INTERESTING MEETINGS OF WOMEN'S CLUBS.

A unique and most enjoyable entertainment will be given under the auspices of the Greater Medford club, for the benefit of the Sacred Heart hospital July 5th, at the opera house, when Katherine Oliver McCoy will present "When Bunt Pulls the String." Mrs. McCoy, the monologue artist is known on two continents as the foremost interpreter of Scotch characters and is now recognized as the greatest living interpreter of Ian Maclaren and J. M. Barrie. To quote from Mrs. McCoy's own account on the occasion when she gave her interpretation of "The Little Minister" before the author, J. M. Barrie, at his own home in London, his wife, the artist's father and Mr. Barrie's friend and playmate, Forsyth, an immense St. Bernard dog:

"For the first ten minutes it would be difficult to say which felt the more embarrassed, the audience or the speaker. Mr. Barrie had resumed his smoking and was stirring up the chimney. Mrs. Barrie was giving me polite attention. The pater was divided in his interest between the audience and me wondering when I was going to get over my scare and begin to do things. The only comfortable person in the room was the dog. He had gone to sleep.

"I was really suffering from mental confusion. I had had a mental picture of "The Little Minister" but there on the divan sat the real thing. I had had a mental picture of "Babbie." Could that watching creature sitting by "The Little Minister" be the gypsy girl come in the flesh? It was all very embarrassing, but at last I reached the poor house scene with "Old Nannie" and it came like an oasis in the desert. In the room was no distracting counterpart of "Nannie" and suddenly I lost myself in the character. Everything began to come right. Mr. Barrie's eyes came down from the chimney, his pipe went out; Mrs. Barrie leaned forward in an attitude of rapt attention; relief and gladness shone in the pater's eyes; the dog only was unmoved; he slept quietly on."

Invitations have been sent out by the Colony club to a garden party to be given at the Daggett ranch on July 4th, for the benefit of the Sacred Heart Hospital. Supper will be served at 7:30 and there will be dancing at 9 o'clock. There will be a number of novel amusements during the evening. The proceeds will be devoted toward maintaining a free room at the hospital.

DOUBLE HEADER FOR TOMORROW

Baseball bugs are slanting at tomorrow's card with great interest and a bit of uncertainty. The consensus of opinion is that Medford is making a mistake in attempting to apply the roller to both Grants Pass and Talent delegations in the same afternoon. The local leather chasers have done considerable heavy practice during the last week and are confident of adding the aforementioned scalps to their belt when Toke Bronse yells "Play ball" tomorrow. The first game will be with Grants Pass, starting at 2:30 p. m., and at the close of the ninth inning Medford will take on the Talent Braves. The regular price of admission will cover both games. Owing to erroneous information held by the management of the Medford ball team, it was announced in yesterday's issue that Talent had defeated Central Point last Sunday. This statement has since been learned to be incorrect. No game was played.

MARKET LOOKS LIKE GREAT FAIR

The public market resembled a fair more than a place of business today, hundreds of women crowding the aisles early in the day and buying liberally of the offerings in the different stalls in the building. The day's business was one of the best in the history of the market. The three day a week plan inaugurated last week by Market Master Ranyard is proving a great success as it means three big days at the market. This makes it better for the ranches for they reach the market every other day regularly and at the same time have a chance to care for their places and properly prepare the produce offered for sale. While meat was sought by many the vegetables were taken eagerly as well as home made bread and pastry.
