Dan Green, who came to the Rogue River valley in 1856, and who, since 1869 has been engaged in the mining industry at Galilee, says that in the more than half century that he has followed the fortunes of the miner in the Rogue district he has seen countless thousands taken from the earth, but there are still millions to come from it, and he anticipates a great revival of the industry. Unfortunately, in his own district, a number of the larger mining propositions have lately been tied up in litigation but these Mr. Green thinks are now in a fair way to adjustment.

A man doesn't necessarily have to have a Rogue River Valley orchard to make money on fruit. H. M. Webb reports $100 net profit from one eighth of an acre of strawberries—the cost of picking and boxes having been deducted, says the Yellow Record. This is at the rate of $800 per acre—and the raising of strawberries requires less labor and time than the tree fruits. The Webb strawberry patch contains three varieties of fruit, the August Luther being grown for the earliest, while the Dunlap and Brandywine are mid-season and late. The Oregon ever-bearing grows so largely in this state, is not favored by Mr. Webb, as he finds the others mentioned more profitable.

announced on one of the first three ballots when the hour for the convention to assemble arrived.

Everyone of the chieftains was proselyting. Former Governor Francis and Senator Stone personally appealed to Murphy of Tammany and to the leaders of the Harmon boom.

Wilson Men Hopeful

"If we can't land Clark early there will be danger of some one you don't want, possibly Bryan himself, landing it," was the appeal made.

The Harmon men positively refused to withdraw their man.

"We can muster 500 votes, after the favorite sons are withdrawn," said one of the Harmon's supporters.

The Wilson men insisted that they were uncovering progressive sentiment momentarily.

"The west is nearly ready to line up for our government," said Congressman Hughes, "and we have every reason to be satisfied with the outlook."

Roll Call Cheered

As the roll of the states proceeded the galleries cheered loudly the announcement in every instance. Chairman James and the secretary demanded time and again that the result be received in silence so that there could be no mistake by the tellers but the crowd wanted to cheer and insisted.

When it was seen that there was likelihood of little change in the result a number of Clark managers went to Murphy and begged him to swing the New York delegation into line for the speaker.

"If you do, it will start a stampede, and it will be over soon and we all can start for home," begged Senator Stone, but Murphy listened and made no reply.

Miner Gains and Losses

Wild cheering followed the announcement of Massachusetts when it was announced that Wilson had gained one and Clark lost 1. In New Hampshire there was another desertion from Clark, who received only 7 of the 8 state votes, the other going to Wilson.

New Jersey shifted the two votes cast last night for Underwood to Congressman William Sulzer of New York, amidst good natured banter from the galleries.

In Ohio Clark and Wilson each gained a vote, Harmon lost 1, the other being a delegate who last night refused to vote. Mr. Bryan received a solitary vote here, as on the first ballot.

In Pennsylvania Wilson gained a vote and Bryan one, while Harmon received three instead of the five recorded for him on the first ballot.

Tennessee was passed as an attempt was being made to unite the delegation and it went to the bottom of the roll.

Wilson gained eight votes in Vermont, when the state delegation switched from Baldwin.

Clark gained half a vote in Virginia, Underwood losing two and also picked up one in Wisconsin, when one absentee came into line for the speaker.

Wilson gained 2 in Alaska.

In Tennessee Clark gained 2 1-2 votes over the first roll call.

The Third Ballot

It was not until Maine was reached in the third ballot that there was any change. Then Wilson gained the two delegates previously voting for Underwood. Massachusetts was passed and went to the bottom of the list. The delegates were considering a switch, and Governor Francis hurried down to stiffen the Clark men if possible.

New Jersey's two came back to Underwood on this ballot after having paid their compliments to Representative Sulzer. There was a very noticeable hush when New York was reached but Murphy disappointed all of the workers by keeping his ninety votes in the Harmon camp. In North Carolina Harmon gained two votes.

Squabble in Ohio

In Ohio Bryan gained one, getting two when the roll was announced. The vote of Ohio was challenged by Homer Richard of Sandusky, who demanded that the delegation be polled and this was ordered done.

The Ohio delegates were engaged in discussion and ex-Governor James E. Campbell, chairman of the delegation, declared that Rhinehart had refused to vote and tried to make it appear that the state was using "steamroller" methods. Rhinehart denied this and insisted on his demand that the state be polled. "Put them on record," he shouted.

Wilson Gains in Ohio

The Ohio vote was announced following the poll as Harmon 33, Wilson 13, Bryan 1, Kerr 1. On the previous ballot the state was recorded, Clark 2, Wilson 11, Harmon 34, and Bryan 1. This showed that Bryan had not secured the two votes credited to him by Chairman Campbell on announcing the vote. It also showed that Wilson had gained two votes. Incidentally this marked the appearance on the roll call of John W. Kern of Indiana, believed to be the real dark horse of the convention.

In Pennsylvania Wilson gained one vote, the Bryan delegate switching to him. Tennessee showed a gain of 5 1-2 votes for Underwood.

Massachusetts was called at the end of the roll but the announcement of the vote showed no changes.

On the fourth ballot there was no change from the third until Louisiana was reached. Wilson gained one vote there, while Clark lost one.

In Massachusetts Clark lost two votes, which shifted to Underwood. Underwood gained one and Clark one in Michigan, while Harmon and Wilson each lost one. In Nebraska Wilson gained three of the Harmon votes. In New Hampshire Wilson gained another vote from the Clark column.

Unofficial totals: Clark 443; Wilson 249 1-2; Harmon 126 1-2; Underwood 112; Baldwin 14; Marshall 31; Kern 2.

SCULPTOR ARTIST, DECORATOR ARTIZAN

WASHINGTON, June 28.—The sculptor is a real artist, but the decorator who chisels in stone, objects of an artistic and esthetic character, is only a skilled artisan, according to the decision of the U. S. customs court of appeals. The court says that ordinarily the ornamentalist in stone imitates that which he actually sees and his work goes no farther than to please the eye. The sculptor, on the other hand, reproduces that which is pictured by his imagination and his production not only appeals to the eye, but to the emotions as well. In fine, one copies and the other in a sense, creates and originates.

The court had to decide whether imported mantels which the importers desired to enter duty free on the ground that they were works of art, were really sculpture as provided for under the law.

The mantels were decorated with fluted columns, friezes and carved cupids. They were executed by an artisan who studied ornamental sculpture and obtained a diploma from an art school, but the court refused to consider him a real sculptor in an artistic sense.
