EAGLE POINT EAGLETS.

(By A. C. Howlett.)

I am sorry to have to chronicle sad news at any time, but this time have to report a serious accident that happened to Orville Childreth, son of one leading blacksmith. It appears that he was out with some other boys gathering wild grapes along the bank of Butte creek and when about forty feet from the ground in a tree the limb broke and he fell to the ground, dislocating his wrist and breaking his shoulder, and otherwise bruising him very badly. One of the Nichols men was passing in a bar and hearing the limb crack, looked just in time to see him fall, and went to his assistance and when he reached him he thought that he was dead, but he began to move him and he soon discovered signs of life and put him in his buggy and brought him home, but he remained unconscious for some time and now he is not able to use either of his hands, and the final result of the fall cannot be known until future developments.

Frank Salter, the man who bought out John Liddell & Sons hardware store, is having an addition put on the back end of the store and has ordered an additional stock of goods, which he expects to have here in the course of a week or ten days. They, for he has a wife to cheer him through life, have erected their portable home near the building and have gone to housekeeping.

Our telephone office has been moved into the Model Variety Store and the arrangement has been made so that the outside world can get the connection at any time day or night, except Sunday, and then it will be between the hours of 7 to 10 a. m.

A family of the name of Kelsa have moved into the James Owens house. Von der Helfen Bros. have their store building completed and the cement walk made in front, and the workmen are extending the walk to the depot.

The Sunnyside Hotel is having a new coat of paint put on the asphalt wall and a new fence around the barn lot.

Mr. Haak has had a new house erected on the bank of the creek and the lower part screened in and the people are guessing what it is built for.

The last time I wrote I promised to tell the readers of the Mail Tribune more about my trip to Prospect, etc. When I last wrote I was telling about the big rock crusher and what they were doing with the rock they dug out of the place where they are to erect the building for the electric machinery. The rocks crushed and piled up for future uses when they get the excavating done, for that alone is a big undertaking itself. After that is done they are to make a solid foundation for the machinery, of concrete, and when the reader stops to think of the enormous weight to be placed on it he can well imagine what an undertaking it is for one piece of machinery weighing thirty-six thousand pounds, and the rest is correspondingly heavy, and then that structure is to bear the force of a stream of water coming through a pipe from 48 to 50 inches in diameter and that coming from a reservoir 54 x 130 feet in size an twelve feet deep, the water having a perpendicular drop of 500 feet. The pipe is to be laid in a ditch that is being blasted out of the solid rock on an incline of about 78 per cent and for several hundred feet of 91 per cent.

The pipe, from where it leaves the reservoir to its connection with the wheel that will move the great mass of machinery, will be 1100 feet in length, and is made of boiler iron five-eighths of an inch thick, and so solid that there is no giving away. The entire plant when completed will be equal to 24000 horse power, and will make enough "juice" to supply the demand for Rogue River valley for the next generation. The company have the poles and wires already up from there to the other electric plant the company has at Ray Gold. The reservoir is dug out of the solid ground and rock and will have a cement wall around it twelve feet high and 16 inches thick at the top, and this will be filled through a flume two miles long, twelve feet wide and eight feet deep, with a fall sufficient to carry all of the water in the Rogue river at that place. The next time I will have something to say about what I saw and heard on the road home.
