

ANNUAL BANQUET OF CLUB LADIES DELIGHTFUL AFFAIR

A delightful affair was the annual banquet tendered by the ladies of the Greater Medford club Monday evening to its membership and to the members of the Commercial club at the Hotel Medford. Over a hundred participated and spent a most enjoyable evening discussing topics of civic and club interest.

E. A. Reames presided as toast master in his usual happy manner. Short toasts were responded to as follows: "Enforcement of City Ordinances," by Mrs. W. G. Davidson; "Our Men Friends," by Miss Catherine Mears; "Effects of the Panama Canal Upon the Rogue River Valley," by Mrs. H. C. Stoddard; "Humor," by Gus Newbury; "Women on the School Board," by George Putnam; "The Greater Medford Club," by C. L. Reames; and "Our Special Responsibilities," by Mrs. Mabel H. Parsons, president of the club.

In her brief speech Mrs. Parsons sounded the keynote of the club work for the coming year, which will include, not only civic improvement as in the past, but work in broader humanitarian fields, of looking after the moral welfare of the young and combating the social evil. In their work, the club ladies have been brought to the knowledge of the existence of shocking conditions and to help remedy existing evils was one of the club's tasks.

"Public officers are never better than the civic consciousness," she said, "knowledge of good paving and good water works isn't enough. We must take stock of the war between sentimentality and morality and take care of those boys and girls who are not being cared for at home. Our club has made investigation and has been presented with instances that show that it is necessary here to combat the social evil. My toast tonight is for a greater Medford, not boasting of material welfare but of the safeguards for its children."

Impromptu responses were made by W. I. Vawter, Dr. E. H. Pickel, Mrs. J. F. Reddy and Porter J. Neff and it was near midnight when the diners dispersed.

ROOSEVELT THRUSTS ASIDE TEMPTERS

CHICAGO, June 25.—As a result of a program after a series of discussion Monday with lieutenants in which there were several clashes, Colonel Roosevelt decided before leaving Chicago to cut entirely away the party with which his whole public career has been identified. His decision disappointed those who favored an organization that might be considered an independent republican party with which the various state organizations might co-operate and still maintain, it was hoped, regularity.

"There must be no compromise, no straddle," Roosevelt said.

As an indication he is determined, he said when he returned to Oyster Bay he would communicate with a number of democrats he thought might wish to join the new party. When he left Chicago his first plans were completed and his leaders are scattering to all parts of the country. Roosevelt expressed himself as pleased with the outcome of the convention. He said he had a mass of telegrams and letters from democrats and republicans offering him support.

The republican nomination for president, Roosevelt said, was his for the asking on the day Taft was nominated. He declined to accept it, he said, on the terms under which the offer was made.

Roosevelt said he was visited early Saturday morning by a group of delegates who promised him a sufficient block of Taft delegates to swing the nomination for Roosevelt to avert a rupture of the party. The number of delegates sufficient to nominate Roosevelt or any candidate he might name. It was stipulated, however, he must accept the nomination from the convention as then composed, not to insist upon the removal of the seventy-eight delegates he contended fraudulent. Roosevelt said he informed the delegation he would not accept the nomination under these conditions.

The chief point of interest today among Roosevelt's supporters is whether they are able to carry with them the strength of the following which Roosevelt, heretofore had in the republican party. Some said it was impossible to bring the former Roosevelt states in line for the new party. Roosevelt took the view he will have the support of substantial party organizations with him in the preliminary campaign, and that if there were defections it will be possible to fill the gaps with volunteers. Governor Johnson of California announced the committee of seventeen to carry on the preliminary plans for the formal organization of a new party.

