LABOR ITS OWN REWARD

LABOR, like virtue, is its own reward. Work! The book, be it ever so handsomely bound, is not yours until you have read it.

Though labor is at times irksome one has only to tarry a little time in the over-scented room of idleness to have its perfumes pall on the senses.

Labor is the balm of a noble mind—idleness its poison. Carlyle says, in his essay on Labor:

For there is a perennial nobleness, and even sacredness, in Work. Were he never so benighted, forgetful of his high calling, there is always hope in a man that actually and earnestly works; in idleness alone is there perpetual despair.

The latest Gospel in the world is, Know thy word and do it. "Know thyself;" long enough has that poor "self" of thine tormented thee; thou wilt never get to "know" it, I believe!

Blessed is he who has found his work; let him ask no other blessedness. He has a work, a life-purpose; he has found it and will follow it! How, as a free-flowing channel, dug and torn by noble force through the sour mud swamp of one's existence, like an ever-deepening river there, it runs and flows; draining all the sour festering water gradually from the root of the remotest grass blade; making, instead of a pestilential swamp, a green meadow with its clear-flowing stream.

How blessed for the meadow itself, let the stream and its value be great or small! Labor is life; from the inmost heart of the Worker rises his God-given Force, the sacred celestial Life-essence breathed into him by Almighty God; from his inmost heart awakens him to all nobleness,—to all knowledge, "self-knowledge" and much else, so soon as Work fitly begins.

Knowledge? The knowledge that will hold good in working, cleave thou to that; for Nature herself accredits that, says Yea to that. Properly thou hast no other knowledge but what thou hast got by working; the rest is yet all a hypothesis of knowledge; a thing to be argued of in schools, a thing floating in the clouds in endless logic-vortices, till we try and fix it. "Doubt of whatever kind, can be ended by Action alone."

REGISTRATION IN LOCAL SCHOOLS IS HEAVY THIS YEAR

The 112-113 school year in Medford was opened today and indications at noon showed that the registration will probably be heavier than ever before on the opening day of school.

For a week past school children have been arriving from the outlying districts to enter school in the city. There will be a large attendance here from other points.

Monday school will open, Tuesday the pupils will be assigned to their rooms, the classes assigned, Wednesday study will be in order. The opening day being Labor day, nothing will be done aside from the enrollment of scholars, which is predicted will be at least 150 in excess of last year.

The contracts for the teachers for the coming year were signed at a meeting of the teachers held in the Washington school Saturday afternoon. Plans and outlines of the year were also discussed by Prof. U. S. Collins. The assignment of teachers for the ward schools were also made as follows:

Washington school—P. J. Daily, principal; Ines Coffin, Helen Kelley, Ambrosine Murphy, Mary Davidson, Myrtle Claryville, Helen Purucker, Sara Van Meter, Viola Pholester, Larrana Rownd, Emily DeVore.

Roosevelt school—L. S. Beveridge, principal; Theone Carlin, Mabel I. Myers, Kate Stine, Julia Fielder.

Lincoln school—R. V. Dunham, principal; Marion I. White, Irene Lansing, Anna Hansen, Fern Stine, Grace Pearce, Carrie Jacks, Mary Moore, Mary Peter.

Washington school: South of Main street to district limits, and east of Bear creek. Also, north of Main street to Fourth street, thence to Holly street.

Lincoln school: East of Holly street to Bear creek, all lying north of Main.

Jackson school—North of Fourth street and east to Holly street. In this division, enroll in Jackson school, as seven rooms will be maintained to accommodate the overflow of the Washington school.

GOLD HILL MAN IS WORKING WONDERS WITH FOUR ACRES

Wheat straws six feet in length, sixty-five to one hundred springing from one current kernel, with heads averaging six inches, producing a yield of at least one hundred bushels to the acre, is a possibility for southern Oregon that has been exclusively demonstrated by Enoch M. Smith upon his little brushland farm just west of Gold Hill.

"Gardener" Smith, as he styles himself, is sixty-five years of age, and for a life-time has been modestly tinkering away at the problems of plant growth and breeding, utilizing for the most part land thought to be unfit for agricultural purposes, and making several acres of such soil produce what the average grower considers to be a good return upon many times the acreage.

Mr. Smith's two sons, John and James Smith, are well known and prosperous ranchers of this locality, following worthily in the parental furrow upon their quarter section of fine alfalfa land on Sardine creek.
