Two years ago Phoenix people built a splendid new schoolhouse, a big one, big enough, as they then thought, to meet all demands for many years, but they didn't guess as nearly correct as they should have done, because right now the building is full to overflowing and the overflow, which is the primary department, has taken up temporary quarters in the city hall.

Civilizing the Indian. The following is from "The Soul of the Indian," a book by Dr. Charles Alexander Eastman, himself an Indian:

"Long before I ever heard of Christ or saw a white man I had learned from an untutored woman the essence of morality. With the help of dear nature herself she taught me things simply but of mighty import. I knew God. I perceived what goodness is. I saw and loved what is really beautiful. Civilization has not taught me anything better. As a child I understood how to give. I have forgotten that grace since I became civilized. I lived the natural life, whereas I now live the artificial. Any pretty pebble was valuable to me then, every growing thing an object of reverence. Now I worship with the white man before a painted landscape whose value is painted in dollars. Thus the Indian is reconstructed, as the natural rocks are ground to powder and made into artificial blocks which may be built into the walls of modern society."

Bigness of Big Ben. Big Ben, which marks the hours for parliament at the top of the clock tower at Westminster, is bigger than it appears from below. Looking at the dial of Big Ben from the northern footway of Great George street or from the Thames embankment, it appears as if its diameter might be equal to the space that a man of medium size could cover with outstretched arms. As a matter of fact, however, the diameter of the dial is twenty-three feet. From the ground the minute marks on the dial look like ordinary minute marks and as if they were close together. Really they are a foot apart. The numerals are two feet long. The minute hand, with its counter balance—the heavy piece of metal that projects beyond the center of the dial—is fifteen feet in length. This hand is so massive that during a snowstorm the clock is sometimes retarded by the weight of the flakes that alight on it.—London Mail.

He Took the Cue. He was a man who gave little and got much. Today, for instance, he had got a clothes brush, a basin of water, a towel and a shine, and he had given nothing at all.

Tr-r-ring! went his bedroom bell. The hotel attendant smiled sourly. This was the fourth time he had been summoned, and he did not hurry.

"I thought you were never coming," exclaimed the visitor when the attendant appeared at last. "Are you nicknamed 'Slowcoach'?"

"No, sir," answered the attendant. "They call me 'Billiard cue.'"

"Billiard cue?" repeated the visitor frowning. Then an inspiration dawned. "Ah! Because you're such a stick, I suppose?" he asked.

"Wrong again, sir!" returned the attendant. "It's because I work better with a good tip."—London Answers.

COUNTRY BOY TRUE TO LIFE

Name of Play and Late Train Kept Many From Seeing One of the Best Productions of the Season at the Medford.

Shakespeare says there is nothing in a name. But we are inclined to think that the name "A Country Boy" smacks so much of the melodrama that the experienced show-goer passed up last night's performance, hence the small house. Country life truly portrayed makes delightful character acting but it seems that the unskilled dramatist has used the pastoral plot with his male characters, named either Rubin, Si or Joss, and the women Polly, Nancy or Jane until they have made the public shy of any play that deals with country life. But last night's performance was a happy exception to the rule. We saw life presented as it really is in the rural village. Tom, the country boy, was the country boy as we know him in this day of the automobile. He is by no means a simpleton, yet simple when contrasted with a certain shade of city life, and in this sharp contrast lies the strength of the author Edward Solwyn. The scene between Tom and Amy Leroy, the show girl depicts two shades of human life modeled entirely by their environment. Tom had been brought up in an atmosphere of honesty and sincerity, while Amy was a product of the city where wealth and poverty rub shoulders so closely.

Frank Merkle, the newspaper man who by the way is a real actor, showed us a man of sufficient mental capacity to have been whirled about for years in the maelstrom of a great metropolis and yet be able to steer his boat clear of the whirlpool and sail out into calm water. He was capable of seeing both sides of the picture. The boarding house was a most humorous example of four and one-half per week and the landlady a character that would be worthy the pen of Charles Dickens. "A Country Boy" although not a great play is built upon worthy lines. It has a moral; it teaches a lesson. We long for the day when we will have more productions of this kind and less of the chorus girl with her tights of many colors. The cast was a good one, the scenery appropriate and the players had been selected to look the part they played. Nellie Filmore's ample physique fit the part to a dot. Alfred Cooper looked and acted the part of Tom in a most satisfactory manner. In fact a good word might honestly be said for all.

BROKEN LEG WON'T STOP HER WORKING

FORT STEVENS, Ore., Nov. 8.—Despite the fact that she is suffering from a fractured leg sustained recently by a fall Miss Zoe Essley, a teacher at the Hammond public school, has refused to play the part of an invalid and teaches her classes each day as though she were well.

She had a plaster of Paris cast placed on her injured limb, and assisted by other teachers who haul her to school each morning in a small handcart, she manages to get around for the remainder of the day on crutches.

HAPPY RESULTS

Have Made Many Medford Residents Enthusiastic.

No wonder scores of Medford citizens grow enthusiastic. It is enough to make any one happy to find relief after years of suffering. Public statements like the following are but truthful representations of the daily work done in Medford by Doan's Kidney Pills.

A. Z. Sears, 231 Fifth St., Medford, Ore., says: "Since publicly recommending Doan's Kidney Pills in 1907, I have used them occasionally and they have always brought good results. I was afflicted with severe pains in my back and I often found it almost impossible to stoop. The kidney secretions passed too frequently and this weakness was a source of much annoyance. Hearing Doan's Kidney Pills highly recommended, I procured a box at Hastinks' drug store and by the time I had finished the contents I could see that they were the right remedy for my trouble. Gradually the pains and other difficulties disappeared and my health improved. I cheerfully recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to every one afflicted with kidney complaint."

LIEBLER & COMPANY'S PRODUCTION OF

TWO SEASONS IN NEW YORK

Lieber & Co. present Paul Armstrong's striking dramatization of O. Henry's story, A RETRIEVED REFORMATION, entitled

"Alias Jimmy Valentine"

Direct from its notably sensational run of TWO ENTIRE YEARS at Wallack's Theater, New York.

The San Francisco engagement of this great play—at the Cort Theater—was so tremendously successful that three extra matinees were necessary to satisfy the public. San Francisco never before knew of such a positive and pronounced hit.

On account of the big demand for seats here, the management will sell only SIX SEATS to any one person; there will be no deviation from this rule.

HER FRIEND'S GOOD ADVICE

The Results Made This Newburg Lady Glad She Followed Suggestion.

Newburg, Ala.—"For more than a year," writes Myrtle Cothran, of this place, "I suffered with terrible pains in my back and head. I had a sallow complexion, and my face was covered with pimples. Our family doctor only gave me temporary relief.

A friend of mine advised me to try Cardui, so I began taking it, at once, and with the best results, for I was cured after taking two bottles. My mother and my aunt have also used Cardui and were greatly benefited. I shall always praise Cardui to sick and suffering women."

Cardui is a purely vegetable, perfectly harmless, tonic remedy for women, and will benefit young and old. Its ingredients are mild herbs, having a gentle, tonic effect, on the womanly constitution.

Cardui has helped a million women back to health and strength. Have you tried it? If not, please do. It may be just what you need.
