cause, as he said, he wanted to see only one name, and Thomas W. Wilson would have been too common-place. Graduating from Princeton in 1879, he practiced law for two years in Atlanta, Georgia, before he became an educator. He taught history and political economy for three years in Bryn Mawr college, and was instructor in the same branches for two years in Wesleyan university, before he was engaged as a teacher of jurisprudence and politics in Princeton, his alma mater. He became president of Princeton, August 1, 1902 and held that position until October, 1910, when he resigned to become governor.

In 1885 he married Miss Helen Louise Axson, of Atlanta, Georgia. Governor Wilson holds A.B., LL.D., Ph.D., and other degrees from Princeton, University of Virginia, Johns Hopkins, Brown, Harvard, Williams, Dartmouth, and Yale universities.

Wrote of Bossism

It was as a writer that Woodrow Wilson first got before the people as a politician. He wrote voluminously of the evils of bossism, the corruption of politics, and the like, and quite naturally glided from the pen to the platform and banquet table, being asked to speak for various meetings and dinners in all the large cities.

"A prophet is not without honor save in his own country," and through his writings and after-dinner speeches, Woodrow Wilson was being talked about as a reformer long before the people of New Jersey considered him seriously.

As far back as 1904 people in the west were "talking about" Wilson as a presidential possibility, but New Jersey knew nothing of him or about it, and again at Denver, in 1908, he was "spoken of." But it was not until 1910 that the people of the doctor's adopted state "discovered" him. Then the democratic bosses of the corporation-ridden state decided that it was time to elect a governor. They had not had one since the days of Cleveland, and it was decided that reform was a good platform. Considering reformers, they picked on Wilson as a "man of the hour," and ran him. Wilson was elected, but the bosses soon were led to believe that they had "picked a lemon," for no sooner did "Prexy" have his long legs firmly entwined about the governor's chair rungs than he began loudly to defy. He defied the bosses, he defied the corporations, he defied everybody while the defying was good and he made a noise that was heard throughout the country.

Career as Reformer

"The time when you can play politics and fool the people has gone by," was one of Governor Wilson's platitudes on the night he accepted the New Jersey "call" and there are those who now paraphrase his remarks thusly: "The time when you can play the people and fool the politicians has not come."

One of the most amazing incidents of Woodrow Wilson's campaign for the democratic presidential nomination was his embroglio with Col. Geo. Harvey, editor of Harper's Weekly, and Col. Henry Watterson, editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, over the support accorded Wilson's boom by Harper's Weekly. For months the publication boosted Wilson in every issue, and then came the story in a Charlotte, N. C., newspaper that Governor Wilson had broken with Col. Harvey and requested him to discontinue his support of Wilson. Harper's Weekly came out with an explanation that it had dropped Wilson at his request.

Then Col. Watterson got into the game by telling of the meeting in New York of Col. Harvey, Gov. Wilson and himself, at which Wilson quarreled with Col. Harvey and Col. Watterson because they had enlisted in his behalf Thomas Fortune Ryan, millionaire traction and tobacco magnate. Col. Watterson maintained that at first Wilson took kindly to the Ryan proposition. The thing ended with Col. Watterson's proposal that the controversy be referred to an old-fashioned court of honor. An incident of the affair was the publication of a letter that Gov. Wilson was said to have written to Adrian H. Poline, attacking William Jennings Bryan and hoping that he could be "knocked into a cocked hat." Col Bryan evidently did not resent the letter, for he apparently was an admirer of the New Jersey governor at the Jackson Day dinner held shortly thereafter in Washington.

next recognized, and said: "The desire of every democrat in this convention is to leave the hall united, harmonious, and with victory assured. Whatever person differences we may have had candidates every delegate should be willing to give up his personal feelings to the welfare of the party."

"In the hope that we can demonstrate that no matter how hard we may strive for the mastery of our honest opinions, we should be willing to do anything for the candidate of our party."

"In the interest of harmony, in the interest of a united party, and in the hope of victory next fall, I move that the roll call be suspended and that we nominate by acclamation that distinguished representative of democracy of New Jersey—Governor Woodrow Wilson."

