Chorus-Oh, give me a job as conductor The man who rings up every fare I'd dote on a suit with brass buttons To give me a soldierly air. But dearer to me the position For reason far greater than these, I'd love to be known in the valley As the guy who yells, "step lively please.

MORGAN THE PATRIOT.

D IERPONT MORGAN has found a valiant defender in the Medford Sun which hints that the Mail Tribune is abusing that great and good man. The Sun quotes Morgan as saying that character is the sole asset required to everyone must put his shoulder to the wheel and pushborrow money and remarks:

Mr. Morgan has been abroad in the world for many years the legitimate prey of every blackener but the pitch with which they have tried to smear him has stuck to their own hands. It is a comparatively easy matter to attain a certain popularity by abuse especially the abuse of those who have more than we have

The Mail Tribune has no desire to abuse the king of Wall Street, the joss to whom so many conventional, well meaning individuals kow tow, and speak of in hushed tones, with all due reverence.

Morgan is one of the big figures of the day-but like most of those the world delights to honor, crowned with does not include a large number who is a reprint of one which Dr. Mather the laurel wreath of "success," has always been a disciple died of bronche-pneumonia, a great wrote prior to his death in 1728. of Machiavelli-in plain English, an unserupulous hypocrite, sacrificing principle, ruthlessly ruining those in his path, betraying alike friend or foe to attain his ends.

Let us see how Morgan, the great patriot, got his start as a financial genius: During the civil war, Morgan went a time of life when measles is most proven as the cause of measles. We into partnership with Arthur M. Eastman of New Hampshire, who contracted to purchase from the United States government, 5000 condemned earlines at $3,50 each. The large number of cases of tuberculosis tirst stages of the disease, therefore carbines were sold to General Fremont at St. Louis, who which follow an attack of it. Less persons suffering with the measle had no authority to buy them, at $22 each. The carbines were shipped direct from the New York arsenal where they were stored by the government, to the St. Louis From a public health standpoint, then, arsenal, where Fremont was stationed.

A congressional committee, after investigating, reported:

Thus the proposal actually was to sell to the government at $22 each, 5,000 of its own arms, the intention being, if the offer was accepted to In fact the word "measies" traces confers immunity, there are many obtain these arms from the government at $3.50 each. very evident that the very funds with which this purchase was effected were borrowed on the faith of the previous agreement to sell. The government not only sold for one day for $17.486 arms which it had agreed the day before to repurchase for $109.912 - making a loss to the United States "spots." . The writings of the ancient too great reliance should not be of $92,426 - but virtually furnished the money to pay lisely the $17.486 Arabian physicians are replace with placed on this immunity. It was this particular decision which assured the "open assame" for the holders of what were then cynically called "deadhorse claims," to collect the full amount of their swindling operations. The government could now plead itself defenseless against the horde of contractors who had bribed officials to accept decayed ships and defective armor, worthless arms and shoddy clothing, flimsy tepts, blankets and shoes, and haversacks which came to pieces, adulterated food and similar equipment and supplies. As for criminal action, not a single one of these defrauders went to prison, or stood in any danger of it; the courts throughout the land were perennially bury rushing off petty defrauders to imprisonment and employing the full punitive power of their machinery against poor, uninfluential offenders.
