What is said to be the most creditable parade ever seen in southern Oregon was witnessed by thousands of people who crowded the downtown section last night, and saw a lengthy file of organizations, floats and the like pass in review. The "Made in Medford" parade was a decided success and nothing but praise was heard when it had passed. Medford once again made good, and in no trifling manner, for a parade is either very good or it is very poor. There is no middle of the road program for such an exhibition.

The parade of Thursday evening was excellent. The success is due in a great degree to the efforts of Charles Lebo who arranged it, and to the many local organizations and business houses who so cheerfully lent their aid in appearing in line, and preparing floats.

The parade was headed by Harry Cingade, acting chief of police, and A. W. Walker, special officer. Immediately behind them appeared Col. H. H. Sargeant, U. S. A., in full dress uniform, who acted as marshal of the night. Seated on a prancing bay charger he made a very pleasing impression. Following came the king and queen on a beautifully decorated float. Their identity was learned when they unmasked at the Nat and proved to be H. C. Kentner and Miss Helen Dahl.

Searclights Bright
Immediately following this came the float of the Pacific Motor Supply company. Three large searchlights in front made the night bright. They were operated by P. S. Steenstrup manager of the company. Following this float came four automobiles carrying the office force and salesmen of the Medford Furniture & Hardware company. Their autos were appropriately decorated.

GOVERNOR BALDWIN, OF CONNECTICUT, RENOMINATED

Simon E. Baldwin, of New Haven, Conn., at the Democratic State Convention held at Hartford on September 12, was unanimously renominated for Governor of Connecticut.

Next in line came the Seventh Company Coast Artillery Corps. The boys were all arrayed in the new dress parade uniforms and made a very attractive appearance. The boys show great improvement in their department, handling themselves like regulars. Their corners were well negotiated and their ranks uniform and snappy. Their appearance last evening shows a steady improvement, and no longer do they appear like a bunch of "rookies." Medford has reason to be proud of the company based on the showing Thursday, for it is no easy task to whip youngsters into form as Captain Deane has succeeded in doing.

The city officials filled an automobile, which had been appropriately decorated. The Medford Military band in four automobiles furnished the music.

Frozen Fruit Shown
The Medford Ice & Storage Company appeared in the parade with a large load of ice. Within the huge cakes fruit, pictures and melons had been frozen. It looked like a hot weather treat. Winchard's brewery was also represented. Huge kegs of beer were heaped high on a dray.

Organizations turned out well and assisted greatly in making the parade a success. The Elks in the white uniforms worn at Portland followed their famous "Zazook band" on a float. The music was amusing and well rendered. Don Colvig officiated at the piano on the float and led the "band" up and down the scales in a truly stupendous manner. The Woodmen of the World was another organization making a splendid showing. Their float was exceptionally good with a huge log and axes in evidence. The members, carrying axes marched behind. They were applauded throughout the length of the march.

The local suffrage club made a great showing. Not only did they have a float on which Judge Kelly, Holbrook Withington, C. L. Schiefel and Fletcher Fish depicted the woes of the husband whose wife had departed to cast her vote, but several automobile loads of suffrage workers were in line while Miss Gladys Heard drove an automobile filled with the babies of women advocates, thus impressing upon voters that it was mothers who desired the ballot.

Telephone Float Good
The Home Telephone company placed a splendid float in the parade. A huge wagon was decorated with numerous telephones, while a young woman operated a switchboard. All of the telephone bells were jangling and ringing for parties who "do not answer." In the forward part of the float Miss Billie Burke operated a typewriter in an up-to-date office and showed the other side of the business—the side where you pay your money.

Garnett-Corey put in a float on which a diminutive gasoline engine drove innumerable appliances. Will Aitken presided as master mechanic. That engine had its wheels full—it pumped water, ran washing machines, churned butter and operated a dynamo.

The gas company put in an excellent float which depicted the development of cooking from the dark ages until the present. The primitive man, was toasting his meat over a camp fire, then came the early settler with his little box stove and then the up-to-date woman who cooks with gas. "Everybody works but mother—she cooks with gas"—was the slogan. It was a very attractive exhibition.

