FOR STATE FAIR

Determined to present to the people of Oregon and elsewhere a program of free attractions and entertainments never surpassed by any one of the half hundred assemblies of the Oregon state fair in the past, the Oregon state board of agriculture is now working diligently and when the state's greatest annual event is thrown open to the public September 2 this year, a veritable maze of interesting features will meet the eye of the visitors. The officers of the fair are staging the large play under ideal conditions. The semi-tropic elimatic conditions has enabled the farmers in every section fo Oregon to reap boutiful harvests, and for this reason, the state board of agriculture is looking forward to a record-breaking display of county exhibits, while it is predicted that the contests for a portion of the $18,000 offered in premiums on livestock, poultry and other agricultural products will be nteresting and close.

After much planning and specuating, the board has finally made arrangements for four new and interesting additional features to the fair. An interstate shooting tournament will take place on the grounds Monday and Tuesday of the week. Comfortable cash prizes and beautiful trophys have encouraged sportsmen in Oregon, Washington, Idaho and California to enter the contest ofr honors, and the two days shooting event will no doubt result in some national record-breaking in the amateur class. The tournament is open to all and an extensive program has been arranged for the sportsmen to follow.
