EAGLETS ABROAD. By A. C. Howlett

As I have just received The Mail Tribune of Nov. 15 and see that I am letting the printer run out of "copy" and as I have the house all to myself as my daughter, Mrs. Shaw, has gone out on business—you know that the women are recognized citizens now—in fact she went to register as a voter, and the children are all off attending a little party except the baby and she is asleep so you see I have the house all to myself, quite a treat, so will put in the time to the best of advantage for the benefit of the readers of my scribbling. When I last wrote I told something of the productivity of this part of the country. Since then I have had the privilege of riding over a considerable portion of this section that I used to travel over some fifty years ago and have had a fine opportunity to notice the changes that have taken place. While I was here fifty years ago the country lying south of the Columbia river was a vast forest covered with massive fir trees, hazel brush and grass so that it was difficult for any one to go, even on horseback, from place to place and the farms then owned, or rather the tracts of land owned by the farmers varied in size from one hundred and sixty to six hundred and forty acres, but now the farms vary in size from one to twenty acres for one scarcely ever finds a farm of over twenty acres and from what I can learn the majority run under twenty acres, for while riding out the first of this week I sat in the buggy and counted sixteen farms right along the road going from Damascus to Sunny Side—not the Sunny Side of Eagle Point, but Sunny Side a thriving little village in Clackamas county in less than a mile's travel, but notwithstanding the smallness of the farms they all seemed to have large and well filled houses, and one man who had a thirty acre farm that I talked with said that when he built his barn he had the posts twenty-two feet long and thought that he would have an abundance of room for everything, but found that it was entirely too small although it was twenty-four by sixty feet and he had to put an addition to it to make room. Speaking of the towns scattered over this part of the country they nearly every one have from one to three store, a blacksmith shop, a mill and a good school house and in most of them a church and in one of the stores they have a hall for general purposes. The election passed off where I voted very pleasantly it was held in a hall at Damascus and I was amused to see them line up on a long bench and almost every one of them were smoking and the room was so full of tobacco smoke that one not used to that kind of atmosphere could hardly get their breath and I heard one of the judges, that don't smoke say that he was going to try to influence the county court before the next election to appoint women as judges and clerks and then they would put a stop to smoking in the room. I also noticed that a majority of the citizens there were Germans and that they all seemed to vote against woman suffrage the reason assigned was that if the women were allowed to vote that they would vote to put liquor out of the way and then they could not get their beer. There were about one hundred and eighty votes cast and it took all night, all the next day until 9:30 p. m. to make the count, that was owing to the length of the ticket and another reason was that one of the clerks was a new one and did not understand how to hurry up in the work. Well after staying at my brother-in-law's for ten days and having as good time as possible, although it rained every day, he took me to Sycamore station on the Etacada line where I took the car for Linaman and there took the car for

KANE'S CREEK

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis were recent Medford business visitors. Miss Viri Henderson of Blackwell was a pleasant caller on Braden friends one day recently. Mr. and Mrs. Mardon attended the dance and show in Gold Hill Saturday night. Nellie Bowman of Gold Hill spent the forepart of the week as the guest of Mrs. Shump of the Brader mine. James Taylor has returned home from northern California after an all summer's absence. Walter Norris left on Saturday's train for Medford to spend Sunday with home folks. Messrs. Lane and Stinebring were business visitors on Kanes Creek Friday. Katherine Foley, who is teaching the Sardinia school spent Saturday and Sunday with her parents here. Kanes Creek business visitors to Gold Hill this week were Mr. and Mrs. Mardon, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis, Mrs. Taylor and daughter, Mr. Martin, Fred Straube and wife, Shimp, Bessie Kirek, Morell McChonchie, Elmer Higinbotham and wife, John Kells and the Misses Katherine and Margaret Foley. Weather Prophet Foster forecasts of the month ending November, fair weather. Dr. Kelsey of Gold Hill made a business trip to Kanes Creek the forepart of the week. Mack Blowers, a former resident of this place but now of Harrisburg, Ore., was here not long since looking after business interests. Mr. and Mrs. Household spent Wednesday in Medford as the guest of their son, Roy and family. Bessie Kirek spent a day recently in Gold Hill with her friend, Mrs. Smith. Miss Pearl Higinbotham who has been packing apples for Mr. Miller of Sams Valley for the past month, has returned home. Messdames Swinden and Rhoden of Galla creek were the guests of Kanes Creek relatives and friends on Monday. We are sorry to say that Meade Goodrich is unable to attend school this week owing to sickness.

this place, but before I pass on to another subject I wish to tell of my experience while on the road. As we were riding along my brother-in-law pointed out the different farms along the route where I used to visit fifty years ago, he would say there is the old Sam Gilliam place and that is the old Ban Johnson place and that is the old Tadago place, etc., but they were so unlike the forest covered places that I used to visit that I could see no resemblance, and another thing was that the farms that used to embrace in some instances hundreds of acres were now cut up into small tracts and covered with neat farm houses, and most of the timber taken off and what is standing is being cut into cord wood and used for fuel. But I find that I am making this letter too long so will close for this time and try and write again this week. I commenced this letter last Saturday but the children came in before I got through so had to finish it this morning. Cleone, Ore., Nov. 18, 1912.