The Shapleigh Hardware company put in an excellent floating boasting a well known brand of tools.

Huge Pear Shown
The Eden Valley Nursery company put in an excellent float. It consisted of a huge pear on a dray and caused many remarks along the line of march. It depicted the chief industry in the valley in a striking manner and Mr. Bennett was heartily congratulated on its appearance.

The Rogue River Commission company put in a float which shows the nature of their business. They had a great display of fruit on each side of the machine—and it was all high grade, too.

The Boy Scouts and the Boys Military brigade were out in force and made excellent showing.

The fire boys had the chemical engine beautifully decorated and a ripple of applause followed them throughout. The car showed the effect of much patient labor.

One of the most attractive features of the parade was the band of forty ladies on horseback. These ladies plan to form a riding club later. The horses they rode were spirited and they made a very splendid showing. The judges have not yet chosen the prize-winning riders.

Mrs. A. W. Walker drove a beautifully decorated carriage. "Kentner's Boosters" comprised of a half-score of young women, filled a wonderfully well decorated car and attracted much attention.

Twohy Bros. contributed to the parade by putting in their auto truck with a string of dump wagons which boosted for good roads.

The parade was a wonderful success and is a credit to the city and to the men who arranged it.

STRUNG UP BY ARMS BY MEXICAN REBELS

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 20.—Arthur Wiggins, an American mining prospector, who spent the past six years in Culiacan, Mexico, is here penniless today. He tells a harrowing tale of the cruelties practiced by Mexican insurgents in that district.

"Our gold mine is located about fifty-five miles east and north of Culiacan, Sinaloa," said Wiggins, "and we ran a general store and mill in conjunction with the mine. On the morning of August 27 an advance scout of the rebels rode into camp and asked for something to eat. Mrs. Wiggins gave it to him. He rode away, and about 11 a. m. a band of rebels numbering 100 came riding into camp. I went out to meet them. The leader demanded provisions and money to which I answered that we could not supply them. He merely smiled and said he would see about it. We thought it the part of prudence to invite him to luncheon. He accepted and went back to his men after he had eaten.

"About half an hour later our general store, half a mile away, was set afire. I directed my men to go on working as if nothing had happened, but one hotspur, excited by the occurrence, rushed out and threw a stick of dynamite into the rebel band. Nineteen were killed.

"They charged me with the act and said that they had decided to shoot me. They strung me up by the arms. After I had hung for an hour, my wife threw an English flag over me and dared them to shoot. They took me down and I escaped."

JUDGE BLACK MAY BE DISQUALIFIED FOR OFFICE

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 20.—Should Judge W. W. Black of Everett be declared ineligible to run for governor during his judicial term, Hugh C. Todd of Seattle, who is only 28, will receive the democratic nomination. Todd ran only 500 votes behind Black in the primaries.

So serious has the question of Black's eligibility become, that the democratic state committee itself may bring the test case before the supreme court. There is much conflict on the constitutional provision which prohibits judges from holding any other office during their term as to whether or not Black's judicial duties do not extend to one day beyond the date when the gubernatorial term commences.

DUNBAR'S DEATH OPENS WAY FOR YOUNG LAWYERS

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 20.—With the death of Chief Justice R. O. Dunbar, the nomination and election of supreme court judge on the non-partisan judicial ticket may fall to any lawyer in the state, however obscure he may be. The law provides that where candidates receive a majority vote at the primary election, they are at once elected. Judge Dunbar and his two associates, who were up for re-election had no opposition, but the official canvass of election returns has not yet been made. If, therefore, the name of any other lawyer was written in by friends in a complimentary way, he may soon get the pleasant surprise that he has been elected supreme court judge.

Judge Dunbar's funeral will be held in private at Olympia. The courts in the state will adjourn in respect to his memory.

Senator Heyburn Improved

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—United States Senator Heyburn of Idaho, who was confined to his apartments here recently suffering from heart trouble, left Washington today for Swarthmore, Pa., to recuperate. He will proceed to Idaho later.
