly at the end of the first act, wherein Mr. Miller in the role of Richard Craig, denounces a treacherous guest in his house, does the actor-manager rise to great heights. The New York critics on the occasion of his first appearance at the Bijou theater in New York city proclaimed that Miller's work even surpassed the famous characterizations of Sidney Carton in "The Only Way" and Stephen Ghent in "The Great Divide." San Francisco, the next large city to be visited after the metropolitan run, which was of over 200 nights' duration, and which was perhaps the most successful the actor-manager had known in many years, spoke of Mr. Miller's Richard Craig in the same glowing terms, announcing that the performance of "The Havoc" as given by Mr. Miller and his splendid supporting company was the most perfect piece of stage work it had ever been the good fortune of San Francisco's theatergoers to see. The result of Mr. Miller's fortnight engagement at the Columbia theater in San Francisco saw the playhouse filled to capacity at every performance and three extra matinees were given on the last week.

BIDS TO BUILD BRIDGE TOO HIGH

County Court Rejects Tenders and City Council in Consequence Does Not Receive Any—New Bids Will Be Asked.

Owing to the fact that the county court rejected all of the bids received for the construction of the new concrete bridge over Bear creek in this city, the city council at its special meeting Monday evening were not favored with bids for doing that portion of the work to be constructed by the city. The meeting of the city dads then developed into a discussion of various city matters, no business being transacted. The county court rejected the bids on the ground that they were all too high for the work. Instead of ranging around $30,000, the estimated cost of the bridge, the bids ranged around $35,000, which caused their rejection by the court. New bids will be asked.

PIRATE TRUSTS ARE DENOUNCED

President of American Bar Association Condemns Monopolistic Corporations and Their Rule and System of Greed.

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 29.—Scathing denunciation of the pirate trusts and the evils they inflict on the body politic crated a sensation here today in the convention of the American Bar association, when voiced by Edward H. Farrar of Louisiana, president of the greatest body of lawyers in the United States.

"The burning question agitating the minds of the American people today," said Farrar while his fellow lawyers listened with the deepest interest, "is how to control corporations, how to break up aggregations of capital seemingly as powerful as the government itself, and how to prevent the formation of such combinations in the future."

Unrest Pervades Nation.
"The agitation for the recall of judges," said President Farrar, "is only one symptom of the political, social and economic unrest pervading the nation."

Farrar defended the corporation principle, saying that it had come permanently and that it was necessary to the industrial advancement of the country.

"If here are Frankenstein's in corporate form," he continued, "stalking the land, terrorizing and threatening destruction, the people themselves have created them by their legislatures. In 41 states there is no limit prescribed to the capital stock in the 24 perpetual charters submitted. Mergers and consolidations are specifically prohibited in only two states."

Unrestricted Corporations.
"In the last 10 years there has been competition between the states to invent and adopt the most unrestricted corporation laws. The spur has been greed for revenue; the encouragement has been the success of New Jersey."

"From the bosom of New Jersey have come the great trusts, holding companies and other gigantic monopolies. How will it stand with this republic a generation from now if the estates of its millionaires are perpetually incorporated, as is done in New York and is already copied elsewhere? Can the firmest foundation of a free government—a land owning yeomanry—exist under such conditions?"

Home prosperity depends upon home industry, and state-wide prosperity will be greater if factories selling "Made in Oregon" goods are patronized by the local merchants.

CLAPP SPEAKS FOR PROGRESS

Minnesota Senator Opens Campaign for Insurgents in California—Defends the Recall and Popular Government.

SENATOR CLAPP'S SPEECH

The referendum is the plain exercise of the inherent right to veto legislation if it is bad. The initiative only retains to the people what is naturally and inherently their function. The legislature is not a natural thing.

If you know enough to vote for a man before he is tried, why shouldn't you have the right to vote against after he is tried?

If the Roosevelt policies were republican policies then, they are republican policies today.

The entrance of women into politics will not degrade women. It will raise the moral standard of the country.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 29.—Advocates of the state constitutional amendments looking to direct legislation in California today placed the stamp of approval on the broad back of United States Senator Moses H. Clapp of Minnesota, who last night spoke to an overflow audience in behalf of progressive measures.

Recall is Cheered.
Enthusiastically as were the points in favor of the initiative and the referendum received, this greeting was as nothing to the tremendous outburst that followed the first mention of the recall.

After emphasizing the point that public office is simply public service the senator wanted to know why the people should not have the right to recall any officer they had elected.

"Do they know less then, or do they know more?" he asked, "if you know enough to vote for a man before he is tried, why haven't you the right to vote against him after he has been tried?"

"Even if the judiciary were excluded now from the operation of the recall it is inevitable by some irresistible law it should get to them."

For Direct Legislation.
Almost devoting half of his speech to the causes which have led up to the demand for direct legislation, the senator pressed home the absolute necessity for prompt action by the people.

REFUSES TO ENFORCE LAW

fish for their own use. In other words, it is reported, he will allow them to use nets and gaffs if they do not try to sell the fish. The matter has been brought to the attention of local parties and they will ask District Attorney Mulkey to demand an explanation of his deputy.

The remarks made by Van Dyke are said to have followed the arrest of two men, A. B. Pratt and Frank Hopper, by Chief Deputy Fish and Game Warden Sam Sandry for gaffing fish. Sandry took the two men before Justice of the Peace James Holman, where they pleaded guilty. Holman assessed a fine of $50 each, but apologized for doing so and then suspended the fine for ten days in order to write to the governor and obtain a pardon. The men are now out on parole.

It is a matter of common report that the residents of Grants Pass are bitter against the closing of the stream to commercial fishing and that the officers there favor overlooking any violations of the law which will check the residents of that city from taking salmon from the river with nets or gaffs. Chief Deputy Sandry has complained of this several times, stating that it is almost impossible to secure convictions in that section.

The matter is to be taken up with District Attorney Mulkey at once and see if the matter cannot be adjusted and the law enforced.
