

PRESS COMMENTS FROM LOS ANGELES ANDERSON FIGHT

Following are Los Angeles press opinions of Bud Anderson, following the fight with Brown.

Harry Carr in Los Angeles Times: The truth about Bud Anderson was told by DeWitt Van Court four or five days before the fight. Bud had gone stale. Van Court's practiced eye saw it before Bud knew it himself.

Edwin O'Malley in Los Angeles Record: Lack of strength lost Bud Anderson the opportunity to get a match with Rivers or Ritchie. The question now arises, can Bud make 133 pounds at noon and be strong? The battling instinct is alive in Bud. Rubbing and stimulants might have brought him in a fair way to the scratch had another round been fought, but he was a weak boy, indeed, when the last session had been finished. A local boxing expert hit the nail on the head several days before the bout when he announced in print that Anderson appeared to be drawn too fine. We are of the opinion that had he entered the ring good and strong he would have laid Brown low before the 15th round. His right uppercut to the chin was splendidly executed and had steam back of them, but not the full quota of steam that Anderson, when strong possesses.

H. M. Walker in Los Angeles Examiner: Bud Anderson was licked by his seconds, blked out of a clinch fight by the excited parties who squeezed the towels in Bud's corner. When the 20th round opened Anderson was so far out in front that the referee had to look all round the ring to make sure that Brown was still in the house. All Bud had to do to win was to use the ring for a playground during that last three minutes. He could have jabbed "Kayo" a couple times for luck, turkeyed from one corner to another, nodded a howdy to his Medford friends, and slipped away a winner over one of the toughest babies that ever fell through the ropes.

Instead of playing safe Bud follows orders and tries to mix it with a man that he already has licked to a whisper. The result was that he stuck his chin in front of a Borneo blast and dropped without a squeal left in his system.

What could the referee do? You can't pin a decision on a man that's ready for a shroud. The bell rang and she was a draw—the only possible decision. One more punch and Bud would have gone under for the count.

The left lunge that floored Bud wouldn't have kicked a blink out of him in one of the early rounds. But he was so worn out from beating Brown that it only took a cough to lay him out.

Think of it, kind friend, all Bud had to do is to walk around the ring and think of the letter that he's going to write home. Eytton is all set to reach over and raise Bud's hand when the Medford kid goes plumb bugs and tries to slug with a party what don't know nothing else.

Instead—but why rave! I lose all patience with a guy of this kind. I see where "Dum" Morgan kicks at the draw decision. Take it from me Dan was the happiest man in the house to get an even break. He was so close to losing his meal ticket that hard work stared him in the face.

If these kids are matched up again I'm a gonna go in Anderson's corner myself. I can make him lick Brown in less than 10 rounds.

Bud is a bright youngster and he probably learned a lot from this experience. The same goes for his manager if he is an open-minded citizen. I'll have a ticket on Bud the next time out.

BAKER SLATED FOR FEDERAL JUDGESHIP

WASHINGTON, March 21.—The federal judgeship in California left vacant by the death of Judge DeHaven, may very soon be filled by the appointment of Representative John E. Baker. This is the opinion of Californians in the capital. Baker is on good terms with Secretary of the Interior Lane, whose advice as to this vacancy will be taken by the attorney general and the president. Baker's determination to become federal judge is said to be wavering since some of his friends have urged that he become a candidate next year to succeed Senator Perkins.

COLONIST RATES BRING GREAT RUSH TO COAST STATES

PORTLAND, March 21.—Overwhelmed by the rush of colonists to the northwest in volume much greater than they had anticipated, the leading transcontinental railroads have issued orders for the assembling of all their available tourist car equipment at the initial points from which the homeseekers entrain on their lines.

The fact that the railroads have not been emphasizing colonist rates and selling dates very conspicuously in their advertising, and that in a way, the roads are trying to discourage the colonist season business, were taken as sufficient guarantee that the movement would not be extraordinary this spring.

While it is too early to make anything like an accurate prediction, it is estimated that fully 5000 farmers and prospective settlers are now on their way from the east and central western states to north Pacific coast points. This points to a daily average for the five days since the 1913 season opened, of approximately 1000 newcomers headed for this section of the country.

The preliminary reports received here by the Hill lines, the Milwaukee and the Union Pacific representatives state that every train which has left Chicago or St. Paul since last Saturday, the opening day, has carried a large quota of colonists and that the number is increasing rather than diminishing each succeeding day.

Advices received here from F. W. Graham, western industrial and immigration agent, now in St. Paul, are to the effect that the Great Northern has handled more than twice as many colonists for this territory, in the first four days as this road did for the corresponding period of last year.

The sections of the east from which the heaviest volume of this traffic is drawn are Tennessee, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin and Minnesota. Based on early reports, it looks as if the high-water colonist movement of the spring of 1910, which totaled over 24,000, will be surpassed this year.

Every railroad man in this territory is watching the movement with great interest and they are calling upon the commercial organizations of the principal communities of Oregon and Washington to assist in the proper reception and welcome to the newcomers.

TERRIFIC POWER AREOPLANE GUN

WASHINGTON, March 21.—A new aeroplane gun, declared to be the most powerful in the world, will soon be tested out at Sandy Hook Proving Ground. It fires a six pound projectile filled with one of the highest explosives known. It can be aimed at an elevation of 70 degrees. So terrific is the force driving the shell that when leaving the muzzle of the gun it has a velocity of 2,700 feet per second.

Because of a peculiar curve taken in the air by a shell it is necessary to arrange sights to automatically allow for the curve. In the complicated sights of this gun the variation caused by each degree of heat from the sun, each breath of air, the height and distance of the aeroplane is provided for.

The bitter shell is filled with high explosive gelatine which scatters with terrific force, small bullets in all directions. The charge is exploded by a small pin dislodged by compact with the canvas wings of the aeroplane.

FRUIT GROWERS OF NORTHWEST IN ONE ORGANIZATION

Porter J. Neff is attending a meeting of the directors of the recently organized North Pacific Fruit Distributors as representative of the Rogue river valley fruit growers.

Through this organization, it is hoped, the fruitgrowers of the entire northwest will be able to make great economies in the sale of fruit, particularly apples, avoiding the confusion that sometimes results from independent efforts by growers of different districts, and bring the apple, pear and cherry directly into the hands of the consumer.

The organization was formed last December, but at that time little work was accomplished. The meeting at North Yakima is to formulate the business plan of the organization and decide what its scope shall be. There are seven directors, representing respectively the following districts: Yakima, Wenatchee, Hood River, Rogue river, south Idaho, Lewiston-Clarkston and Montana. Local organizations in each district choose the directors, and each director has one vote.

A common fund for advertising will be one of the subjects for discussion, also the question of a uniform system of grading, so that any fruit bearing the brand of the distributors will be known as to grading without further inquiry. It is not proposed, however, to disturb the local branding of each district, so that each may retain the advantages built up by its own merits and marketing. The evidence of glut in markets by a scientific distribution of the output of the various districts, is to be the principal work of the organization.