ENGLISH PAPER GIVES THEODORE ROOSEVELT PRAISE
LONDON, June 25.—The Pall Mall Gazette today praised Roosevelt's action in launching a new party in the United States, saying: "There is every reason to believe that the future will justify the action of Roosevelt and his friends. The division of American politics in the republican and democratic parties is doomed because it has developed a system which is cynical, perfidious and largely corrupt. Regardless of

G. O. P. SUPPORTS LEAVE PARTY

Two Roosevelt members of the republican county central committee will resign. One, A. K. Ware, has tendered his resignation to Chairman E. T. Staples of Ashland. The other, Attorney F. W. Mears, said Monday night that he would send in his resignation in a couple of days. Both gave as reasons dissatisfaction with the action of the national convention at Chicago in nominating President Taft over the contested Roosevelt delegates.

The reasons given by Mr. Ware are as follows:

"Mr. E. T. Staples, secretary republican county committee, Ashland, Ore.: Dear Sir—I herewith tender my resignation as chairman of the republican county committee for the following reasons: The national republican committee by its action at Chicago showed that it was no longer entitled to be held with respect by any broad-minded citizen, when, by its steam roller czarist methods it recommended the seating of delegates who were no more entitled to seats in that convention than anything in this world.

"The majority should rule when it gains its victory honestly and without question, but when it gains its victory by fraud and rank stealing then that majority cannot expect decent citizens to ratify and support the candidates it nominates. Also the platform adopted by that convention is so at variance with the views of broad-minded, progressive men who are to be the final arbiters in November of the great questions now so agitating the large mass of independent voters at present that I could no longer work for the candidates who will stand on that platform this fall, so wish to be released and be free to act with any party or men who believe that the people shall rule, not the old-time boss who finds out what big interests want and is willing to pay him for, then fixes his platform and nominates the candidate who wants office worse than he wants patriotism or freedom to prevail. Yours respectfully, 'A. K. WARE.'"

Immediate results, Roosevelt's revolt will figure in history as the inauguration of a great and permanent change."

MERCHANTS BACK BUTCHERS OF CITY

Resolutions calling upon the city council to prevent any butcher from transacting business at the public market, were adopted unanimously Monday evening by the Medford Merchants' association, following a lengthy discussion of the subject. The merchants, however, favored the sale of meat by farmers of the county who would bring in their own product and dispose of it.

The meat question in connection with the public market has been discussed pro and con in the city since the establishment of the market when Bob Crowder, who has been butchering in Jackson county for the past two years rented stalls there and began to sell meat to patrons of the market. Butchers in the city raised a storm of protest claiming that Crowder was not a producer and hence could not transact business at the market. On the other hand the women of the city took up the fight for Crowder stating that he was selling meat at prices which they could afford to pay. The matter was referred to the market committee of the city council which in turn referred it to the council as a whole.

After a lengthy discussion at which much was said and little done the council postponed action. In the meantime the merchants took up the matter and have demanded that Crowder or any other professional butcher be barred from the market.

BELL SAVES LABEL FROM KNOCKOUT

Gameness and Experience took a stand against Youth last night and when the mixup was over Gameness was all in and Experience couldn't be located. Bud Anderson, "Pride of Medford," won a decision at the end of the tenth round over Abe Label of San Francisco, after the bell had robbed him of a knockout at the end of the ninth. Label, game and crafty, fought well, but he was against Youth and Youth did not tire.

For nine rounds Anderson was forced to hold in abeyance his right haymaker punch that some of his friends claim will send him to the top ranks of the boxing game and when he finally turned it loose and connected, the bell nullified its effect on the count of eight. In the tenth he could not put it over and so the record will show a decision for Anderson.

Anderson did not show as well in his fight last night as usual due probably to the fact that he was against a better man than has been matched heretofore with him in this city. He swung more or less wild and threw himself open repeatedly. Had Label had his old time punch he would probably have slowed Anderson up with some of the cracks he slipped through.

Label caused some delay in going on and got into the ill graces of the fans. However on the plea of Edwards that he be given the usual welcome he was cheered when he entered the ring and soon afterwards by his gameness worked his way into the good graces of local fans.

The mill was one of the best seen in Medford. The only disagreeable feature was a wait of an hour.
