into commission.
The boats rowed away, six in a group, the other widely separated, the women protesting there was no need to have left the vessel. Then the women in the boats saw the great Titanic, the boat they had believed unsinkable, breaking in twain. At the same time there came a roar and a series of explosions. The boilers under which the fires could not be drawn had exploded when the icy water rushed in.
Hand Played as Ship Sank.
The after part seemed to right itself and bobbed up and down. It then was black with men and women who could not be taken off because there was not sufficient lifeboats and rafts. Another explosion came and then the great mass of steel sunk down into the waters, raised again and then plunged forward to disappear forever. And as she went down, from the wreck came the last feeble strains of the music of the heroic ship's band playing "Nearer My God to Thee."

none of them.
In describing how he left the Titanic, he said:
"Boat Not Half Filled.
'I was standing opposite the last boat the sailors were lowering. It was not even half filled. I turned to Captain Smith and asked: 'Are there any more women?' He made no answer. At that time there were no male passengers around, either. Just before the boat was lowered I stepped in."
Ismay declared he did not know just where the iceberg struck the Titanic, adding:
"All the men passengers that I saw were provided with life preservers. I saw none jump into the sea.
'When our lifeboat struck the water we saw a light far out to sea and guided our craft in that direction. We were in the boat for four long hours.
'There were no lifeboats aboard the Titanic as the White Star line discontinued their use some time ago.
No Explosion Heard.
'The lifeboats aboard were wooden and of the collapsible type. I do not know what happened to the lifeboats. I did not look back after we left the Titanic to see whether it broke in two, and, of course, I do not know whether there was much of a panic aboard after all the lifeboats had left. I never saw Captain Smith after I asked him whether all the women passengers had been safely cared for.'
Ismay insisted that the Titanic was equipped with a full complement of lifeboats and declared that to his knowledge no explosion occurred before the vessel went down. He asserted that if the Titanic had collided head on with the iceberg it would be afloat today.
Becomes a Monsignor.
FALL RIVER, Mass., April 19.—The investiture of the Very Rev. James E. Cassidy, vicar general of the Fall River diocese, with the title of a monsignor of the Catholic church took place in St. Mary's Cathedral today, the ceremonies being of an elaborate character. Rt. Rev. Daniel F. Feehan, bishop of Fall River, officiated.
Iowa Woodmen May Secede.
DES MOINES, Iowa, April 19.—Delegates representing a majority of the 986 Iowa camps of the Modern Woodmen of America assembled here today to protest against the increased insurance rates recently promulgated by the supreme body of the order. Many of the delegates express themselves in favor of seceding from the parent organization.

Makes good Cooks and good Cookies
Cottolene is so much better than butter or lard for frying and shortening, in healthfulness, quality and results, that there is but one other point to be considered—Economy.
Cottolene, being richer than lard, one-third less is required to secure best results. Cottolene is therefore immeasurably superior both from an economic and a health standpoint.
The only woman who isn't using Cottolene is the woman who hasn't tried it thoroughly, for Cottolene is winning converts every day.
To sum it up, no other product is equal to Cottolene in cleanliness, healthfulness and economy.