The match was in and the powder was set off. There was a wild outburst of cheers from every section of the hall.

Every delegation with the exception of Missouri was on its feet, yelling and cheering.

Bryan Broadly Smiles

In the Nebraska delegation, Bryan sat with a broad smile on his face. Delegates surrounding him, grasped his hand, and patted him on the back.

Charles F. Murphy was on his feet in the aisle in front of his delegation. Several men spoke to him, but he contented himself with giving a characteristic noise and a grunt.

James was vainly pounding for order. The Baltimore police were tenderly begging the frenzied delegates to be calm and take their seats but it was some time before any sentence could be heard from anyone.

At last, Governor Francis, Senator Stone and Senator Reed went back to the platform.

Reed was recognized. "Without the slightest desire to nominate any feeling of resentment against this motion, we must object to its being carried under the rule that requires unanimous consent. We want a rollcall, so that Missouri's vote can be recorded on this ballot for old Champ Clark."

Missouri Refuses

Delegate F. H. McCullough of Missouri, demanded the right to make a statement.

"As a delegate from Missouri," he said, "I want to say that no one deplores the conditions that have arisen here more than I do. We are for Champ Clark, first, last, and all the time. But before any man Missouri is for harmony and for victory, and should vote for Wilson here."

As the roll call began, it was plain from the outset that Wilson's nomination was a certainty.

nounced by the chair but before it was recorded by the secretary that the nomination be made by acclamation.

Last Great Hurrah

The putting of the motion was the signal for the last tumultuous demonstration by the delegates and galleries and the latter joined with the delegates in a cheering, roaring "aye."

Delegates and spectators were still on their feet and cheering, when at the end of five minutes, James ordered the delegates and galleries to "come to order."

This proved a somewhat difficult task. Some of the New Jersey delegates were embracing each other and a dozen women had torn their hats from their heads and sent them sailing up among the girders.

James recognized Congressman A. M. Palmer of Pennsylvania who moved for a recess until 9 o'clock tonight. An attempt was made to amend the motion to make it eight instead of nine o'clock, but James refused to entertain an amendment and declared the motion carried.

Adjourn Until Night

The delay was to enable the regular convention committees to finish their work so after the vice-presidential work was out of the way, there would only be the adoption of the platform and a few minor matters to clear up. As he was leaving the hall before the vote was announced, Leader Charles F. Murphy of Tammany Hall, was asked for an opinion regarding the nomination.

"I have nothing to say," declared he. "Excepting that New York tried to make the motion unanimous."

There were only a dozen New York delegates in their seats when the motion was put. Among them were Perry and August Belmont, Senator O'Gorman and William McAdoo.

The latter two have been enthusiastic Wilson supporters.

Splendid Nomination

O'Gorman said: "It's a splendid nomination and absolutely assures democratic success at the coming elections."

"Governor Wilson's nomination means that in every state the fight of the local ticket will be made much easier."

William McAdoo who built the Jersey terminals said: "It was a glorious victory clearly obtained."

Bryan refused to comment on the nomination until he got to his hotel. He said Governor Marshall of Indiana and Burke of North Dakota and Congressman Henry of Texas were sure to be placed in the nomination for vice president tonight. The Nebraska vote, he said would probably be divided between Henry and Burke.

Marshall Running Mate

It was generally conceded late this afternoon that Governor Thomas S. Marshall of Indiana will be the vice presidential nominee. He would aid the ticket in Indiana, one of the real doubtful states and geographically speaking it was conceded by all that his nomination would be ideal.

BALTIMORE, Md., July 2.—The Illinois break which had been predicted came on the forty-third ballot. There was a hush when the state was called. Roger Sullivan was standing consulting his lieutenants. Finally he spoke: "Clark 18, Wilson 49."

The delegates in the front cut loose and it was a minute before Sullivan could continue. "Under the unit rule," he said, "the complete vote of the state, 58, must be cast for Governor Wilson."

This brought renewed cheers from the Wilson contingent in the hall.
