

TANK BURSTS; OIL IS LOST

A tank containing between 5000 and 6000 gallons of petroleum to be used in frost fighting burst this morning on the Irwin tract in the Burrell orchard. It is feared that a number of trees were killed by the oil, aside from the loss due to the spilling of the oil.

The tank was of concrete. Faulty construction is believed to have been the cause of the accident.

west. The sun disappeared April 22 and the winter months were spent in changing equipment.

Dash Starts October 20.

The real dash, however, was started October 20, but four men accompanying the explorer. They travelled from 20 to 30 kilometers each day. They took four sledges and 52 dogs, with food supplies for four months. Snow pillars six feet high were made to guide them on the return journey.

The party made 81 degrees south October 31. Another degree was covered by November. On November 11, Captain Amundsen says he discovered that the Ross Barrier terminated at 86 degrees south 161 degrees west. The 58th parallel was reached November 7. Here a land and ice barrier connected, with summits at points 15,000 feet high. It required three days for the party to climb 5,000 feet.

Pole Is Reached.

On the other side of the barriers, the party encountered terrific gales. December 8 the party had reached 88 degrees, 16 minutes, south. From here the party had a down-fall haul, reaching 88 degrees, 30 minutes, on December 9; 89.30 on the 12th, and 89.45 on the 13th. These points were established by observations and dead reckoning, and by the same methods the next and last 15 minutes of the journey was measured, bringing the party within the vicinity of the South Pole December 14. The temperature was 41 degrees below zero.

When Amundsen calculated that the pole was reached, a flag was planted, the explorer naming the plateau for King Haakon VII. Captain Amundsen then took observations for three days and the return was begun December 17. Winter quarters at Framheim were reached January 25.

TAFT SAYS NO MERIT IN RECALL

TOLEDO, O., March 9.—President Taft, in an address here last night on "The Judiciary and Progress," declared the proposal recently advocated for the recall of judicial decisions by the vote of the people "utterly without merit or utility, and instead of being progressive, was reactionary."

President Taft made no direct allusion to Roosevelt, nor to the latter's speech at Columbus, but referred briefly to the many policies put forward in that address, conceding that the judicial system might be better, and saying he had been preaching for reform especially in criminal law for years, and the president declared it was not the corrupt judges that were at fault, but the helplessness of the judges under the jury system to assist jurors to reach correct conclusions. Nor does he think the subject one to call for political discussion or attract effort from politicians in the passage of remedial legislation.

He says that the formidable attack on the judiciary now is that the judges do not respond sufficiently to popular demand, that they obstruct the enforcement of legislation and by the so-called judicial legislation interpret into the statutes words not intended by the legislature.

Just Listen

There is a man who never drinks,
Nor smokes, nor chews, nor swears,
Who never gambles, never flirts
And shuns all sinful snares.
He's paralyzed.

The verse above may make you smile,
And think of things seen advertised,
You'd best be busy all the while,
Than be antique and paralyzed.

But the man who did not do those things,
Though with whom all must sympathize,
Is better off just as he is,
Than those who do not advertise.

There is a firm that never knocks,
But boosts and does not criticize,
That does good work by methods new
They're "live ones" for they advertise.

Concluding now these lines of verse,
It might be well to here disperse
Words of wisdom, with an ad. between
You'll hear more of us—
