ANDERSON AND WOLGAST MATCH IS POSSIBILITY

(By Harry A. Williams, in the Los Angeles Times.)

Ad. Wolgast vs. Bud Anderson at Vernon, on March 17, meaning St. Patrick's day.

This is merely a possibility, but as Wolgast is a young man with a strong betting personality, it should interest him.

Bud Anderson, through his manager, Dick Donald, claims to have $10,000 with which to back himself against Wolgast. Promoter McCarey is willing to stage the match providing that Wolgast will be at all reasonable in his terms.

The large sum mentioned by Messrs. Anderson and Donald appears to be real money. Five thousand dollars of it will be put up by Donald, and the remaining $5000 will be provided by the rather sporty citizens of Medford.

Court Hall, in fact, has been authorized by the Medford bunch to back Anderson against Wolgast for $5000 and put up the entire $10,000 if necessary. But the latter contribution to the pool will be unnecessary as Anderson and Donald have a few simoleans stored away for just such purposes.

Bud Means Business

These Medford people seem to be made of money. Upon their arrival here for the Anderson-Trott bout, they were greeted with a slight degree of skepticism. It is coin that does the chattering that counts, and it wasn't many days before they had silenced the Trott supporters. And, incidentally, they made one magnificent clean-up.

Therefore when the population of Medford mentions large sums, said remarks are to be taken seriously.

Dick Donald, although one of the youngest managers in the business, is one of the shrewdest. When Donald suggested such a match with a $5000 side bet embellishment, the astute Levy, manager of Rivers, rave the empyrean and raved about $10,000 wagers and such like. That was before Donald had received assurances of practically unlimited backing from the Medford bunch. Thus the thing, by the simple process of elimination, narrows down to Wolgast. Because of his speculative tendencies, Ad was expected to grab that $10,000 bait, hook, sinker and line.

Wolgast Sidesteps

But Wolgast seems a bit inclined to sidestep the issue. In a dispatch received from Portland Wolgast is quoted as follows:

"I will fight any lightweight in the world for $10,000. Bud, however, is not a strong enough drawing card for the promoters to figure sending him against me. After I've beats one or two more boys he will be in line for a big-purse affair. My advice to Anderson is to go east for a couple of ten-round bouts, or meet Joe Mandot over the same route. Then he will be primed for a match with Rivers, Ritchie or myself."

In other words, Wolgast wants Bud to go and get a "rep." There was a time when Battling Nelson might have advised Ad to do the same thing.

Anderson in Demand

Anderson suddenly finds himself one of the best drawing cards on the coast. Mel Moffit, the Oakland promoter, has wired Donald offering Bud a match with Joe Azevedo on either Februray 4 or 11. Promoter Griffin of San Francisco also is courting Anderson's favor, and is willing to match him with Lew Powell or Red Watson. Donald promised McCarey three matches in Los Angeles, and he seems inclined to perform up to his word. Therefore the northern promoters must go begging for the present.

EAGLE POINT EAGLETS.

By A. C. Howlett.

Nathaniel Wolery was born November 10, 1837, in Wilmonten, Ohio. He was married to Rachel Gilpin September 7, 1865. To this union was born five children, three girls and two boys, one son and two daughters still survive him, Alkens Wolery who lives at Loyd, Montana, Mrs. Grant Mathews of Eagle Point and Mrs. Harry Copenger of Coburg, Mont., beside these he is survived by his aged wife, seven grandchildren and a large circle of friends.

He enlisted as a soldier Sept. 17, 1861, and was mustered out Oct. 7, 1864, 40th Ohio Vol. Inf., Co. B. He was wounded Sept. 18, 1863, at Rossville, Georgia, was in the hospital at Marshall's Run eleven months. He died Jan. 29, 1913, at his home in Eagle Point, Oregon, aged 75 years, two months and nineteen days.

He also had an adopted daughter, Mrs. James Cohnsell of Seven Rivers, Canada. The remains were interred in the Central Point cemetery, the religious services being conducted in the Baptist church by the pastor, Rev. L. L. Simmons, and the interment was conducted by the G. A. R. corps. There was a very large attendance at the funeral, the school being dismissed so that the children could attend in a body.

John Allen of Derby was in town the fore part of the week on business. Mr. Allen is one of our progressive farmers and stockmen and has been greatly interested in the stock business in general, but now seems to be more particularly in the horse business as he is raising some very fine horses at present.

John Laden, who has a homestead on Indian creek and is anxious for all the news all the time has added his name to the long list of subscribers to the Mail Tribune, making the sixth new subscriber this month.

Miss Mable Wamsley, who has been visiting friends in Butte Falls for some time returned home Thursday.

Mr. Elon Bierbersendt and son of Brownsboro were doing business here Wednesday.

Mr. Wm. Nichols of Lake creek, and Mr. Berquist of Rogue River, were getting a lot of wire fencing of Von der Hellen Bros. this week.

Miss Barrow, of Elk Creek and one other lady were passengers on the E. P. and Persist stage Wednesday morning on their way to the Elk creek country.

The last time I wrote, Saturday evening, I was just getting ready to start with Rev. Mark C. Davis, for Sams Valley, and so will give an account of our trip to that famous valley. There was nothing of interest visible until we reached the Bybee bridge, except that we saw a few new houses dotting the large prairie, commonly called the desert, but when we reached the bridge we soon discovered that someone had been cutting into the timbers to test their soundness. After crossing we began to see men busily engaged working in the orchards, and found that Mr. Washburn had his cider press in operation, found some digging potatoes.

Passing on we found that there has been quite a quantity of fencing done along the route, but very little farming being done, in fact we found considerable snow on the ground, but the people seemed to be in good spirits and seemed to think that this year was going to be an exceptional good year for crops.

Sunday morning we went to Antioch shool house where Rev. Davis preached to a good sized audience and in the afternoon he preached again at Table Rock to a large audience for that section. I understand that there is some talk of building a church there but the community changes so fast that it is hard to tell what will be done. Returning home Sunday night after preaching we took the car for Grants Pass via Medford to consult Dr. Findley with regard to my eyes, but they were so much better he let me off on the 2:21 train. I found that the people were considerably elated over the prospect of a railroad to the coast.

Mr. Ash, the man who bought the Allen place at Trail, commonly known as the Trail House, come out Sunday, spent the night with us, left his team here and went to Medford and from there to Central Point, returning Tuesday morning.

Henry Daley, the meat-cutter for the Nichols meat market, went to Medford Monday on special business.

Mrs. Roe, mother of the authoress, who writes under the name of Vingie Roe, went to Medford Monday morning returning in the afternoon.

Mr. Sidley, one of the old pioneers of Lake creek is down visiting his son-in-law, T. C. Dugan. He went to Medford and Jacksonville Monday returning the same day.
