WILSON REMAINS SILENT AS TO FUTURE PLANS

PRINCETON, Nov. 9.—Woodrow Wilson intends to follow out his listening policy for several weeks before making any announcements of importance. He said he had decided to go away next week on a vacation of three or four weeks, during which time he would be out of reach of political callers. Several telegrams were received today, one from Eugene Chafin, prohibition candidate for the presidency. He wired his congratulations and added: "I move to make it unanimous."

PLANS LIVESTOCK AND DAIRY SHOW

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 9.—That the dairy stock to be entered at the forthcoming Pacific International Dairy Show, to be held at the Portland Union Stockyards November 18-23, will represent the best in the country, is shown by the winning of a large number of prizes by Pacific northwest stock at the National Dairy Show at Chicago the past week.

A telegram from Chicago advises that the Hazelwood herd received 19 firsts, 9 seconds, 9 thirds, and 8 other prizes, including awards for senior and grand champion cow, for junior bull, for aged herd, first and second dairy herd, breeders young herd and calf herd, also grand prizes for premier and exhibitor. This entire herd of Holsteins is entered for the Portland show and Holstein breeders throughout the west will have an opportunity to compare their own stock with this champion herd. It is considered highly probable that there may be better dairy stock on the coast than that sent east.

O. M. Plummer, manager of the show, has received telegraphic entries from Phoenix, Ariz., from breeders who will enter one herd of Guernseys and another of Ayrshires. This is the first time that livestock has been secured from the southwest for a show of any kind in this territory.

Prof. F. L. Kent, of the Oregon Agricultural college, together with Mr. Bothell, of the Agricultural Department at Washington, D. C., will have charge of the milk, cream and cheese division. Prof. Kent has just returned from the National Dairy Show at Chicago.

Entries for the combination sale of pure bred and high-grade dairy cattle are coming in freely. Dates of the sale are Nov. 20, 21, 22. Bankers of the interior are interested in this, expecting in some instances to furnish dairy cows to their customers, taking notes in payment. Some of the owners of large tracts of logged-off land are figuring on stocking their holdings to secure an immediate income and are showing much interest in the coming auction of well bred stock.

EIGHT HOUR LAW SCARES CITY OF PORTLAND

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 9.—If the eight-hour law passed at the state election last Tuesday shall be found to apply to the local fire department this city will face the most serious situation that has confronted the municipal officials here for years.

So momentous is the interpretation of the law that Mayor Rushlight today directed City Attorney Grant to file without delay an opinion with the city council, stating whether or not the provisions of the act are applicable to Portland firemen. If so, the city may have to go without fire protection for the coming year unless public-spirited citizens contribute nearly a million dollars to the city treasury.

The controversy between the theatrical syndicates and the American Federation of Musicians, which, for a time, threatened trouble, has been adjusted.

EAGLE POINT EAGLES.

(By A. C. Howlett.)

The last time I wrote my paper gave out before I had written all that I wanted to, so will commence just where I left off.

I was giving an account of what I saw and heard on my way from Pilot Rock to Fairview. On reaching Fairview I was met at the train by my daughter, Mrs. Tavia Shaw, and we were soon on our way to her home.

I noticed some changes in the little village for the better. The town hall had been completed so far as the outside work is concerned. They have it arranged to as to have a council room, a room for the post-office, the calaboose and some extra rooms for business offices and by the time it is finished will be an ornament to the place and is so arranged that it will be quite a business center. The town of Fairview is quite highly favored in the line of transportation, having the O. W. R. & N. railroad passing through it on the north side and the electric car line passing through the south side, where a car passes from Portland to Estacada every half hour from 4 a. m. until 8 p. m. and by that means one can take the car in the morning and go to Portland or Estacada, spend the day visiting or shopping and return in the afternoon in time to do up the chores before night. I arrived at my daughter's on Friday evening and on Saturday rested and Sunday went to church and heard Dr. Metz of Fruitdale lecture on the subject of tuberculosis. The lecture was not so interesting as I had expected but after he had finished his lecture the Presbyterian minister, Rev. Thomason, gave a very interesting talk on the subject, taking his

EAGLE POINT EAGLES.

(By A. C. Howlett.)

The last time I wrote my paper gave out before I had written all that I wanted to, so will commence just where I left off.

I was giving an account of what I saw and heard on my way from Pilot Rock to Fairview. On reaching Fairview I was met at the train by my daughter, Mrs. Tavia Shaw, and we were soon on our way to her home.

I noticed some changes in the little village for the better. The town hall had been completed so far as the outside work is concerned. They have it arranged to as to have a council room, a room for the post-office, the calaboose and some extra rooms for business offices and by the time it is finished will be an ornament to the place and is so arranged that it will be quite a business center. The town of Fairview is quite highly favored in the line of transportation, having the O. W. R. & N. railroad passing through it on the north side and the electric car line passing through the south side, where a car passes from Portland to Estacada every half hour from 4 a. m. until 8 p. m. and by that means one can take the car in the morning and go to Portland or Estacada, spend the day visiting or shopping and return in the afternoon in time to do up the chores before night. I arrived at my daughter's on Friday evening and on Saturday rested and Sunday went to church and heard Dr. Metz of Fruitdale lecture on the subject of tuberculosis. The lecture was not so interesting as I had expected but after he had finished his lecture the Presbyterian minister, Rev. Thomason, gave a very interesting talk on the subject, taking his text or starting point the case of Naaman, the leper, as recorded in 2 Kings, 5 chapter.

Speaking of the church here at Fairview it appears that the leading members have arranged to consolidate the M. E. church with its Presbyterianism so that they will hereafter be one organization, although there is a lady who comes out from Portland about every two weeks and conducts services in the M. E. building.

After dinner my daughter and I took the car and went out to the county farm, or what is called in most places the poor farm, but if that is a poor farm I would like to know what there is poor about it, for the buildings look more like palaces than like anything poor. The houses are of brick, stone and concrete, two stories high and the rooms are large and airy. The bedrooms are well arranged and in some of them they have several beds but in that case the rooms are very large and well lighted and ventilated and everything we saw showed that everything that could be done for the comfort of the inmates was done and they all seemed to be happy and contented. They have a large assembly room so arranged as to accommodate several hundred persons where they can have amusements, religious services, etc. While we were there the British consul and his daughter came out from Portland and conducted the service of the Protestant Episcopal church. There was quite a good attendance, and it was good to hear so many of those poor, old dependants sing. They seemed to enjoy the singing very much. They have everything arranged very conveniently. They get their water from a large spring on the hill above the farm and that furnishes the farm with all the water they need. They have their own power plant and do about all of their work that can be done with machinery by electric force. The laundry is supplied with a washing machine that will wash one hundred and twenty sheets at a time, and these are placed in a wringer that squeezes the water all out. They are then run through a machine that dries and irons them and the heaviest articles, such as underwear, outside heavy clothes, etc., are hung on racks and run into a dryer where they are dried in a few minutes. In the culinary department everything looked clean and up to date and from the appearance of things the table is supplied with a great plenty. In speaking of the place, in many instances it is spoken of as "The Palace." The farm is managed on scientific principles and the soil is so rich that it produces an abundant crop. Along the walk from the railroad station to the buildings the volunteer grain that came since harvest stood two and a half feet high and as green as could be.

But I find that I am getting this letter too long, but the next time will try to tell something of the productiveness of this part of the county and what I saw on my way from Fairview to this place. Damascus, Ore., Nov. 6, 1912.
