NEGRO SUSPECT ACCOUNTS FOR HIS WHEREABOUTS

Although the police are still holding Harry Smith, a negro arrested Wednesday evening as a suspect in the Mildred Green murder case at Eugene, it seems probable today that Smith will be able to account for his presence at Roseburg at the time the murder was committed. He evidently tells a straight story but it will be checked up in detail before Smith is freed. In the meantime Smith is held for carrying concealed weapons and does not know that he is suspected of murder at Eugene. Smith when arrested was under the influence of liquor and more or less belligerent. He failed to account satisfactorily for his whereabouts and made a chance remark concerning murder when making in regard to the charge on which he was held. This seemed to indicate that he was the man wanted at Eugene. This morning, however, his warlike attitude had disappeared and he seemed to be just a big good natured coon. He readily accounted for his recent whereabouts. According to his story he left Eugene on the Shasta limited Sunday night and spent Monday and Tuesday at Roseburg, coming to Medford Wednesday morning. He furnished a list of names of friends who would vouch for his story. The authorities will check him up and if his story is substantiated at Roseburg he will be liberated.

Arthur Capper the republican nominee for governor of Kansas, began his career as a compositor on the Topeka newspaper of which he is now the publisher.
