IDAHO REQUIRES OFFICIAL COUNT

BOISE, Idaho, Nov. 8.—It will require the official canvass of the vote of Idaho to decide whether President Taft or President-Elect Wilson has carried the state. The margin will be less than 500 either way, and as returns show considerable difference in the vote given from the districts, it is possible that the vote will be split.

Returns received thus far have been unofficial, and were compiled by newspapers.

From one source Taft is given a lead of 509 and from another Wilson is accredited with a similar lead.

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 8.—Senator Robert M. GOVERNOR WEST SAYS HANGING WILL BE ORDER

SALEM, Ore., Nov. 8.—Inferring that the present election is somewhat of a commentary on the humanitarianism of the Oregon electorate, Governor West today issued the following statement:

"It has been made plain from the election returns that the people of Oregon prefer hanging. I have no complaint to make against the voters' decision. I am opposed to capital punishment as a matter of conscience, and always will be, but I will abide by the decision of the people and hanging will be the rule in this state from now on.

"December 13 will be a red letter day in Oregon for those who favor capital punishment. I regret that the seating capacity in the death chamber is so limited that many of those eager for a hanging must be disappointed, but we'll do the best we can under the circumstances."

It is evident that the wholesale hangings will cause as much national-wide comment as the notorious hanging of a quintet in Chicago a few months ago.

It is expected that despite the edict of the polls on election day, a statewide, and perhaps a nationwide movement will be started against the hangings.
