

MATTY ECLIPSED BY A NEW STAR

Heavy clouds hung over the Athletic horizon yesterday. For eight and a half innings the shadow of the mighty Matty obscured the dazzling vision of victory that had appeared over night to the glodding "Quakers." Like a giant octopus whose tentacles refused to be severed Matty hung grimly on lining after lining with one run to the good. It took a "peerless" one had finally succeeded in scoring a decisive shut-out until the fickle Goddess of Fortune deserted him for an even greater star in the person of one Frank Baker. Like a bolt out of the blue Baker and his trusty war club shattered the aspirations of Matty in one fell stroke and the horizon that had held out no hope for the Athletic Squadron suddenly cleared. The sun shone once more on the Quaker band and as if by magic the listless attitude vanished from the visitor's bench. In the tenth the Giants ran bases in such a manner as to indicate they had forgotten all the training of their great leader and threw away a possible chance to overthrow the Athletic horde. In the eleventh hour Matty weakened after two glaring errors had been made by the Giants' infield and the victorious Athletics, quick to recognize the symptoms, battered the veteran's offerings for two runs. It was all over. Vainly New York fans implored their pets to turn the tide of battle in the second half of the eleventh spasm. The best they could do toward tying the score was one run. Miserable base running in this inning again contributed to their defeat. So ended the third game of the present world's series.

Marquard to Pitch.

McGraw is now doing the worrying stunt instead of Connie Mack. The next game will be played at Philadelphia on hostile ground and the leader of the Giants is considerably perplexed as to which of his hurlers to turn for victory. Marquard is undoubtedly the logical choice for the battle and should win with ease despite his defeat on Monday. There is no better left-hander in the National league this year and with the record he has made in the past season it is hard to figure out how the Athletics can beat him out twice in succession. He had a taste of the "big show" on his previous attempt Monday and at the same time he has gained a good idea of what his opponents can hit.

Must Play Errorless Ball.

The Athletics have outplayed the Giants to date. There is no getting round the fact that the Giants played anything but a good game yesterday. Errors marred the fine work of Matty in the box and even if they had lost the game through the fault of their pitcher it would not have destroyed the confidence of the fans in general in the team as a whole. McGraw is sure to read the riot act to the team in general and it is to be hoped that no errors will mar the next game even should they be defeated.

CLARK SAYS HE NEVER HAD "HEADQUARTERS"

DALLAS, Texas, Oct. 18.—Speaker Champ Clark branded today the report that his presidential headquarters at Washington had been closed as a malicious lie, declaring it is untrue "for the sufficient reason that I never had any presidential headquarters to close." This statement was telegraphed in response to an inquiry from St. Louis.

MRS DIERKE WAS MOST PLEASING

The music lovers of Medford are indebted to Miss Flora Gray for bringing so excellent a pianist to town as Mrs. Beatrice Dierke. Portland regards Mrs. Dierke as Oregon's greatest pianist, and we feel that the claim is well taken. The program was a varied one covering the wide range of composition from Wagner with his ponderous, and we might say tragic music, to Chopin, the lyric poet of melody, and to say in what particular style of music Mrs. Dierke shows at her best would be indeed difficult, for she is a versatile player. George Andrews has a splendid baritone voice. He readily shows his operatic training. The Apollo Quartette is getting to be quite a musical asset in Medford. Their rendition of the Pilgrims' Chorus was especially good. Take the entertainment as a whole it was a credit to Miss Flora Gray who managed it and we hope the little lady will give us another entertainment equally as good during the present season.
