Captain W. Rawlings, who formerly made his home in this valley but now makes his home in Wyoming, was in Medford today exhibiting to friends a real Confederate flag which he captured in 1863. The flag proved of great interest. It is covered with stains and pierced with bullets, telling an eloquent story of the bloody days in the early 60's.

Captain Rawlings was in command of Company "F," 23rd Iowa infantry at the battle of Big Black river, Mississippi, May 17, 1863. The company led a charge on the rebel works and it was during this charge that he captured the flag from the 61st Tennessee infantry.

OPERATIONS BEGIN ON IMPROVEMENTS CRATER LAKE PARK

PORTLAND, Ore., March 29.—George E. Goodwin, assistant United States engineer, has been at Crater Lake park for the past ten days, says Major Jay J. Morrow, making arrangements for getting men and materials in for the work, which will be begun as soon as conditions will allow. The work on the road building will be started at about the middle of the project and go both ways. Preliminary operations will begin about 10 or 12 miles east of the present lodge located on the rim of the crater. There will be about 63 miles of roads to be built with an estimate of $600,000 cost and six years' time to complete the work. In addition to the roads there are numerous trails to be built, some on the inside of the crater rim going down a distance of from 500 feet to 2000 feet.

It is the hope of the engineers that enough of the work can be done in the next two years to facilitate the traveling parties into the park for the benefit of tourists who come out to the coast to visit the Panama-Pacific exposition at San Francisco, as the working season is short, with only about three months for actual work, it is hoped that operations can be started promptly.
