

SUFFRAGETTE BEDRIDDEN BY HUNGER STRIKE

Miss Zelle Emerson, American Suffragette Freed From Prison With Shattered Constitution as Result of Refusal to Eat—Health Broken

Mrs. Pankhurst Has not Eaten a Morsel Since Sentence Imposed—Remarkable Vitality Surprises

LONDON, April 10.—The probability of being bedridden for the rest of her life from a shattered constitution, the result of instituting a hunger strike in prison, was faced with a smile today by Miss Zelle Emerson, the American suffragette. "The cause is worth any kind of sacrifice," is the statement attributed to Miss Emerson.

At suffragette headquarters it was alleged that Miss Emerson's nose was fractured while being forcibly fed at Holloway prison and that she probably will be disfigured for life immediately after her release she was removed to a private hospital her health reported broken completely. The suffragette's mother says she will be unable to see visitors for at least a week.

Expecting that the hunger strike conducted by Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the noted militant suffragette leader, sentenced to three years' imprisonment for inciting the dynamiting of the country home of David Lloyd-George, would result in her release, 5000 gathered about Holloway prison today, hoping to see her leave. The police, however, dispersed them.

Mrs. Pankhurst has not eaten a morsel of food since sentence was imposed, her remarkable vitality surprising the prison physicians.

Following reports of a lively trade in the metal abroad, copper improved. The bears covered on the lower level of prices and turned the market upward before noon. The market closed steady. Bonds were easy.

SINGLE TARIFF BILL FAVORED BY DEMOCRATS

Caucus Resumes Consideration of Measure—Agents of Big Business Swarm About Capitol Hoping to Arouse Sentiment

Tomorrow is Appointment Day for President Wilson—Will King to Be Appraiser at New York

WASHINGTON, April 10.—Sentiment favoring the passage of a single tariff bill instead of dividing the various schedules was growing among legislators when democratic congressmen today resumed their caucus to consider the bill. At the same time, agents of "big business" swarmed about the capitol hoping to arouse sentiment against the sweeping tariff reduction, with little prospect of success.

A stubborn fight was waged here today by plate glass manufacturers against a reduction of duties on glass.

It also was reported that certain congressmen who oppose free sugar have organized a letter writing campaign of protest among cane growers, urging them to appeal to their representatives in the house to support the Broussard amendment to the sugar schedule. All efforts to amend the sugar schedule in the caucus so far have failed.

Tomorrow is to be "appointment day" for President Wilson.

With Postmaster General Burleson he will discuss the list of post-masterships, and probably will send it to the senate either Saturday or Monday.

It is stated from the executive offices that the appointment of Will King of Portland, Ore., as a member of the board of general appraisers of merchandise in New York is decided on. This is one of the best federal plums now available.

WILSON WATCHES WASHINGTON WIN OPENING GAME

WASHINGTON, April 10.—With President Wilson an interested spectator, the baseball season was inaugurated in the capital today, with the Washington Americans defeating the New York Highlanders, 2 to 1. The first ball was hurled by the president and it was called a strike.

As the president entered the grounds the band played the "Star Spangled Banner." He doffed his hat to the cheering multitude and then looked at Walter Johnson, Washington's star twirler, and grinned. The president wound up like a professional and sent the ball in the direction of the plate.

"Strike one," yelled Umpire Connelly, and the game was on.

Miss Eleanor Wilson, the president's daughter, accompanied by Secretary Tumulty, arrived at the grounds in time to see the clubs engage in preliminary practice. The president came later. As Johnson was warming up, the president commented on the "smoke" the pitcher put on the ball. The game itself early developed into a pitchers' battle between Johnson and O'Connell. Johnson yielded eight hits, but kept them scattered. O'Connell was touched for but six.

Score: R. H. E.
New York 1 5 1
Washington 2 6 1

UNCLE SAM TO SEEK FOR MISSING GIRLS

Government Asked by Anxious Relatives to Search for Twenty Immigrant Girls Who Disappeared From Train at Newcastle, Pa. . .

No News of Whereabouts—Few Could Speak English—Thought to Have Been Kidnapped

CHICAGO, April 10.—Uncle Sam was asked today to take a hand in the search for the 20 immigrant girls who disappeared from a Baltimore & Ohio train at Newcastle, Pa., more than three weeks ago. Stirred to action by a flood of appeals from relatives of the missing girls, President Silverman of the Norwegian-Danish Y. W. C. A. today put the case in the hands of the department of justice.

"I have new information," he said today, "which may help. I have turned it over to the department of justice with the request that they have government representatives in Pennsylvania go to the bottom of this matter."

Mrs. Emma Peterson of Greenshaw, Pa., another relative of Anna Bachman, one of the missing girls, today wired Silverman begging that he would not allow the investigation to drop. Mrs. Peterson said she had communicated with all the known relatives of the girl, but no news of their whereabouts had been received.

"I am unwilling," said Silverman, "even to hazard a guess as to the fate of these girls. Had any arrived safely at their destination it is practically certain the relatives would have reported it to the authorities when the newspapers printed the story of their disappearance."

Several of the missing girls were from Spain and France. Silverman has been unable to learn whether the girls were met by any one upon their arrival in New York and today wired officers of his association there asking whether their representatives were at the station when the boat arrived.
