PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 14.—The heathen Chinese may be "some there" when it comes to the tricky and peculiar stuff, but he has nothing on a certain rich Portlander, name unannounced, who owns several lodgings in the old restricted districts, and who to get by the "tin plate" ordinance, requiring apartment and lodging houses to conspicuously display the names of their owners, is displaying his own name in Hebrew on his holdings. There is nothing in the ordinance forbidding the use of a foreign language in the make-up of the signs, and it is now believed that the course adopted by this individual will be generally followed.

FIVE SHOT IN ARIZONA QUARREL

CLINTON, Ariz., Nov. 14.—Franklin B. Dorr, a prominent lawyer and former newspaperman and John Barrone, a saloonkeeper, are dead today; two Mexican laborers are wounded, one fatally, as a result of a quarrel fired by William Allenden, a theatrical man, who lies at the point of death. A dispute arose between Allenden and Dorr over the sale of a theatre. Allenden secured a double barreled shotgun and opened fire. At the first discharge Dorr was mortally wounded, and Barrone was killed by a stray shot. The two Mexicans were also hit by buckshot intended for Dorr. After the shooting Allenden barricaded himself in the theatre. A posse surrounded the place and a steady fusillade was kept up.
