DISCUSS PLAN REORGANIZATION

Attorney General Meets With Officials And Attorneys Of Tobacco Trust In Effort To Determine On Future Plans For Concern.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—Secret conferences regarding the reorganization of the tobacco trust are being held here today by Attorney General Wickersham and a number of judges and attorneys. Great privacy marks the conferences, and Wickersham declines to discuss the trust situation publicly.

Conferring with the attorney general are officials of the department of justice, federal circuit judges and a coterie of the leading attorneys of the tobacco trust.

A reorganization plan for the tobacco trust was adopted as the result of the conferences, but the date agreed upon will not be announced until the plan is submitted to the court.

This will be done by a petition requesting the court to formally approve the plan.

Public hearings will then be conducted to permit objectors to be heard and a finally revised scheme will be submitted to the supreme court.

to be used by renters, as they have their lines on each side of the building. It will take some time to finish the building yet.

The new hotel being built near the depot is a neat building, but is not near enough to completion yet to form an opinion as to its arrangement.

In looking around town Friday to see what I could see that might be of interest to the readers of the Mail Tribune I discovered that Roy Ashpole had built a neat woodshed in rear of his confectionery and billiard room, that M. L. Doley had also built an addition to his livery so that he can keep his wood dry this winter.

Frank has also put up a house back of his confectionery shop for a general outhouse to store supplies and keep his wood dry. The people of Eagle Point believe in keeping the wood dry for it rains out here some times.

I understand that the Jones brothers have opened a shooting gallery right against the side of Frank Lewis' shop. I am not positive with regard to the ownership of the gallery.

John Edsall and his son Everett stopped at the Sunny Side on their way to Prospect to meet his son Jud who has a contract to deliver one million feet of logs to the Hawk sawmill.

C. H. Wilson and wife of Ashland traveling salesman for Wadkins & Carr Bros, Portland wholesale grocers, were here Friday for dinner, and to attend to business.

Saturday morning I took another walk around town and discovered that S. B. Holmes' new house is progressing nicely and that David Cingade's new house is nearing completion, that Mr. McQuand's new house is about completed. He has planned the house and he and his son have done most of the work. It is arranged for beauty and comfort combined.

The last time that I wrote I promised to tell the readers of the Mail Tribune something of what I saw at the Prospect Power plant. When I stopped writing I had got as far as the camp of S. H. Harnish where I found Mrs. Harnish, her daughter Miss Dollie, her two sons Ray and Robert, David Smith, Chalmers Ringer and our daughter Agnes. Mr. Harnish arriving later in the day.

The next morning I took a general survey of the surroundings and in the afternoon Mr. Harnish took his wife, son Robert, our daughter Agnes, and myself, up to the intake of the flume about two miles above where the company is putting in the Electric power plant, and in our drive we passed through the edge of the town of Prospect and through one of the finest bodies of timber in the state of Oregon. Going on up the river about a half mile above the town we descended the bluff and followed up the bank of the stream over rocks and crossed the stream on a bridge and walked up the flume to the intake and there found that we could have, by taking a crosscut route, gone all the way in the back so Mr. H suggested that he would go back for the rig and meet us at the dam. The dam is built on solid rock of concrete, stones and timber and is so arranged that if it is necessary they can turn in all of the water of Rogue river into the flume, which is about two miles long and large enough to carry all the water they will ever want. Crossing back to the west side of the river we then went to the sawmill owned by J. B. Welch and son, where we found Mr. Welch. He is one of the pioneer sawmill men of Jackson county, and his son William, Mr. Welch told us that he had bought the sawmill on Antelope creek about three months ago, tore it down, moved it fifty miles, rebuilt the mill and cut eighty thousand feet of timber in less than three months time, a pretty good job for a man seventy-nine years old.

Leaving Mr. Welch's mill we started through the roads for Hawk's mill which we found cutting away but did not have time to stop and make inquiries, but saw that they were doing business. One trouble with Mr. Welch's mill was that he could not get the logs fast enough. He had two teams and a donkey engine at work but still had to wait for logs, but had another team engaged to come in a few days. Leaving the mill we went on to where they are putting in the plant but it was too late to do much that night so we went on to camp.

The next time will try to tell more of the plan of the plant, etc.
