SAY HER PATIENTS STARVED TO DEATH

LINDA HAZZARD.

Surrounded by second growth trees, the hillside, back of Olalla, a new steamship landing on the Kitsap coast shore of the west passage between Tacoma and Seattle, Wash., and twenty miles distant from Tacoma, is the Hazzard Starvation Cure Sanitarium, known at Olalla as "Starvation Heights."

Lucian Agassiz, British Vice Consul at Tacoma, charged that Mrs. Hazzard paid special attention to British travelers, and that when some of them died she was equally industrious in obtaining the administration of their estates for herself or trusted friends.

Mrs. Hazzard has been arrested charged with first degree murder, for which the punishment in the State of Washington is hanging. She is accused of starving to death Claire Wilmamson, thirty-two years old, of London, England. She and an older sister, Dorothea, were patients at the sanitarium. It is said that their joint estate is worth $400,000.

EAGLE POINT EAGLETS

By A. C. Howlett

When we arrived on Elk Creek we found that McCalahan & Son had their saw mill all rigged up ready for business and already had a large quantity of logs in the yard ready for the summer's run. They anticipate a big run this summer. Going on up the creek a little further we came to the residence of Dave Pence. He has built for himself a neat residence and is clearing more land and getting his farm in good shape. He was just getting ready to go to work on the county roads, he having been appointed supervisor for this year. We next stopped for a few moments to call on Ed Pence who is one of the prosperous farmers of that section but he was away from home working on a new house that Mr. Reynolds was putting up. Mr. Reynolds is the man who was burned out a few weeks ago, and during the fire Dave Pence came in such close contact with the fire as to singe one side of his mustache off, so had to shave off the other side and that makes him look as odd as a preacher in the pulpit without a coat.

From there Rev. Davis went up to Mr. Miller's where we could get horse feed, for at this season of the year hay is very scarce in the Elk Creek country, and I went to Mr. George Lynch's for headquarters. They have a fine school in this neighborhood. Miss Mamie Wright is training the young people how to develop their ideas and make useful men and women. During our stay there Prof. D. E. Henry, one of the school supervisors spent the day in the school and was trying to plan to have a central school established at Trail and have all the children of the five or six districts attend one school and have that school embrace the high school branches and thereby save the expense of about three teachers, but the trouble of that move is the children going from home to the school house and in order to obviate that difficulty his plan was to have some one go in the morning and take them to school and then in the afternoon take them home again, but in that case the team from that district would have to travel thirty-six miles each day and would have to start from home by 6:30 a. m. to reach the school house by 9 o'clock a. m., and then would have to start promptly at 4 p. m. to enable them to reach home by 6:30 p. m., so the idea did not take well with the Elk Creek people.

Owing to Rev. M. C. Davis' name being drawn as a juror in Grants Pass we did not continue the meeting as we anticipated but closed on Wednesday night and bade farewell to the good people of that section. In looking around in my rounds I find that nearly all of the people in the mountain regions are readers of the Mail-Tribune, and seem to be satisfied with the paper. There is considerable work done in the line of improvement on the farms. Mr. Miller is extending his alfalfa field by clearing more land. Mr. Cal. Pence has a fine tract of alfalfa and is clearing more land. He has already built a neat residence and has things up in shape so as to live comfortably.

Mr. M. Pence has the lumber on the ground to build a new house.

George Lynch has one of the nicest little homes and is planning to build in the near future, so it seems from appearances that the people on Elk Creek are among the progressives in the way of improving at any rate. Leaving Elk Creek Tuesday morning we went to Trail where Rev. Davis had an appointment to preach that night, and during the time between our arrival at Trail and preaching time we spent with the family of Mr. John Warner. Mr. Warner had the misfortune to get his leg broken some months ago while planting the electric light poles from the Prospect Works to Gold Ray and is just getting around so that he can do light work. He has made great improvements in the way of clearing land and fencing since I was there last.

Thursday night we had a full house the preaching being in the school house, now occupied by a lady by the name of Nash who has a very interesting school of about twenty pupils. We spent the night at the Middle-hasher hotel, and the next morning we started for Sams Valley where we had an appointment for preaching Friday night. But I am making this letter too long. The next time will tell of our trip through Debeneger Gap, through sticky, what I saw in Sams Valley, Gold Hill, Dardanelle, Grants Pass, etc.

The Economical Cooking Fat

There is both economy and solid satisfaction in cooking with Cottolene. Not only is it more economical than either butter or lard—one-third less being required—but it can be used in fine cakes and pastry with every bit as good results as butter, and for frying it excels lard or other cooking fats. Unlike lard, Cottolene makes food wholesome, nourishing, digestible. It is made from Cottonseed Oil, the use of which Dr. Wiley so strongly has commended. Cottolene shortens your food—lengthens your life, and saves you money at the same time.
